State Study Rips Into Failures Of Sausalito Police

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Complete lack of followup investigations on felony offenses was charged today as the most serious shortcomings of the Sausalito Police Department.

T. P. Hunter, night supervisor for the State Department of Justice, made these findings in a 19-page report of his survey of the Sausalito Police Department, given to the city council.

His report was requested by the council after citizen pleas for more police protection following a rash of burglaries last year.

"Probably the most outstanding deficiency, Hunter wrote, "was the inadequacy or complete absence of any followup investigation of felony offenses reported to the police.

"An audit of case files revealed that in some burglaries, very little if anything had been done by way of supplemental investigation other than to enlist the services of the sheriff's office to make a crime-scene search for latent fingerprints.

"This is a very serious shortcoming. . . . It is also doubtless the foundation for much of the citizen dissatisfaction with police service in the community."

The report also states the record system is inadequate.

The police office should be manned 24 hours a day, he says. Until it is, Sausalito should install a leased telephone line to San Rafael tying in with the county communications center.

Hunter said he was "generally favorably impressed with the overall quality of personnel" and said the number—10 policemen—is adequate.

But some officers have accepted gifts and gratuities in

Hands Off Vote By County In Labor Row

Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday to keep hands off a labor dispute that halted work on the county's civic center.

County Administrator Alan Bruce reported the supervisors in an informal poll decided against a proposed mediation meeting with representatives of the contractors, Rothschild, Raffin and Weirick, Inc., and the striking union, Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Local 291.

The Laborers Union put pickets on the civic center job yesterday. Other unions refused to pass the picket line.

Five major construction jobs in addition to the Civic Center remained shut down in Marin County today.

The Laborers Union is the only one of four building trades unions on strike today, but their picket lines were being respected by other crafts, idling key water and power projects in 46 Northern California counties.

Cement finishers, on strike yesterday, said they were willing to return to their jobs today pending settlement of contract dispute, but would not cross laborers' picket lines.

The strike is against Associated General Contractors in a dispute over wage and fringe benefit demands and a three-year contract.

Associated General Contractors, the industry's chief bargaining group, is offering all unions a 30 cents per hour wage increase over the three-year period. Present rates range from $3.22 to $3.92 per hour plus fringe benefits.

Laborers, who earn $3.22 an hour, are asking an increase of 60 cents an hour over three years, plus 55 cents in pension, vacation, and health and welfare benefits. Employers contend the pension and vacation benefits would be "unfeasible for the roving laborers."

IT'S OUTDOOR LIVING TIME AGAIN IN THE I-J

From the time of the dons—or even before—Marin has been a place to enjoy the outdoors.

It's the same today. "Outdoor living" is virtually the keynote of our county.

JFK Hails Titov's Flight Into Space At D.C. Welcome

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President John F. Kennedy welcomed Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov to the nation's capital today and voiced his admiration for the Red Army major's 17-orbit flight around the earth.

Titov was taken to the White House by U. S. astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. who previously gave the Russian a short course in U.S. history and showed him some of this country's pioneer space equipment.

The State Department disclosed meanwhile that it had suggested that Titov visit Cape Canaveral and three other U.S. space age facilities but that the Russian embassy had declined.

U.S. officials said they assumed this meant the Soviets wanted to avoid a precedent which would oblige them to open their rocket and missile launching facilties to visits by Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. or other American astronauts. The State Department said, however, that it did not ask for "reciprocity."

At the White House, Kennedy chatted with Titov for about five minutes and then escorted him and Glenn to the porch just outside the executive office overlooking the sunswept White House grounds.

SPACEMEN MEET

While they posed for photographers, the president said, "I want to say that Mr. Titov is very welcome to the United States." Turning directly to to cosmonaut, he added "I admire what you did."

Glenn and Titov met today for the first time just before they began a tour of historical monuments and other tourist attractions in the nation's capital.

Titov's interest seemed to pick up most near the end of the tour when he and Glenn arrived at the Smithsonian Institution. They first inspected the original Wright brothers plane.

GLENN JOKES

Tomorrow Titov will visit the Bethlehem Steel plant at Sparrows Point, Md., an industrial site he wanted particularly to see. He also has expressed interest in visiting San Francisco and Seattle.

FROM EXPERIENCE—The explanation given Soviet Cosmonaut Gherman Titov by John H. Glenn Jr. comes from experience. The spacemen visited the Smithsonian Institution today where Glenn showed Titov the Freedom 7 space capsule in which he orbited the earth. (AP Wirephoto)

U.S. Bounces TV Signals Off Satellite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States chalked up a historic space first last week by transmitting television pictures via an orbiting communications satellite, the Air Force announced today.

The transmission was between Camp Parks, Calif., near San Francisco, and Middlestone Hill, near Westford, Mass., a distance of 2,700 miles.

The TV signals were bounced off this country's two-year-old Echo 1 satellite, a 100-foot balloon which is now partly deflated and wayward in its orbit.

The Air Force said the feat was made possible by very high frequency—8,350 megacycles—broadcasting and receiving equipment. It was built by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a not yet successful attempt to detect tiny radio-reflecting "needles" in space.

The equipment was used on Tuesday, April 24, to broadcast a television picture of a sign showing the institute's letters —MIT. On Thursday the Satellite successfully reflected television pictures showing a cowboy on a horse and a trained seal in action.

Gun Shots End Freedom For Two Escapers From Quentin

Two San Quentin convicts climbed a prison quarry fence yesterday and stole a car in San Rafael to escape as far as Alameda County, but were recaptured today in a shot-punctuated chase in a Fremont orchard.

They were caught after hours of "stake-out" by Fremont police, sheriff's deputies and prison guards.

Raymond Steagall, 29, from Alameda County on a grand theft sentence, and John J. O'Mally, 24, from Los Angeles for forgery, climbed a fence in the quarry which is a medium security area under guard surveillance.

Their absence was noted at 1:30 p.m. and a widespread alarm went out.

Fremont police were told that the pair might show up at the home of David Seaton, an acquaintance of Steagall. So the house and vicinity were put under surveillance.

A green car drove up to the house just before 7 a.m. today. Close behind came a Fremont police car driven by Sgt. Roger Neuman.

The two occupants of the first car promptly sprinted into an orchard. Fremont Patrolman Bill Shuey fired two shots in the air.

"The next will be to kill," he shouted.

This brought the runners to a halt. They proved to be Steagall and O'Mally.

Piecing together their story as given to police and later at the prison, it appeared that from the quarry they walked into San Rafael. Here they stole a car parked on Lindaro Street south of Second Street, owned by Larry Umlauf of 97 De La Guerra Road.

But they abandoned this car in Hayward and stole another in Mission San Jose—the one they drove to Fremont.

When captured the pair were wearing khaki clothes, believed to have been filched from the prison laundry. How this was accomplished and at what point they changed out of their prison blue denim the men refused to explain.

WILSON ADVISES JURY

Bermuda Palms Owner Innocent, Judge Says

Attorneys for Bermuda Palms owner Irving (Whitey) Litchfield convinced Judge Joseph G. Wilson today that Litchfield did not commit a crime even though he may have made a nuisance of himself to a California Highway Patrolman.

Judge Wilson indicated to a jury of eight men and four women that he would advise them to find Litchfield innocent of the charge that the motel owner had illegally obstructed Officer Joseph Kendricks on Feb. 24.

This is believed to be the first time that a Marin judge has advised the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal, after the prosecution had presented its case and before the defense presented its witnesses.

Prosecution witnesses said Litchfield at no time tried to halt the issuing of a traffic ticket to a woman driver. His interest was to see if the highway patrolman had jurisdiction in front of Bermuda Palms. As a private citizen, Litchfield had a right to ask questions and tell another person to get off his property, the judge ruled.

"I don't condone the actions of that night," the judge declared, "but I think he had the right to tell them to leave. . . . If he had that right, then there is no evidence that he was obstructing the officer in performance of his duties."

Officer Kendricks and Officer Charles Heart of the California Highway Patrol testified that Litchfield kept shouting questions about CHP jurisdiction and bumping against Kendricks. They said Litchfield used abusive language.

Officer Heart testified that Litchfield was finally induced to walk away, but turned around and said something to Kendricks, whereupon Kendricks dropped his citation

WHAT COMES AFTER 65?

Doctors Agree On Aged Health Need—But Differ On Methods

Two doctors last night agreed that legislation is necessary to provide medical care for the aged—but disagreed on the number who need such aid and which legislation should provide it.

Dr. Warren L. Bostick of San Rafael, past president of the California Medical Assn., maintained that three-fourths of those over 65 are provided for and that the medical problems of the remainder can be taken care of under the Kerr-Mills Act.

Dr. Robert Mishell of Palo Alto, internal medicine specialist at Stanford University, declared that most persons over 65 cannot afford medical care, that the Kerr-Mills Act is inadequate and that there is a crying need for passage of the King-Anderson bill.

The King-Anderson bill, now before the House Ways and Means Committee, would provide hospitalization for all social security recipients over 65 under the social security program.

The Kerr-Mills Act, in effect in 26 states, provides medical care for those over 65 who are needy and is paid for out of general taxation.

"One of the tragedies of social security is that it puts those over 65 on the shelf," Bostick said.

Only the "very poor" need federal funds for their care, he said, and insisted that social security "would spread to all ages" if the present program is allowed to go unchecked.

Mishell said present legislation fails to provide for those over 65 who, even though self-sufficient as to everyday living, cannot pay medical bills in event of catastrophe.

The average cost of private health insurance is $250 a year, Mishell said, and such a sum is out of reach of most of the country's aged. He added that most private plans are also inadequate, leaving those in need of care only partly provided for.

"The cost of hospitalization has risen 300 per cent in the last 10 years," Mishell said, "and it will steadily increase."

The Kerr-Mills plan, Mishell said, not only fails to provide

U.S. Tells View On Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States told the neutral nations today that this country "will gladly cease" nuclear testing the moment an effective test ban agreement can be reached with Russia.

But in a note to the government of Ghana, the United States said that without a Soviet agreement, this country "will not unilaterally relinquish the right to conduct defense preparations."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Rosemary Cries In Court

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Jose Ferrer after hearing Rosemary Clooney accuse him of infidelity while siring five children at home, answered her by pleading for a reconciliation.

Rosemary

"I'd come home tonight," Ferrer said.

His blonde wife tearfully testified Wednesday in their contested divorce trial that the Oscar winner had "affairs with other women from the beginning of our marriage."

Asked to comment on Ferrer's desire to come home, Miss Clooney, 33, answered: "I guess he would, if he could—and that's my only comment."

Jose

The trial is in recess until Tuesday.

Superior Judge Mervyn Aggeler suggested that both sides use the time to restore their tangled financial situations.

"From what I've heard," the judge said, "both parties are as confused as the court."

William Gargan Speaks Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor William Gargan, whose voice box was removed in an operation to arrest cancer, yesterday explained to others similarly afflicted how he learned to speak without a larynx.

Gargan

The operation on Nov. 10, 1960 forced Gargan to give up his acting career, but he eventually regained his speech by mastering the esophageal method of forming words.

Speaking yesterday in a deep, growling voice, his words were clearly understandable to the 30 patients at the National Hospital for Speech Disorders.

In his final role, Gargan played the part of a former president who died of cancer in the road company production of "The Best Man." While the show was on tour, the actor was constantly bothered by a sore throat which later was diagnosed as cancer.

Highway Job Let

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A Seattle Wash. firm has been awarded a $5,693,503 contract to build 5.9 miles of four-lane freeway on the U.S. 101 Redwood Parks Freeway in Humboldt County.

The state awarded the contract to Morrison Knudsen Co., the low bidder.

NEW YORK (AP)—A jeweler's will directs that his $250,000 estate go to the United States government after the death of his mother, who is in her 80s.

"I make this bequest in appreciation of the freedom and liberty afforded in this country to all citizens irrespective of race, creed or color," wrote William Berns, who died April 20 at the age of 59. His will was filed for probate here yesterday.

Berns bequeathed the income from his estate to his mother, Milly. Upon her death, the residuary estate is payable to the Treasurer of the United States of America.

Trade Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce backed, with two reservations, President John F. Kennedy's trade expansion program and then heard a sharp attack on the Kennedy administration before winding up its 50th annual meeting.

The attack came at the closing banquet yesterday. Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) charged that Kennedy exercised coercive power in forcing a rollback in steel price increases last month. The senator also declared the administration is encouraging and stimulating segments of the people to demand more and more from government.

New Disarm Plan

GENEVA (UPI) — India presented a compromise plan today calling for East and West to open their territory to international inspection by gradual stages during a period of general and complete disarmament.

The plan was put before the 30th plenary session of the 17-nation disarmament conference by Indian delegate Arthur Lall in an effort to bridge the gap between Soviet and Anglo-American stands.

Neither American delegate Arthur H. Dean nor Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin made any immediate comment on the Indian proposal.

Russ Praise Pianist

He played Tchaikovsky's and Brahms' first concertos yesterday, accompanied by the Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra under Kiril Kondrashin. Four years ago the same orchestra under the same conductor accompanied Van Cliburn, another American, when he won the contest.

Blazing Meteor

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A meteor-like object blazed across the sky from west to east over the Southeast last night.

Karl Hujer, professor of astronomy at University of Chattanooga, said the object probably was a meteor belonging to the orbit of Haley's Comet, due to be seen again in 1985.

Hujer said the earth's orbit overlaps that of Haley's Comet about this time each year, and sporadic meteors sometimes are seen.

Syria Land Reform

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria's new government launched its program of Arab socialism by reinstating the country's 1958 land reform law yesterday.

The law, a keystone in the program begun when Syria was a part of President Nasser's United Arab Republic, divided the country's large feudal estates among landless peasants.

After the army took Syria out of the UAR and a conservative Parliament was elected, the government of Dr. Marouf Dawaliby reversed the land reform program and displaced many of the peasants. Army leaders gave this as one of the chief reasons for their coup in late March, which threw out the parliamentary government.

Immigrants To Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Authorities announced yesterday that 1,375 Americans immigrated to Israel last year. They said 221 more immigrants came from Canada.

U.S. Sets Off 3rd, Biggest Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States wrapped up the first week of its nuclear tests in the Pacific with its third and biggest burst so far in the series — a million-ton blast that flashed through cloudy skies near Christmas Island.

As in the first two tests, the device yesterday was dropped from a plane. But it was at least twice as strong as either of the earlier shots.

A joint announcement by the Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission said it was in the low megaton yield range—the explosive equivalent of from one to several million tons of TNT.

The previous shots in Operation Dominic, which got under way one week ago yesterday, were in the 100,000 to 500,000-ton range.

By contrast, the atom bomb that struck Hiroshima in World War II was rated at 20,000 tons of TNT.

Yesterday's blast thundered over the Pacific at about 8 a.m. test site time, or about 1 p.m. EST.

As nuclear weaponeers checked the results of the initial clutch of tests and prepared for blast No. 4, a controversy was reported blowing up within the Kennedy administration. The question: What steps should the United States take to halt future nuclear tests after Dominic runs its course.

Some officials advocate that the United States enter a new moratorium on atmospheric tests, a reversal of present policy. Others insist that U.S. security requires a formal test ban agreement under an international inspection system to prevent sneak tests or secret preparations for tests.

Some State Department and White House officials are concerned the dispute may weaken the American bargaining position in the 17-nation disarmament conference at Geneva.

At the basis of the dispute is concern over policy and propaganda.

Washington authorities are sensitive to demands from overseas for an end to nuclear testing in the atmosphere. Thus officials say that efforts to improve detection equipment for all types of tests will be pressed.

As for policy, some administration officials were reportedly talking of the possibility that the United States could afford to join in a moratorium on atmospheric testing when the current series ends.

About 30 more shots are expected to be fired in the Pacific tests. Among them will be three high altitude explosions in June or July.

The discoverer of the Van Allen radiation belt, Dr. James Van Allen of State University of Iowa, said Wednesday that a big nuclear detonation at high altitude probably would kick a hole in the belt but that he expected that it would be healed or repaired in a matter of a few weeks.

Van Allen said he had no information that any of the sky-high tests at Johnston Island would be high enough or strong enough to rupture the belt.

But he said in an interview that an explosion of several megatons at an altitude close to the lower limits of the belt —about 400 miles up—would do it.

U.S. Might Let Europe Share Control Of Nuclear Warhead

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The United States was reported today to be willing to share control of its nuclear warheads in Western Europe with a politically strong European union that includes Britain.

The U.S. position was described as a new approach to the years-old discussion of giving the North Atlantic Treaty Organization an independent nuclear strike force.

Qualified Western sources disclosed the new U.S. ideas as foreign and defense ministers prepared to open NATO's annual spring meeting. The defense ministers were to meet this afternoon to study weapons and production problems, among others. The foreign ministers open a three-day review of the allied defense position tomorrow.

During the past 18 months numerous proposals for a supranational nuclear strike force for the Atlantic alliance have been able to solve the key question: "How many fingers on the trigger?"

Only two fingers are envisioned in the concept of American partnership with the European political union that is the ultimate aim of the six-nation European Common Market. A qualified Western source reported that Washington now was using nuclear armament as an inducement to the six nations—all NATO members—to get on with their political negotiations and to include Britain.

Death Toll Set At 96 In Algeria Bomb Blast; Moslems Go On Strike

ALGIERS (AP)—Moslem dockworkers today boycotted the waterfront where at least 96 dockers were killed in a bomb blast planted by the European secret army.

The strike brought the port to a standstill. Seven ships were waiting to be unloaded and others were anchored in the outer harbor.

The underground extremists fighting to keep Algeria French kept up their terror campaign today with bombings and robberies.

The violent explosions wrecked a Moslem medical insurance office near the Algiers Casbah and two post offices were held up and robbed of about 28,000 francs ($5,600).

There were no immediate reports of casualties. The explosions occurred before the building opened for business. During office hours it is usually crowded with Moslems collecting government insurance payments for medical expenses.

The new terrorist action followed one of the bloodiest days in Algeria since rebellion erupted in the territory more than seven years ago. Officials reported 110 persons were killed and 147 wounded yesterday in Algiers and Oran. Almost all were Moslem victims of the Secret Army.

Algerian Nationalist leaders strove to hold back enraged Moslems from wreaking vengeance against the European extremists out to wreck the cease-fire reached by President Charles de Gaulle and the rebels March 19.

The savagery of the terrorists' attacks in Algeria's two biggest cities was clearly designed to provoke a civil war to block Algerian independence.

At least 96 Moslems were killed and 140 wounded in one blow when a booby-trapped car loaded with 40 pounds of explosives and shrapnel exploded among 1,500 Moslems crowded around a dockside hiring hall.

Racist Parole Denied

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Edward Cline, convicted of conspiracy to dynamite the integrated Clinton, Tenn., high school during racial troubles in 1957, was denied parole yesterday for the fourth time. He is serving a 2-10 year term.

Canada Devalues Dollar, Pegs It At 92.5 U.S. Cents

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada devalued its dollar last night and pegged it at 92½ U.S. cents to give a boost to exports and ease the nation's chronic foreign trade deficit.

The president of the Canadian Manufacturing Assn. said he was delighted with the export boost but expressed surprise at the new rate, the lowest since Canada adopted a free, floating exchange rate in September 1950.

The Canadian dollar had sold at 95¼ cents on the exchanges for the past two months.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said in a statement announcing the new rate the government had taken progressive steps to bring the exchange rate down. The Canadian dollar in August 1957 was worth $1.06 1/8 in U.S. currency.

The drop in the rate is expected to give a strong boost to export earnings and to discourage import buying by raising import prices in terms of Canadian dollars.

It will mean, among other things, costlier vacation trips in the United States for Canadians and cheaper ones in Canada for American tourists.

For the government, the pegging of the dollar will mean that the government's exchange fund will have to intervene in the market by buying or selling U.S. dollars to ensure that the exchange rate doesn't move farther than one percentage point on either side of the 92½ cent rate.

The International Monetary Fund, which had been urging Canada to adopt a fixed exchange rate, issued a statement warmly welcoming the move.

School Custodian Beck To Put Away Broom

Fred C. Beck of Greenbrae will put away his brooms for the last time at Strawberry Point Elementary School in June and retire to the out-of-doors.

The custodian, who will be 69 on his next birthday, has worked at the school since it opened almost 10 years ago.

"I'll be up on Hat Creek first week in July," said the crew-cut, tanned Beck. "That's between Mount Lassen and Shasta . . . my dad took me out deer hunting when I was just big enough to hang onto his back on a horse."

Beck, who came to Marin in 1904, lives alone at 43 Greenbrae Boardwalk on Conte Madera Creek. He is on the executive board of the Greenbrae Rod and Gun Club.

Before joining the Mill Valley School District, Beck was a timekeeper for Bethlehem Steel Co. in San Francisco in World War II, and worked in highway construction and at Hutchinson Co. quarry at Greenbrae.

"I'm going to miss those youngsters," Beck declared "and the faculty . . . the other night they caught me by surprise."

Last Friday the faculty took Beck to dinner at Sabella's Restaurant, where Principal Joseph K. Womack gave him two gifts: A transistor radio and a Colorado deer hunting license.

"They sent to Craig, Colo., for the license," Beck said, "and paid $45 for it so when I go there this fall it's all paid for."

Post Office Job Told In Fairfax

Applications are being received for post office clerk and carrier positions in Fairfax, it was announced today.

Applications will be accepted from Fairfax residents over 18 who are American citizens. Starting wages are $2.16 an hour. Sick leave, annual vacation, health and life insurance benefits and retirement plan are offered.

MACY'S SAN RAFAEL, FOURTH AND COURT, GLENWOOD 6-3333; OPEN MONDAY AND FRIDAY 9:30 TO 9; OTHER DAYS 9:30 TO 5:30

DIDN'T QUITE MAKE PARKING LOT

The little car driven by Bettie Morisette, 37, of 41-G Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley, wound up against the fence of the H. Koch and Sons luggage factory parking lot in Corte Madera at 8:40 a.m. today, after rolling downhill from Highway 101. The driver, who suffered injuries to right leg, left arm and neck, told highway patrolmen she started to pass a car, northbound on the highway, when another behind her honked. She swerved sharply right again—and off the highway. She was transferred to Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco after emergency treatment at Marin General Hospital. (Independent-Journal photo)

83 Perish As Japanese Trains Crash

TOKYO (AP) — Two electric commuter trains, coming from opposite directions, piled into a derailed freight tonight, killing 83 persons and injuring 147.

Police said they expected the death toll to rise.

Most of the injured were in serious condition.

Three hours after the violent accident, rescue workers still were boring into the twisted wreckage.

adequately for aged patients, but makes it impossible for doctors to give adequate care to their patients. Under provisions of the bill, he said, patients are denied freedom of choice of doctors, and in many states and counties it is useless because of inadequate public facilities.

In answer to a question from the audience of about 100 as to why the King-Anderson bill is opposed by organized medicine, Mishell said:

"I can only suggest that the American Medical Assn. has taken a retrogressive view of all social legislation since 1930."

The King-Anderson bill provides for hospitalization for 90 days after the first nine days are paid for at $10 per day. After hospitalization, the patient is entitled to 180 days of nursing care and 240 home health visits. Those eligible for social security would be covered.

The Kerr-Mills Act, for which the state pays matching funds, provides for hospitalization and nursing home care after 30 days in the hospital or nursing home. It covers those who own less than $1,200 in personal property and real property under $5,000. It does not cover tuberculosis or phychosis patients.

Bostick maintained that the proposed King-Anderson law would tax everyone to pay for the care of only a few.

"If allowed to reach full bloom, the social security tax will approach the British program of socialized medicine," Bostick said.

The public debate in Angelico Hall at Dominican Convent was sponsored by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce. The speakers were introduced by chamber president Jess J. France.

book and arrested Litchfield.

Two girls, who were being given a traffic ticket that night, were called by Deputy Dist. Atty. Charles L. Convis. They said they did not hear Litchfield use any vulgar language, and there was no physical contact of any kind until the arrest.

Defense lawyers William O. Weissich and John G. Buresh held the prosecution had failed to prove that a crime had been committed. Before presenting their own witnesses, the defense attorneys called for acquittal.

"To characterize this as criminal would be to create a new type of crime—contempt of police," Weissich argued. "At worst, Mr. Litchfield was a nuisance and an annoyance, but he did not commit a crime."

The trial ended with the judge's directed verdict of acquittal. However, the final arguments to the jury continued from both the prosecution and defense.

Prosecutor Convis opened his argument with this statement: "Here is one case where the people do not need a unanimous verdict. We need to convince only 12 out of 13."

Convis explained that the judge may think Litchfield is innocent, but it is up to the 12 jurors to make the final decision.

Muir Beach Wells Lack Proper Water

At a special meeting of the Muir Beach Community Services District Tuesday, directors decided to ask an engineer to inspect the whole system and see what can be done to provide a better water supply.

The district has three wells, one is a good producer, but the water is not palatable, said secretary-manager Michael G. Gensburger. The Franks Valley well, recently acquired, has "not enough water," Gensburger said. The third well has a broken pipe and sands up at the bottom.

Gensburger said he has submitted his resignation as secretary-manager to become effective when someone is chosen to fill his post. He is leaving the paid position, he said, because he is too occupied with cattle ranching.

Lady Was Out Of Gas, And It Was No Wonder

An indignant woman in a new car, stationary on Highway 101 just south of the Black Point cutoff, was interviewed at 6:30 a.m. today by California Highway Patrolman Lawrence Olivotti.

She had a grievance which offhand seemed to Olivotti justified.

Her gasoline tank had been filled shortly before at Vallejo; scarcely half an hour up the road, and already the car was out of fuel.

Olivotti investigated and found that not only was fuel absent—the gasoline tank was, as well.

He drove back half a mile and there was the missing tank on the highway.

Tiburon's Problems Due Airing

"Instant Hindsight"—or how to save Tiburon's waterfront and solves the transit problem—will be discussed tonight on a symposium sponsored by the Tiburon Peninsula Democratic Club.

The meeting, scheduled for 8 to 10 p.m. in Reed School on Tiburon Highway, will feature a panel including T. J. Kent Jr., chairman of the Department of City and Regional Planning at the University of California in Berkeley. He is also a Berkeley city councilman and former director of planning for San Francisco.

Brothers Hurt In Car Mishap

Two brothers from Richmond were slightly injured today when their car hit a bank near the west gate of San Quentin Prison today.

Paul Hughes, 26, suffered a split lip and his brother John, 30, suffered forehead cuts. They were treated at Marin General Hospital and released.

Paul Hughes was driving west on East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about 9:15 a.m. when his car hit the guard rail and then ran into the bank, said California Highway Patrolman John Allison.

Hamilton Unit Hunting Plane

Kissin' Jim Threatens Alabama Votes Probe

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Complete returns today squeezed State Sen. Ryan Degraffenried into a runoff contest with front-runner George Wallace for governor of Alabama but James (Kissin' Jim) Folsom shouted from a rural retreat that he hasn't given up yet.

"I'm goin' to be in that runoff or else there is goin' to be one hell of a grand jury investigation," Folsom telephone United Press International.

Jorda Quits As Symphony Director

Jorda, who once proudly told Adolf Hitler that the Basque people were pre-Aryan said a "small opposition is undermining the structure and morale of the symphony."

He said that he would be willing to stay through next season because of the difficulty in finding a replacement.

The board of governors of the San Francisco Symphony Assn. accepted his decision with deep regret, and told him he would suffer no financial loss because of shortening his term as conductor and musical director.

Opposition to Jorda came to a head in March when George Szell cut short an engagement as guest conductor. Later Szell, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony, made public a letter to a music critic saying he found music in a sad state in San Francisco. He made no explanation.

The musicianship of Jorda's symphony, however, won high praise the following month from Pablo Casals as it gave the noted cellist and conductor the American premier of his oratorio "El Pessebre."

Jorda was permanent director of the Madrid Symphony during World War II and found reasons to reject several invitations to conduct at the Salzburg Festival in Germany. Finally he wrote in answer to a Nazi request for his race: "pre-Aryan."

The Basques, he often explained, were in the Pyranees long before the Aryans, pride of the Nazis, started their world march. Jorda was born in San Sebastian in 1911.

Coroner, Opponent Disagree On Conflict Of Interest

Coroner Frank J. Keaton and his June 5 election opponent, Forrest N. Johnson of Terra Linda, disagreed today over whether having an undertaker as coroner constitutes a conflict of interest.

The two, in a debate on the radio KTIM "Marin Sounding Board," also disagreed on whether putting the coroner-public administrator on a salary instead of fee basis will cost the county less. County supervisors put the job on salary basis last Feb. 6.

The program will be rebroadcast at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Keaton stood on his record of 11 years service in the position and said he would like to continue. Johnson cited four years as a physical therapist at St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco and his current studies at University of California at Berkeley, to qualify him for a master's degree in public health. He is to receive the degree on the day of the election.

Johnson quoted from the 1961 Marin County Grand Jury recommendation in justifying removal of the position from its basis.

He quoted from actions of the supervisors in putting the job on a salary basis and read from an Independent-Journal story of Feb. 6 regarding the board's action in passing a "conflict of interest" rider. Under the rider Keaton would not handle any coroner's cases "through any mortuary in which he may have either direct or indirect financial interest."

Keaton agreed he was dissatisfied with the salary, to average $9,400 over a four-year period.

Keaton added he was sure the new system would cost the county more because his mortuary has been supplying some services without charge, including phones, use of the Keaton morgue, and a car.

Keaton said the state legislative counsel had held there is "no conflict legally" between his public and private positions.

A listener asked whether Keaton was prepared to give up his interest in the mortuarly if re-elected. He said, "I am not in a position to say I will give up any interest."

Keaton added he still would give "365 days a year" to the coroner job.

Johnson quoted the grand jury report as saying the coroner-public administrator's office received about $17,000 in fees in 1960. Keaton disagreed that this figure was too high.

A listener inquired whether Keaton had had dealings with Marsha Owen (Sally Stanford). He replied she purchased her Sausalito restaurant and a house through his father's estate.

Another listener inquired what police investigative experience Johnson had. He replied, "none." To the same question, Keaton said he had attended a county police school directed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Another listener asked what criminal pathology experience the candidates had.

Johnson replied his service as an assistant to a pathologist in St. Paul, Minn., was what had led to his interest in coroner's work. Keaton said he had three pathologists on his staff and cited "my 11 years experience with them."

Johnson was asked by another listener whether the changed coroner setup would increase taxes. He thought not, but Keaton said: "There will have to be an increase in taxes. The county will be paying for what it now gets free."

A listener asked whether other mortuaries had complained over Keaton's distribution of coroner's cases. He said cases were distributed according to their location. Any business would encounter complaints, he said. "I think this is normal and American." He said he thought a review of the monthly reports of his office, showing where cases were distributed, would allay fears of favoritism.

State Study Rips Sausalito Police Department's Failures

food, he charged. One establishment has attracted police trade with "all you can eat for 50 cents" and free coffee, Hunter asserted.

The establishment, Janita's Galley, "has also been the scene of innumerable peace disturbances characterized by lack of cooperation on the part of the management," Hunter added.

"No patrolman can maintain a proper professional attitude toward someone from whom he hopes to get something for nothing," the report declared. "However, the crux of the matter is that it is impossible to tolerate and by so doing authorize 'only a small amount' of gratulties; there is no definite place where the line can be drawn."

Hunter said one cannot judge the Sausalito Police Department, as some cities, by population. "Some industries, tourist traffic and the presence of what may be termed euphemistically as 'art groups' . . . have all added to the general problems of city government," his report says.

He pointed out that access to the city from Highway 101 has increased the residential burglary hazard.

He said the various boat harbors, marinas and the Village Fair are difficult to police. Hunter reported that patrolling privately owned harbors would parallel patrolling a private automobile storage garage. He suggested iron gates to close off Village Fair doorways at night.

As an operational factor, he cited loss of time, at least an hour, in taking prisoners to county jail.

City Manager Charles A. Brown said today all facets of the report are being studied. Brown has been directed to give the city council an analysis of the survey.

Brown said several changes have already been made. On April 17 the city council adopted the uniform peace officers' standards. Sgt. David Cooper has been detailed to do follow-ups on felony offenses.

A third vehicle has been recommended; this will be taken up at budget time.

Hunter recommended a lower-salaried employee to handle parking meters. Nelda Oakley, police clerk, has her permanent appointment and is to carry out a walking beat on meters, Brown said.

At Tuesday's meeting of the council it was decided to make the report available to the public at the city hall. Mayor Paul Micou directed a letter of appreciation to the State Department of Justice.

McCarthy Counters Blast Of Retiring Schools Chief

I-J Special Report

The retiring California state superintendent of schools had harsh words for the legislature yesterday afternoon and received some in return today from Marin Sen. John F. McCarthy.

Speaking at a founder's day luncheon at San Jose State College, Simpson accused the legislature of "impeding the progress of state colleges."

"We need to have more freedom from the legislature," he asserted. He was particularly critical of the legislature for deleting $640,000 for college research from the budget.

"We needed those funds to attract top personnel," Simpson insisted.

In Los Angeles, the Marin senator, a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, labeled Simpson "a typical bureaucrat who wants to control our educational system at the state level."

"It appears that public education officials want to eliminate any legislative control," McCarthy went on. "This is a disgraceful attitude. Control of education must not be allowed to fall into the hands of one man. I advocate the return to local school districts of powers usurped by the State Department of Education, particularly in the selection of textbooks."

Mill Valley Rejects Enchanted Park

Enchanted Park, a 100-acre, million dollar development in the Enchanted Knolls area of Mill Valley, was "killed" last night when the city council told developers "no apartments."

In voting on guides for the master plan, essentially eliminating apartments, the council reinforced its policy set April 4 that it wishes Mill Valley to remain essentially a single-family residential community.

Developer Sherill Broudy told the council it had "closed all the doors" and said the only avenue was to come back with a "typical development."

Even Broudy's offer to give the city a 33-acre park in the Enchanted Park area failed to sway the council.

Broudy had proposed 250 apartment units and 100 single-family homes in Enchanted Park, plus a restaurant or boatel. The plan featured large open areas.

Owners include Eugen Harter and Warner Odenthal of Oakland, John Alexander of Huntington Park and Broudy.

In killing the plan, the council:

1. Unanimously turned down a zoning ordinance amendment which would have allowed developers to process a "planned unit" development regardless of zoning. Councilman George D. Monardo, who lives in Enchanted Knolls and made the motion, said the amendment would allow "backdoor rezoning."

2. By 3-2 vote approved a planning commission recommendation for updating the master plan for Enchanted Knolls area to require lots from 10,000 to 40,000 square feet category. Councilman George Blackwell and Michael Wornum voted no.

3. Unanimously approved a planning commission recommendation that Enchanted Park points, now one-half commercially and one-half apartment zoning, be classified as commercial-recreational.

A letter from Broudy, read at his request, alleged that Monardo and Councilman William M. Secor, both residents of Enchanted Knolls, had continuously disparaged his firm's efforts and were "unequivocably opposed to our plans for developing the remainder of Enchanted Knolls."

He asked that the basic concept of the plan be reviewed by the council strictly on its merits. This was denied.

"We are not about to go for any plan that incorporates this with apartments," said Mayor Joseph E. Sheeks. He said he had rung hundreds of doorbells in his recent campaign for re-election. "I can assure you the overwhelming feeling in this community is people don't want more apartments," he declared.

Mrs. Nancy Armstrong, in the audience, was the lone supporter of Broudy's proposal, saying: "You can't have your cake and eat it too. If a developer wants to grant some open spaces, he has to build on some of it."

Secor told Broudy: "We don't want apartments. We don't want vertical, horizontal or fringe apartments nor town houses. Me, I don't want them. I ran for office on that platform."

CLEAR CASE OF BITING THE HAND THAT FEEDS YOU, BLACKWELL SAYS

Blackwell showed up at last night's city council meeting with his right arm in a sling.

He tried to stop a fight between his fox terrier, Boltie, and John Wright's weimaraner, he explained.

Three stitches were required to close the wounds in Blackwell's arm. It also took three stitches to sew up Boltie.

"The dog should know," said Blackwell sorrowfully, "that he should not bite a director of the Humane Society."

Meetings Set On Saturdays By Mill Valley

The Mill Valley City Council decided last night to hold a series of Saturday morning meetings to deal with problems such as marshland development, flood control, teen-age dances.

They will be in the form of study sessions. The first will be May 19 to discuss the 1962-63 budget, Mayor Joseph E. Sheeks said.

Dr. J. Alfred Rider, in the audience, suggested the city set the meetings at different times so that he, and others who work Saturdays, might attend.

Elks Will Hear Talk On Moscow

Seventy-four boys from Marin high schools will meet an equal number of government officials at a San Rafael Elks Lodge banquet Saturday at 6 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Joseph Allen, manager of the San Francisco Seals. He will show slides and will discuss "My Trip to Moscow."

QUEEN MUST SELL TICKETS

Best Salesgal To Reign Over Terra Linda High World Fair

A half dozen Terra Linda High School girls have been nominated to reign over the Terra Linda High World Fair on May 19.

Which one gets the crown, though, will depend on who sells the most tickets to the fair.

The candidates shortly will start calling at doors in Terra Linda and Marinwood — and maybe beyond—peddling those important tickets.

The tickets may be used like money to purchase anything at the fair, which will be held at the high school starting at 2 p.m. on May 19.

Freshmen: Diane Barnard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Barnard of 899 Las Ovejas Road, and Sherry DeHaan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abel DeHaan of 701 Del Ganada Road.

Sophomores: Michelle Katzman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Martin Katzman of 350 Holly Drive, and Nancy Palacio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Palacio of 100 Garden Avenue.

Juniors: Mary Feerick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Feerick of 324 Devon Drive, and Lynne Franchi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Franchi of 9 Don Timoteo Court.

All are residents of Terra Linda.

Ticket sale in the queen contest will end May 14. The queen will be crowned at the fair.

Fewer Farms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The number of farms in Ohio dropped about 10,000 from 1959 to 1961, with a decrease of 400,000 acres in farmland, Ohio State University economists report.

Adventist To Talk On World Affairs

L. C. Wilcox of Pacific Union College will speak at the Fairfax Seventh-Day Adventist church at 75 Park Drive Saturday.

Hiss address will be based on world conditions as they are related to divine revelations. It will follow the Sabbath School which begins at 9:30 a.m.

Adventists in 1962 are following a plan of stressing the necessity of each person knowing the Bible for himself, as a means of endeavoring to stem what they consider a tide of disregard for law and order.

HECKLER SCUFFLES AT RED SPEECH

Marine World was given short shrift last night by Mill Valley city councilmen who decided they needed no motion nor resolution to "bury" it.

Mayor Joseph E. Sheeks reported on Monday's meeting with developer Philip E. Ehrlich Sr., counsel for Marine World Corp., at which the council voted 3-2 to hold no further negotiations.

The council authorized filing of condemnation action to acquire any outstanding interests in three parcels of marshland given to the city by the state but without clear title. City Atty. Leland H. Jordan said there are several people involved, though the parcels are small. Jordan said none of the state's $300,000 small craft harbor loan is forthcoming until the land is cleared—although lack of clear title was caused by an error made by the state.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

1. Referred to the planning commission a request made by the Mill Valley Commuters Club that the master plan take into consideration future commuter parking on Miller Avenue.

2. Authorized $5,328, already budgeted, for street repair work and patching on West Blithedale Avenue, Valley Circle, Carmelita, Lovell, Sycamore and Locust.

3. Designated Councilman Michael Wornum to represent the council at the May 10 hearing on traffic control arches on the Golden Gate Bridge. Wornum said he is a foe of the arches.

4. Denied applications of Ted Gibson to authorize a subdivision at 383 Miller Avenue, which would produce a substandard sized lot, and of Joseph Redmond for resubdivision of four lots in Land O' Peter Pan at Cushing Drive, for the same reason.

5. Approved warrants of $36,313.

Recently Incorporated Financial Firm Seeking To Register Shares

Marin County Financial Corp., a recently incorporated firm, has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission to register 102,050 shares of its capital stock.

The company has acquired all of the stock of Marin County Savings and Loan Assn. in exchange for Marin County Financial Corp. stock. Its sole business will consist of owning the savings and loan firm's stock and rendering management service.

Of the 102,050 shares being registered, presumably to be offered for sale to the public, 74,260 are from the savings and loan shareholders and 27,790 are new issue. If and when the stock is admitted to registration, it is expected to be underwritten by Dean Witter and Co. and associates.

Only the proceeds from sale of the new issue will be received by the Marin County Financial Corp., and substantially all of these, after expenses, will be invested in its subsidiary, the Marin County Savings and Loan Assn.

Officers and directors of Marin County Financial Corp. are identical to those of Marin County Savings and Loan Assn.

Two Essay Prize Winners Named

Margie Dougan of Bolinas won first prize and Steven Doiron of Stinson Beach second prize in an essay contest on "Our American Heritage" sponsored by the auxiliary to Bolinas Post 572 of the American Legion. A. C. Pfefferkorn, post adjutant, announced the winners.

Laotian Flareup

VIETNIANE, Laos (UPI)—Pro-Communist rebels were reported to have captured the historic town of Muong Sing today in a major victory that could reopen the Laotian civil war on a large scale.

There was no official announcement but a highly placed military source warned persons planning to go there that the town was "captured and occupied" today after "a big battle."

San Rafael Library Seeking Books

If you have any books you no longer want, take them to the San Rafael Public Library.

They will be collected there and sold on the library lawn June 1 and 2 by the Marin Retired Teachers. Profits from the book sale will go to the library fund for new books.

Mrs. Eleanor Murray of San Rafael, chairman of the sale, says any books are acceptable, including paper bound and children's books.

Blue Rock Apartment Owner May Have To Tear Out Room

Hugh Wood, owner of the Blue Rock Apartments in Larkspur, may have to tear down a storage room which he built under a deck of the apartment.

Last year, Wood got a permit to construct a deck on the building. Wood enclosed the area, under the deck, installed a heating unit, and created an additional room.

The city ordered construction halted.

Wood's attorney, Julius Selinger, last night appealed to the city council to have the room approved. Selinger said it was a misunderstanding, and Wood did not wilfully violate the building plans as approved by the planning commission.

City fathers deadlocked 2-to-2 on Wood's appeal, with Mayor James E. Lienkaemper abstaining. City Atty. Samuel W. Gardiner ruled that this means Wood has lost his appeal since "the appellant himself must get affirmative relief."

Mayor Lienkaemper said he felt the appeal should be denied but abstained from voting because he did not want to cast the vote that would tear down the building.

Councilmen Lesly Daveler and R. J. Smith voted to deny the appeal. Councilmen Daniel Allen and Neil R. Brixon voted for Wood, saying the city may be partly to blame for letting the construction proceed so far before it was halted.

Councilmen decided they would discuss the matter further on June 6 to see what will be done with Wood's building, now that it has been held in violation of the building permit.

Councilman Smith called for immediate abatement of the building, but agreed to continue the matter until June 6.

Fairfax Gardener Hurt In Truck Accident

Donald Charles Sanguinetti, Fairfax gardener, was treated at Marin General Hospital for scalp cuts suffered early yesterday in a pickup truck accident he couldn't remember.

He had been driving east on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard about 2 a.m. when the truck ran off the south side of the road, east of the San Geronimo Valley Drive intersection, the California Highway Patrol learned.

Some 138,000 persons live on sampans and junks in Mong Kong's crowded harbor. Known as the Tanka, they have long been considered a group apart. For centuries Chinese law forbade them to settle ashore, marry landowners or work for the government.

Two Charge Lauterwasser Work Peril

Two irate property owners in Larkspur charged last night that contractor Russ Lauterwasser's excavation work has undermined their properties and is causing extensive landslides in the Chevy Chase area.

James F. Pressley of Ross, who owns property at 90 Marina Vista, and Cecil A. Howard, who lives at 80 Marina Vista, appealed to the city to prevent Lauterwasser from further removal of dirt. They announced that they have filed a $30,000 lawsuit in Marin Superior Court against Lauterwasser for the damages caused to their property.

PRIOR AGREEMENT

The city already has an agreement with Lauterwasser that the excavator will not develop or sell any lot until soil engineers find the slide conditions are corrected.

"Beyond that, I don't think there is anything more we can do about it," said City Atty. Samuel W. Gardiner.

"Can a man dig until another person's property falls in, and the city can't do anything about it?" Howard asked.

"The question is," explained the city attorney, "is this a private or a public problem? I think it's private."

DEMANDS LETTER

"If so, I demand a letter from the city council that the city can't do anything about it," Pressley declared.

City fathers decided to write a letter to Lauterwasser, asking that no more dirt be removed.

Pressley reported that he has heard on good authority that Lauterwasser may continue to have dirt hauled away from the slide area.

Ross Valley Sewer Treatment Plant Work Will Cost Larkspur $200,000

Larkspur's share of rebuilding the Ross Valley Sanitary District sewage treatment plant will be $200,000, according to a letter read to the Larkspur City Council last night.

Wallace S. Myers, attorney for the sanitary district, pointed out that a new contract will have to be worked out with the city to supersede the 1948 contract. The old contract provided for the sanitary district to take care of a quarter million gallons of Larkspur sewage per day. But the flow has increased considerably, Myers wrote.

Under the new proposal, Piper estimated that the cost to the city would be $16,000 per year. The city now pays about $14,350. Piper said he would study the proposal and report back to the council.

Formal approval of a 10 per cent pay hike for Larkspur city employees was postponed for two more weeks to give new Councilman R. J. Smith a chance to study the pay raise.

Last month, city fathers approved the pay increase in a 4-1 vote, with Lesly A. Daveler dissenting. The salary question will come up again on May 16.

In other actions, the city council last night:

1. Gave final approval of recreation commission ordinance that reduces the number of commission members to five and lengthens the term of office to four years.
2. Set May 16 as the hearing date for Coldwell Banker and Co.'s appeal for a sign variance at Highway 101.
3. Set June 20 as hearing date on annexation of the Dorais lot in Greenbrae.

Larkspur Plaza Low Bid Named

Lee Mac Paving Co. of Corte Madera last night submitted a low bid of $92,071 to put in streets and sewer and water lines in Larkspur Plaza.

Three other bids ranged to $103,304.

Larkspur city councilmen turned the bids over to Carlos E. Gonzales, engineer for Reedland Heights Inc., the developer. Gonzalez will submit a recommendation to the city council on May 16. The engineer's estimate of the cost was $86,000.

Other bids were $99,992 by Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael, $101,086 by McGuire and Hester of Oakland, and $103,304 by E. A. Forde Co. of Corte Madera.

Reedland Heights Inc. plans a $400,000 shopping center and apartments on 17 acres at Magnolia Avenue and Doherty Drive.

Pepper vines, like grape vines, are trained to climb on poles and other supports.

Larkspur's Asst. Fire Chief Harder Resigns After 5 Years

Asst. Fire Chief Claire Harder of Larkspur, who has been with the fire department for five years, resigned as of this week, City Manager Ronald E. Piper reported to the city council last night.

Harder resigned because he is going into business, Piper said.

No successor has been named for Harder. However, volunteer Craig Shirtz has been hired as a fulltime fireman.

The city manager said he talked to Fire Chief George Bartram, who is thinking of setting up a captain's position instead of filling the assistant chief's post.

Piper said the fire chief's plan is to have the new captain take over one firehouse, while a Chief Bartram runs the other.

Marin Heart Group Meeting To Hear Expert

Dr. Edward Lewis of San Francisco will present a film and talk on "Computers in Medicine and Heart Disease" at the annual meeting of the Marin County Heart Assn. on May 24.

The dinner meeting will be held at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito beginning with a no-host cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m.

Association president A. Leonard Bjorklund Jr. will review the group's activities for the past year. Officers and board members will be elected, and awards will be made for outstanding service to the heart program.

Reservations may be made through the association at 2044 Fourth Street, San Rafael, before May 18.

Alto Volunteer Fire Unit Chairman Named

Albert Moore was named chairman of the Alto Volunteer Firemen Inc. last night at a meeting of the volunteers. He succeeds Everett Miles, temporary chairman, who took the post when Theron Halleck moved from the area.

State Nurses Would Sell Names

By EDWIN S. CAPPS
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — After the bales of stories that have been written about the bales of news releases distributed by state agencies, the state board of nurse examiners has come up with a new wrinkle — they want to sell to the press the information which used to be distributed.

The Capitol News Service, along with other news services and agencies, had been supplied over the years with a list of student nurses who had passed examinations and been licensed as registered nurses. Stories about new RN's often made interesting reading in their hometown papers.

Some months ago, the list of new nurses' names stopped coming. The staff of the board of nurse examiners was asked what had happened.

Miss Rosemary T. Hovorka, executive secretary, explained that, from now on, the lists would be available for about $16 a year. She explained that the master list of new nurses was made anyway but no copies were distributed without cost, except to state or federal agencies.

Miss Hovorka explained this policy had been adopted by the board of nurse examiners several months ago. And the policy of restricting information on nurses goes even further. Miss Hovorka and her staff will not give a person or firm the name and address of a licensed nurse.

"To the extent that anybody wants to know if a woman is a registered nurse, we will answer," Miss Hovorka said. "But if they ask for her license number, or address, we can't give it to them over the telephone or through the mail.

"We can't prevent you from coming into the office to see the records," she said.

Miss Hovorka indicated some of the reasoning behind the restrictions is a matter of economy and some is a reluctance to have nurses bothered.

"There are too many bill collectors chasing too many nurses as it is," she said.

James D. Loebl, director of the department of professional and vocational standards, of which the nurses' board is a part, is not at all in agreement with or happy with the nurses' board policy. However, the boards are autonomous and Loebl has only advisory powers.

"I think that the policy of not giving the names to the press is absolutely indefensible," Loebl said. "I advised them six months ago that, to the extent they have staff available, they have an obligation to make these public records available."

Intoxicated Driving Nets Fine, Probation

Eugene Clemens Schuette, 50, of Petaluma, drew $220 fine and one year probation yesterday for drunken driving.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court sentenced Schuette for driving while intoxicated along Highway 101 in Novato last April 5.

Most of the food and field crops now grown in the United States were established in Colonial America by the end of the 17th century.

WHAT ABOUT SAFETY?

California Liquor Capacity Would Float A Big City

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Californians drank enough liquor in 1960 to equal a six-day water supply for a city the size of Sacramento, the 10th annual Northern California Safety Congress was told yesterday.

The question before the panel was: "What to do with the drinking drivers?"

None of the six experts had a definite answer.

It was conceded that possibly 70 per cent of the populace engages in social drinking and that the individual who declines to drive because he has had one or more drinks is a rarity.

Inspecto D. A. Watkins of the California Highway Patrol noted that 8.4 per cent of 1961's fatal accidents involved drivers who were obviously drunk.

GOOD DESIGN—Sturdy construction and wide range of colors are featured in the Tropitone lacquered aluminum line of outdoor furniture for comfortable living by Steele's Patio Shop, Corte Madera. Welded frames and vinyl lacings are unaffected by weather and sun and are washable.

ON DISPLAY IN MARIN

Comfort, Durability Keys For Outdoor Living Furniture

Comfort and durability for outdoor living are combined in the Tropitone line of casual and patio furniture being displayed at Steele's Patio Shop, 2094 Redwood Highway, Corte Madera.

The colorful pieces, recently awarded an Apollo by the National Assn. of Furniture Manufacturers for the best in high-quality design, follow the popular trend toward the use of aluminum but are finished in 13 different colors of acrylic lacquer which proprietor Ed Steele claims is unaffected by weather, salt spray, sun or perspiration.

Closely woven vinyl lacings in seven color selections are also said to be weatherproof and are washable. Optional Tropi-Glass table tops in shades matching the chair lacings, at slightly more than regular glass, are recommended where freedom from breakage and injury is essential. The tops are resistant to hard usage and virtually unbreakable.

Manufactured by Tropitone Furniture Co., Inc., Sarasota, Fla., the award winning line is an exclusive in Marin with Steele's.

Another practical outdoor item being featured by the Corte Madera firm is a "relaxation folding chair" imported from France and designed to conform with medical association recommendations, known as the "Interlude."

In its tipped-back position the occupant's legs are slightly higher than the heart, said to be beneficial to full relaxation. A more erect position can be maintained by simply moving the body forward.

Fitted with canvas cover and rubber lacing, it folds and unfolds immediately and can be easily stowed away or in automobile trunk compartments.

'Improve Span Traffic, But Save Beauty'

Firm Comes Up With Counter Plan To Arches

Golden Gate Bridge traffic congestion can be relieved "without spoiling the beauty of the bridge" by unsightly signal-light arches, according to Lawrence Livingston Jr. and John A. Blayney, planning consultants.

The firm says the bridge directors' public hearing set for 10 a.m. May 10 in the district office, on the west side of the bridge toll plaza, "will be the last chance for individuals and organizations interested in preserving the beauty of the bridge to speak out against the arches."

It declares that district directors have clearly indicated that they will authorize the arches unless there is a strong expression.

Commending the basic idea of traffic reversal giving extra lanes in the direction of heavy flow, the statement endorses the Finch plan for rows of lights installed in lane markers.

This system is termed "relatively simple and inexpensive compared with the arches."

The firm says that in declaring arches the only practical solution, bridge directors have displayed a kind of thinking which 30 years ago would have menaced the construction of a bridge.

"Adding the arches to the bridge," says the statement, "would be akin to adding wings to the Statue of Liberty."

Dedication Set Sunday On First Center For Handicapped In Marin

To a handicapped child constantly bombarded by noises most ignore, a quiet room in which he can learn to talk is a necessity.

Sunday at 2 p.m. Rev. Dare Morgan, S.J., of the faculty of St. Ignatius High School in San Francisco, will dedicate Marin's first permanent center for the handicapped, children and adults.

Located at 629 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, the center was bought, renovated from basement up and equipped by the Marin Society for Crippled Children and Adults. It includes a basement center for adults equipped with art supplies, weaving looms and electronic training equipment.

Upstairs are training rooms in which the society's full-time professional therapist, William Roth, teaches children and adults.

The center will be open from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday for inspection by the public. See the Marin Magazine for a complete story on the society and its center.

The largest all-steel river boat in the U.S., the block-long Admiral, plies between St. Louis and New Orleans.

2 BECOME NEWEST CITIZENS OF MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Eskes of 538 Northern Avenue, Mill Valley, are Marin County's newest citizens.

Naturalized in San Francisco Tuesday among a group of 25 who helped the San Francisco Bar Assn.'s fifth annual observance of Law Day, they count themselves among Marin's happiest citizens as well.

They have found happy haven here after roaming the earth and suffering the horrors of Japanese captivity in Indonesia after the war.

Mrs. Eskes, whose name is Maria, terms Marin "a glorious place" and declines to listen to suggestions from her husband that her asthma might be less troublesome in a drier climate.

"The people are wonderful and more important than a little asthma," says she. Their four daughters now share their parents' liking for the new home although at first they were a little dubious, according to their mother.

Eskes, now with the international division of the Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco, also teaches German at College of Marin and is qualified to teach French. He additionally speaks Dutch and Malay as well as English.

Behind those qualifications is a colorful fast-moving life. Born in Indonesia, he lived there until the age of 11 when he returned to the Netherlands for his schooling. Then he went back to Indonesia to work for a Dutch bank.

Mrs. Eskes was born in the Netherlands but went to Indonesia because her father was a civil servant there.

Mr. and Mrs. Eskes were both interned when war struck the archipelago. It was only after the conflict ended that they met, because each had decided to help in the work of reconstruction.

Like her husband, Mrs. Eskes has banking experience and they met when she was serving a bank's accounting department. They were married in 1946 and went back to the Netherlands to recuperate from wartime suffering.

In 1947 they returned to the Far East but this time went to Singapore, which they left two years later to proceed up the China Coast to Hong Kong, where Eskes worked for an import-export firm.

The oldest daughter, Louise, 14, is a freshman at Tamalpais High School. The others are Elizabeth (who vastly prefers "Liz,"), 12, in the eighth grade; Nora, 11, sixth grade, and "the baby "Renee, 8, second grade.

First Concert Set For New Marin Choir

Madrigals and folk music will be sung at the first concert of the newly formed Marin Philharmonic Choir at 8:30 p.m. May 18 in San Rafael High School Auditorium.

Dr. S. Drummond Wolff will direct the choir in English and Italian madrigals, part songs, choruses and folk music he arranged. Over 20 composers will be represented on the program.

Marjorie Broughton, mezzo soprano from Corte Madera, will sing arias from "Carmen," "Samson and Deliah" and "Il Trovatore."

Duo piano music, including the Concerto for Two Pianos in C minor by Bach, will be played by Wolff and Larry A. Snyder, choir accompanist and member of the music faculty at College of Marin.

The choir, which was formed in November, includes over 50 members. The concert is sponsored by the Family Service League.

Kennedy Holds Party For Diplomats, Says Life Of An Envoy Pretty Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign diplomats sipped champagne and danced at a gay White House frolic, moving President John F. Kennedy to confide wistfully: "Ambassadors are happier sometimes than presidents, they can see more of the world."

As he chatted with Syrian Ambassador Omar Abou Riche the president perhaps was recalling the days when his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was serving as U.S. ambassador to London.

Kennedy had left the cares of the day in his nearby executive office to spend an hour and a half early last evening at the traditional White House reception for 277 members of the Washington diplomatic corps and top U.S. officials.

He and Mrs. Kennedy greeted each guest with a receiving line handshake in the State Dining Room and then mingled and chatted with them in the East Ballroom, where a lavish buffet table was set.

An unexpected scene-stealer at the 6 to 8 p.m. affair was the president's 4-year-old daughter Caroline.

Mrs. Kennedy wore a chartreuse crepe dress with a sash draped at the back.

The first lady had planned an innovation for the reception—dancing in the Blue Room with a Marine band jazz trio providing the music. But most of the guests preferred to stay in the East Ballroom where the Kennedys and the huge buffet table with food, fruit punch and champagne, were located.

Mrs. Kennedy was quick to correct the situation, however. She sent for the musicians to come to the ballroom and the dancing gaily went on in a corner of the room around a grand piano.

Among those who joined in was the new Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and his wife.

Sons Pulled Out Of Catholic High By Racist Mother

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mrs. B. J. Gaillot Jr., excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church for opposing parochial school integration, today said she will remove her two sons from a church-run high school and enroll them in a segregated public institution.

Parochial schools in New Orleans will be integrated next fall, and Mrs. Gaillot said she would rather her sons "had less education than to see them disobey God through such a grievous sin as integration."

Kenneth Gaillot, 16, and his brother, Donald 14, now attend Redemptorist (Catholic) High School.

Mrs. Gaillot said she mailed a letter today to Sister Carolen, the school's principal to inform her the boys would not go back to the school next fall.

Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel excommunicated Mrs. Gaillot, Leander H. Perez Sr., a southeast Louisiana political boss, and Jackson Ricau, an official of the South Louisiana Citizens Council, because of their protests against the archbishop's order desegregating all parochial schools under his jurisdiction next fall.

Mrs. Gaillot said her son Kenneth was only one credit shy of graduating. She said he would have returned next year to take additional subjects.

Donald Gaillot would have been a sophomore next fall.

In her letter Mrs. Gaillot told Sister Carolen, "I have been torn between my duty to give my son a Catholic education or, as I believe, permit them to go against God's law of segregations.

"After careful consideration, Mr. Gaillot and myself have decided Kenneth and Donald will not return to Redemptorist or any Catholic school," she said.

L.A. Welcomes Jobless Negro Group

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A little band of Negroes — jobless, friendless, almost penniless, rich only in hope—cast worried glances from their coach car at the city where they hoped to make a new life.

The 20 men, women and children were the first group sent to Los Angeles by the segregationist Citizens Council of New Orleans, and they weren't sure what kind of a reception they would find.

But frowns fled and smiles swept the anxious faces yesterday as their train halted amid a crowd of 75 gathered to show the newcomers how this city's Negro community felt about them.

"Welcome," cried a Negro minister. He thrust a hand at the leader of the newcomers, husky Peola Denham. "We welcome you."

Television cameras swung in on the coach door, microphones were thrust in Denham's face, cameras flashed, and the throng, almost all Negro, shouted greetings and waved signs of welcome.

"Thank you," said Denham. "Thank you."

The Travelers Aid Society lodged the new arrivals in a Los Angeles hotel, and said counselors would interview them today to help find jobs for them. Other groups also want to try and help them.

Denham, 51, father of 10 children, is a heavy equipment operator, and officials said he should be able to find work in the county's busy building industry.

The Urban League, City Employees Union Local 347, and church groups are also seeking to find work for the newcomers.

Of the 20 in the group, 16 expected to remain here. A woman and her three children said they would continue on to Oakland.

Lost Boat Towed Into Bay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The lost Pelican was towed into San Francisco Bay today by the Coast Guard, bringing a lucky ending to a 10-day misadventure that might have cost the lives of the boat's owner and his 13-year-old daughter.

With both engines broken down and food running short, Jeff L. Hodges, 35, and his daughter Sandra were the entire crew of the 107-foot ex-sub chaser in the 700-mile battering it took from the Pacific drifting down the coast from Gray's Harbor, Wash.

After Coast Guard vessels and aircraft had spent days searching for the Pelican, the craft was taken in tow by the cutter Taney yesterday 90 miles off Point Sur and towed some 175 miles into port here.

The Coast Guard said the search and tow "cost taxpayers thousands of dollars."

Hodges, a San Jose man who had ideas of going into the cargo carrying business with the old boat, said on arrival in San Francisco:

"We realized we were at the mercy of the seas. But I wasn't afraid, even though each day our food supplies dwindled. We had plenty of water. Mostly, I was just bored."

Sandra said "Sure, I was afraid, but he convinced me everything would be okay."

The girl, a slender brunette and her lean father were in good condition physically.

Before the Pelican left from Gray's Harbor April 22, the Coast Guard there inspected her and found the hull was badly in need of paint and had some bruised planks and other defects.

The Coast Guard report said the port engine was "inoperative and the starboard engine was running, but Hodges was having trouble with water leaks."

Since the boat is not in commercial service or engaged in cargo carrying, the Coast Guard had no authority to interfere with Hodges' voyage, which seamen generally recognized as risky because of the condition of the Pelican's engines and the fact that Hodges and the young girl made up the entire crew.

When the Pelican was in government service, she normally carried a crew of 15 to 25 men, the Coast Guard said.

3R School Getting New Classrooms

Ground was broken yesterday for a new $100,000 classroom building for 3R Schools Inc. at 3833 Redwood Highway, San Rafael.

The new 12-room structure will be the third school erected for the 3R Schools at the San Rafael site within four years. It will be completed in time for the fall semester, according to James W. Kirchanski, director of the schools.

The new building which will face Merrydale Road, will contain 10 classrooms, administrative offices, library and restrooms. It will be of concrete construction with brick facing to the wainscoat level. The existing buildings on the site will also be given brick facing, according to plans drawn by the builders, Clayton and Jacobson, Inc.

The 3R Schools started in 1955 in San Rafael as a remedial summer school, conducted in a five-room house. It expanded rapidly, becoming a fulltime, year-around school in the fall of 1958 when it occupied a rented store building in downtown San Rafael. The next fall, it moved to its present site.

Shell Steps Up GOP Campaign Race With Attacks On Both Nixon, Brown

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Shell in 11 appearances in San Francisco's Bay Area, yesterday, attacked both Richard M. Nixon, his chief GOP rival, and the Democratic administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The Los Angeles lawmaker heads north today for some political stomping at Napa, Ukiah, Cloverdale, Guerneville, Santa Rosa and Healdsburg.

"You have to get down to brass tacks about the operation of state government, and what you stand for," he said in San Francisco.

Shell said he doesn't know where Nixon stands on state issues and added that the former vice president "talks at great length about Mr. Khrushchev and foreign affairs."

The comments were made in San Mateo and Alameda counties and later at a talk to San Francisco Young Republicans.

Turning to Governor Brown, Shell said the state's taxpayers face a 200-million-dollar tax boost in 20 months unless the administration halts what Shell called a spending spree.

Nixon, in a speech last night before the Sunset Young Republicans at Los Angeles, called the state's contract with the Squaw Valley Improvement Corp. "shabby" and suggested it be canceled.

He said Squaw Valley shenanigans constitute what he described as "government by crony." William A. Newsom, holder of the contract, is a former Brown appointee.

Meantime, Brown campaigned on his record, linking the growth rate of California industry to the state's education system. In an address prepared for delivery today before a Monterey Park Rotary Club luncheon, he said the state by turning out scientists and technicians gets an investment 40 times over throughout a college graduate's life.

Owners of California's nine million motor vehicles paid a record 264.4 million dollars in license and registration fees last year.

12 Outstanding Marin High School Athletes Honored

The United States should develop more opportunity for track and field athletes to perform after graduation from school, "but we shouldn't subsidize," Jim Terrill, asst. director of track at Stanford said last night.

Terrill was guest speaker at the fourth annual Radio Station KTIM Sportsman's Banquet at the Bermuda Palms in San Rafael. Honored were the 12 top athletes from six Marin High Schools:

Joe Colfer and Don Scribner of Novato; Ken Frost and Jay Johnson of Redwood; Paul Kruger and Jerry Smith of Marin Catholic; Ron Foster and Paul Farren of Tamalpais; Mark Boero and Rich Bottini of Sir Francis Drake, and Jay Lathrop and Bruce MacPhail of San Rafael.

Terrill talked on the track meet which is probably the hottest international meet on the books—United States vs. Russia—scheduled for July 21 and 22 at Stanford University.

"Russian athletes are dedicated to do the best possible job they can," Terrill said. The track mentor declared the Soviet track stars are looking forward to coming to California.

"And they all want to go to Disneyland," he mused.

Terrill said the Russians are perfectionists in their athletics. "In Russia, they will find a place similar to Palo Alto in weather for training just prior to the meet," he said.

Stanford Stadium will probably be filled to its 90,000 capacity for the "big meet," Terhill predicted. He added that the entire Bay Area will be blacked out from television for the meet.

Colfer was tailback on the Novato 1961 Marin County Athletic League championship football team, captain of the Hornet basketball team, first string infielder of the Novato varsity baseball team, and All-MCAL basketball player. Don Scribner was quarterback for the champion Hornets and the I-J's All-Marin County football team; he also played varsity basketball and is an infielder on the varsity baseball team.

Ken Frost of Redwood last year was named an All-American prep swimmer and continues to break county swim records in the breaststroke, as one of the best swimmers in the state. He also is president of the Redwood student body. The Giants' Jay Johnson was named to the All-MCAL 1961-62 basketball team, set a new season total in individual scoring and was among the top five Northern California prep point makers throughout the season.

Paul Kruger of Marin Catholic was an All-MCAL football end and member of the Wildcats' varsity basketball team; Jerry Smith was an All-MCAL basketball player and has been one of the county's most consistently skilled shooters and playmakers during the past four years. He presently is a star shortstop in baseball.

Paul Farren of Tamalpais was a member of the Indians' football team, played varsity basketball and is president of the school's student body. Ron Foster was a consistently effective backfielder on the Tam football team.

Mark Boero played both as a lineman on the Sir Francis Drake varsity football team and as a guard on the basketball team. He is one of the county's most competitive prep athletes. Rich Bottini of Drake, as a halfback, was one of the most spectacular and productive runners during the grid season. He was named to the I-J's All-Marin grid team.

Jay Lathrop of San Rafael is the best miler in Marin and has recently turned in one of the best times in Northern California. Bulldog Bruce MacPhail was an end for the San Rafael Bulldogs and one of the most consistent playmakers as leader of the school's varsity MCAL 1961-62 champion basketball team, and a member of the All-MCAL hoop squad. He is also on the San Rafael track team.

Is Jack Sanford Really As Mean As His Glower At The Batters?

HANLEY

Some experts insist they can read a man's character by watching his eyes. We would like to see them analyze Jack Sanford's baby blue eyes, icy cold during a ball game, warm as an angel's kiss at any other time.

Sanford's forbidding stare, coupled with tight set lips, makes him seem like a monster on the mound to enemy batters. Anyone who has caught him on TV while he is at work knows how Sanford can glower.

Because he does hit batters, Sanford's angry glare is not considered a simulated thing by the men who must face him. He regards every man with a bat his personal enemy. However, that does not necessarily imply Sanford would intentionally do serious injury to any of them.

"I NEVER deliberately tried to hit a batter in my life," says the strong Giant righthander, "and I never will. Sure, I know they believe I throw at them, at least some of them do. But all I am doing is protecting myself with tight pitches.

"Brush back pitches are perfectly legitimate and they are the only means a pitcher has in keeping big belters loose at the plate instead of digging in."

Nobody in the crowd of 40,973—at least nobody with a charitable thought — believed Sanford deliberately threw at Cub rookie second baseman Ken Hubbs Sunday. Sanford was more shaken by the scene of the rookie in the dirt, felled by a pitch that struck him in the left ear, than anyone in the crowd.

"Why would I throw at the second batter to face me, especially a rookie, just after I struck out the first man?" asked Sanford. "Hubbs momentarily froze. If he hadn't, he would have had plenty of time to get out of the way of the pitch.

"IT WAS A horrifying experience seeing him on the ground. I'm as happy as everyone else that he wasn't seriously hurt."

In his four years with the Giants there hasn't been a season when Sanford hasn't plunked the hard-hitting Cub home run king, Ernie Banks. However, even with this reputation of always pitching tight to Banks, there wasn't one Cub who felt Sanford was responsible for the near-tragic decking of Hubbs.

The fact there was no attempted retaliation by Cub pitchers was silent but nevertheless convincing evidence they held Sanford blameless.

A reputation of being a mean pitcher such as Sanford has does not disturb him. Why? Because Sanford is not unduly concerned about what other players think of him.

"IT'S MORE important," he says, "what an individual thinks of himself. I guess the only person who really knows what is in a person's heart is that person himself. And, regardless of what anyone else might think, I don't throw deliberately at anyone."

In addition to being a hard-throwing pitcher Sanford revealed himself to be somewhat of a realistic philosopher with that statement.

Novato Hornets Smack Drake Pirates, 4-3

Novato third baseman Tom Miller worked like a hornet yesterday in pacing his Novato High baseball teammates in a 4-3 licking of favored Sir Francis Drake High.

Miller turned in some outstanding defensive play, started Drake's rally by pushing the Hornets a run ahead in the fourth inning when he belted in second baseman Joe Colfer on a clean single, and got two hits for three times at bat.

Colfer grabbed the winning team's only other RBI with a single in the first inning. Drake scored in the bottom of the fourth on Novato errors and earlier in the second. The winning runs came in the sixth for Novato when Don Scribner hit into errors by Drake to tally two Hornets.

Hale stayed with the final frame's pressure, striking out two men and forcing another to ground out for a victory. Losing pitcher was Gary Goodall of Drake.

Outstanding defensive play was performed by Miller, Nick Willard, shortstop of Drake and Hornet Ron Rowell, catcher. Hustling for Drake defensively was Terry Tadlock, shortstop, and Larry Kline, second base.

Marin Athletic League championships at Tamalpais, 9:30 a.m. heats, 2 p.m. finals.

Norm Cash set a record for a Detroit left-handed hitter when he poled 41 home runs in 1961. Charley Maxwell, his teammate, had the former record of 31 in one season.

ABOUT THE GIANTS

Pitching, Defense, Power Win Recipe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National League leading San Francisco demonstrates baseball's sure formula for success —stingy pitching, heavy hitting and flawless fielding.

Going into today's home stand finale against the Pittsburgh Pirates, with the Giants' Jack Sanford facing Alvin McBean on the mound, San Francisco had won eight straight games — the most since the club moved West in 1958. Sanford is 2-2 on the season, McBean is 3-0.

Six consecutive starting hurlers had gone the route, fielders hadn't made an error in their last 324 chances and Giant hitters had homered in 16 straight games.

Willie Mays smashed the latest one yesterday, a tremendous 400-foot-plus clout in the sixth inning for the margin of a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh. The belt sent right-hander Juan Marichal to his fourth victory of the season.

No opposing pitcher has gone the route against San Francisco in the 22 games of 1962.

"It's way, way, way too early in the season. It would be different in September with, say, two games between the top two clubs. We still have 140 games left to play."

In their six complete performances, the Giant hurlers have given up only seven runs and neither Bill O'Dell on Tuesday nor Marichal yesterday issued a walk.

Already this season, Giants have hit 31 homers with Mays leading the club and the majors with eight, followed by Orlando Cepeda with seven and Ed Bailey with six. For the season, Mays is only .260. But he has hit safely in the last six games with a .400 average.

After his homer off Earl Francis, Willie observed, "I don't think I have hit one harder in Candlestick Park, unless it was one against Don Drysdale of the Dodgers last year."

As a club, the Giants are hitting nearly 40 points higher than during the first 22 games of 1961 as they stand at .291. So actually Mays is hitting below average on the club.

At home, the Giants have posted a 13-2 record with 4-3 on the road for their leading 17-5 total.

Pittsburgh jumped into a first inning lead as Bob Skinner clouted his third homer of the year, a two-run poke over the right field fence.

"He hit a high slider that was supposed to be a low slider," Marichal explained. "After they got those two runs, I didn't feel so good. You have to keep them right there. They got two too early."

Until the fifth, Francis had not allowed a hit. Then Felipe Alou undercut a sky high, windblown fly that dropped for a single to the right of the pitcher's mound as third baseman Dick Schofield lost it. Jose Pagan doubled home a run and scored on Jimmy Davenport's single.

18 Enter Ky. Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Eighteen finely tuned 3-year-old thoroughbreds, headed by the favored Sir Gaylord and the well-liked Ridan, were named today for the 88th running of the $125,000—added Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday.

No more than 17 of the horses, however, are expected to face the starter, Cicada, who like Sir Gaylord comes from C. T. Chenery's Meadow Stable, was entered as insurance against something happening to the stable's star.

L. C. Sternberger decided not to enter Doc Jocey, winner of Santa Anita's San Felipe Stakes and the California Derby at Tanforan. A surprise was the entry of Lee Town from the J. V. P. Stable of J. V. Pischieri of Hinchley, Ohio.

Doc Jocey suffered a slight heel bruise yesterday and Sternberger said he didn't think it would be fair to the horse to run in such a tough race.

$122,150 FOR WIN

With 17 starters the value of the race will be $164,650. The winner will earn $122,150 for his slightly more than two-minute effort.

There was a possibility that Verne Winchell Jr.'s Donut King will be scratched.

The 1961 Champagne winner has been bothered with a sore in the left hind heel.

Winchell said he would wait 48 hours before making a definite decision but trainer Ron McAnally said he was against running the colt.

It cost $250 to enter a horse this morning and another $1,250 to get into the starting gate. Nomination fees of $100 each were paid originally on 139 horses.

As the advance guards of the expected crowd of 100,000 poured into this horse-minded city, Sir Gaylord and Ridan were the chief topic of conversation.

They'll go to the post the heavily played choices with the possibility Sir Gaylord will wind up in the neighborhood of even money.

The favorites, however, were not fortunate in the draw for post position. Casey Hayes, trainer of Sir Gaylord and Cicada, assisted in the ceremony but ended up with No. 16 for Cicada and No. 17 for Sir Gaylord. Ridan drew No. 14.

Here are the entries in order of post positions: Sharp Count, Sunrise County, Admiral's Voyage, Decidedly, Sir Ribot, Green Hornet, Lee Town, Donut King, Royal Attack, Mister Pitt, Touch Bar, Crimson Satan, Good Fight, Ridan, Roman Line, Cicada, Sir Gaylord and Prego.

Eli Grba of the Los Angeles Angels plans to pitch without glasses this spring. In 1955, when he last hurled without glasses, he compiled a 17-6 record for San Jose in the California League.

Marin Kids To Test New Type Helmets

Thanks to the Snell Memorial Foundation, the Tiburon Peninsula Little League will be using a new, safer batter's helmet this season, according to Charles T. Estudillo, league president.

The foundation was organized following the fatal racing crash at Arcata when Pete Snell, well known Bay Area racing driver, died from head injuries. It is internationally known for its research in the field of brain damage and protective headgear and will turn over to the Tiburon group at opening game ceremonies on Saturday 32 new style helmets for field testing.

William F. Carroll, past president of the league and Estudillo have been working closely with the foundation to develop a helmet for Little League players which will give more adequate protection against brain injury than those now on the market. To protect the players helmets must be capable of absorbing 70-80 pounds of energy without transmitting these forces to the head, according to Dr. George B. Snively of Sacramento, director of research for the foundation. Dr. Snively has tested these new helmets at the University of California at Davis and says they meet this requirement.

Belvedere resident Roderick A. Aya, a director of the Snell Foundation, has also been active in the development of the helmet. With two boys of his own, one in Little League and one in Pony League, he has been concerned with the inadequacy of the head protection. Aya asserts that certain well-known brand name helmets manufactured for Little League use will not protect the head against even 20 foot pounds of energy.

As chief safety inspector for the San Francisco Region of the Sports Car Club of America in 1955-1956, he was one of the moving forces behind Dr. Snively's investigative tests of racing crash helmets.

The Snell Foundation, formed to continue research in this field, has developed crash helmet standards which have been adopted by major automotive racing associations in this country and in Canada and is a United States delegate to the International Standards Organization committee concerned with developing international standards for protective head devices.

The U. S. Armed Forces, National Ski Assn. and other groups have availed themselves of the research and testing facilities of the foundation.

For some time the foundation has been workiing with the athletic department of the University of California in the development of a football helmet designed to protect against the rising incidence of fatal head injuries sustained in that sport.

The foundation's work is carried on with the aid of financial grants from the U. S. Public Health Service and private contributions.

Opening ceremonies for Tiburon will start at 9 a.m. at Judge Field. Boy Scout Troop 9 will conduct the flag raising ceremonies and Carroll will welcome the players.

Yanks, Giants Look Alike

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The fellow who said lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place never heard of the San Francisco Giants and New York Yankees.

With the Giants and Yankees it seems that home run lightning strikes day after day . . . sometimes early . . . but more often in the late innings. Both lineups are loaded with whiplash-but-swinging sluggers and there's just no telling when or where the blow will come.

The National and American league front runners did it again yesterday to run their winning streaks to eight and seven games, respectively. The Giants now lead the N.L. by 1½ games while the Yankees have opened up an early 2½-length margin.

Willie Mays rocketed his eighth homer of the season halfway up the left field seats at Candlestick Park in the sixth inning to give the Giants a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The winning streak is the longest the Giants have achieved since they transferred from New York to San Francisco in 1958.

Chicago White Sox rookie Joe Horlen had the Yankees beaten, 3-2, entering the ninth inning but suddenly found himself a 4-3 loser after throwing only two pitches. Yogi Berra hit the first one for a double and Elston Howard hit the next one for a game-winning two-run homer.

What makes the Giants and Yankees look even stronger is the powerful pitching each has been getting from a so-called questionmark staff.

Ralph Terry was tagged for three White Sox' runs in six innings but then Sheriff Jim Coates took over to throttle the Sox on one hit during the last three innings. Bobby Richardson ran his hitting streak to 17 straight games for the Yankees and Al Smith had three of the White Sox' four hits.

The St. Louis Cardinals scored a 4-1 victory over the Houston Colts and the Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-1, in other N.L. games. The Kansas City Athletics outslugged the Detroit Tigers, 12-8, and the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5, in the other A.L. action. Four major league games were rained out.

Former Harlem Globetrotter Bob Gibson struck out nine and walked only one in beating the Colts for the second straight time. Bill White homered and Julio Gotay had three hits to lead the nine-hit Cardinal attack that dealt Ken Johnson, who fanned 10, his fourth loss in a row. Jim Pendleton homered for Houston.

Bob Buhl, in his first start since being obtained from Milwaukee, allowed two hits in six innings to snap the Cubs' seven-game losing streak. Strike-out king Sandy Koufax whiffed eight in 6⅓ innings but committed a key error preceding a two-run double by Andre Rodgers in the fourth inning. Sandy's first strikeout of the night raised his career total to 1,000.

Titans Want To Talk To R. C. Owens

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Titans of the American Football League say they have invited ex-San Francisco Forty-Niner R. C. Owens to come here to discuss signing with the Titans.

Owens, a star end and flanker wit hthe Forty-Niners, was declared a free agent by the Forty-Niners Tuesday after salary discussions broke down.

Owens reported that a half-dozen teams were dickering for his service, but Titans owner Harry Wismer was quoted as saying he was prepared to go "quite some lengths" to get Owens.

Oakland Woman Sets Bowling Mark

LA HABRA (UPI) — Ruby Chong, Oakland, today claimed a new women's world open bowling classic record for 20 games single play.

Miss Chong scored 4,204 for 20 consecutive games and an average of 210. She achieved the feat today at the La Habra 300 Bowl.

Both Bantamweights Predict A Win Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—World bantamweight champion Eder Jofre, the little slugger from Brazil, and challenger Herman Marquez, a smooth California boxer, both predict victory tomorrow night.

They've concluded their heavy training for the 15-round match at the Cow Palace with only limbering exercises and the weigh-in remaining.

Through an interpreter, Jofre said he has no strategy for the bout but would wait to see the type of attack Marquez throws.

Marquez called a halt to boxing a day earlier and also was sharp. Throughout his training, his talk has centered on "when I win" with little thought of losing.

Jofre has won 41 fights, including 31 by knockout, and drawn in three.

The challenger, a longshoreman in Stockton, has a 20-7-1 record.

Jofre, a European-style boxer, keeps boring in under a high, peek-a-boo guard., often leading with a stiff jab. He seems equally at home punching to the head or body. Frequently he jarred Perez during the sparring sessions.

Marquez moves rapidly, throwing a steady barrage but not looking too much for a knockout opening. In his sparring sessions, he carried his guard lower than Jofre and worked both against a bantamweight and a lightweight.

The weigh-in and final physical examinations are scheduled for noon tomorrow.

New Manager For Hub '9'

D. J. "Dom" Boccabella, veteran San Anselmo semi-professional baseball figure, has resigned the post of manager of the Ongaro Plumbers team of the Hub City, he announced today.

Boccabella said the new manager will be Bob Johnston, another veteran ball player who has been associated with the Ongaro team off and on for the past several years.

Johnston will hold initial tryouts of the 1962 season Sunday at San Anselmo's Memorial Park starting at 10 a.m. "Veteran Ongaro players and newcomers alike are invited to try out for our team," Johnston said.

State Probe Underway Into Kid Paret Death

NEW YORK (AP)—An investigation of boxing touched off by the death of former welterweight champion Benny Kid Paret has gotten underway with closed session interviews of principals in the fatal Paret-Emile Griffith title fight.

ACE TOURNEY IN HUB CITY THIS WEEKEND

Drake Benchwarmers will sponsor a hole-in-one golf tournament on the Drake High School athletic field at San Anselmo this weekend.

Golfers will be firing for aces and cash and merchandise prizes from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday.

Proceeds from the tourney will be used by the Benchwarmers to bolster their scholarship fund and to pay for the traditional spring athletic banquets.

First prize for the hole-in-one event will be $50 in cash plus a trophy. Second place will be worth $25 and third place $15. In addition, there will be six merchandise awards.

Pete Maggi Jr. is the tournament chairman.

Baseball Slaughter

MORAGA (UPI) — St. Mary's clbbered Moffett Field, 19-1, yesterday in a non-league baseball game mercifully cut to seven innings. The Gaels scored 10 runs in the first inning.

Trout In Headlines, But Salmon, Bass Addicts Still Quite Busy

STEVENS

No doubt but what tidings of trout make headlines at t his start of the season, but we still have a flock of eager anglers who confine their activities to the local bass and salmon fishing, so let's leave the trout forecasts to the always authentic report from the P.G.&E. scouts which follows my report.

There seems to be a rash of small fish in the bays at present. A limit of keepables is rather rare, but there has been lots of action at China Camp and Joe's Launching on the Marin side of the bay as well as the Contra Costa side. It has been fair in the lower bay and the Oakland Estuary, and poor in the Suisun Bay.

Best bet unquestionably has been in the back country. Mrs. Patrick of Patrick's Resort at Three Mile Slough reported 39 nice bass from 10 skiffs out on Monday, on bait. Louie Patrick was up to his old tricks trolling the San Joaquin on Sunday, with limits to 14 pounds in an hour and 20 minutes. Ditto on Saturday and on Monday. Louie, with two friends, landed limits of nice bass.

SALMON TROLLING may have picked up. Over my Halicrafter, on Tuesday, the skippers were more optimistic than they have been for several days. One boat had eight salmon in the box at 10 a.m., another had five and others had three or four. Boats were working off Double Point and out toward the Farallones.

Just heard from Nadine Lessley of Dowrelio's Harbor at Crockett. She reported the best weekend for several weeks. Not many anglers showed up and not many limits, but an average of two fish per rod and all fair sized bass.

So now—scan the P. G. & E. forecast and plan that trout trip.

HUMBOLDT COUNTY — Trout season closed until May 26 in Humboldt and Del Norte counties and Mad River drainage. Freshwater Lagoon open, fair on steelhead and cutthroat.

MENDOCINO - LAKE COUNTIES—Eel River drainage, except Lake Pillsbury, closed until May 26. Lake Pillsbury almost full, clear, good. Lake Mendocino murky, fair. Clear Lake fair to good. Buying Boat? Better Leave Lady Home

MARIN PROP WASH

By ELEANOR FREEMAN

When a certain gentleman made the crack about this being the era that had gone from barbarism to decadency without having approached civilization, he varnished himself into a hot controversial corner. But he may have just returned from a Sunday's "pleasure" drive in his automobile. And this could drive anyone into making a snide remark. So, how about purchasing a small boat for your weekend pleasure?

Thousands of Marin County residents are already enjoying this less hazardous recreation. Waterways stretch in every direction. The weather is accommodating, and there is natural beauty and vast fishing grounds.

There are many capable and qualified boat dealers in Marin. These salesmen are masters of controlled emotions and are able to keep a straight face when your wife breaks into his sales pitch with, "I just knew it. No brakes!" She is peering into the boat in female triumph. She hates boats. She has said so, unequivocally and often.

YOU HAVE brought her along because you have integrity and believe she should have a voice in a family-purchase of this magnitude. But now you're beginning to think you shouldn't have been so noble. Your two teen-age kids are at home, waiting to hear you've bought a boat. Any boat. "When your mother sees one up close she won't be able to resist it," you told them before you left.

But now five boats have been reviewed, she is still resisting.

At this point the smarty-pie salesman will quickly sense the "bottleneck" and lead your wife to that 18-foot deluxe sports craft. The one with the beautifully taut-winged form that proclaims speed, S-P-E-E-D, SP-EEEEEE-D! "Perfectly lovely, isn't it? Especially manufactured for the woman who knows sophistication when she sees it." He points out the off-white pleated plastic interior, and the tachometer's jeweled hands. Then he demonstrates the recessed, monogrammed powder compact and cigarette lighter.

Stepping back she ogles the hull. It's pink. Not just any old pink, but one calculated to entrance and hypnotize the most prejudiced (pig-headed) wife.

NOW THIS leaves you and the salesman free to go about the business of selecting a boat best suited to your family's needs. "What are you most interested in," he queries, "lots of power and high skiing speed? Or how about the lazy comfort of cruising and camping? Here's your answer. It has a canvas top and a good planing hull for reasonable speeds." He pats the 35 h.p. motor affectionately.

But you want all the best features in one boat and motor, and he thumps his forehead in frustration. "Let's be realistic, mister. That's impossible. Just try to remember this simple rule: A boat designed for high speed performance is usually objectionably hard on the posterior. And a nice, soft ride usually means a poky craft."

He tells you that basically, there are three hull forms — round, flat and V. Each has its characteristics of advantage and limitation. The flat-bottom is least in cost, but the most unstable. It should be used in sheltered waters. Wrestling should never be attempted in it. And not more than three duck hunters should shoot from it simultaneously, all leaning to port at the same time.

IT CAN powered by a small outboard motor, or rowed. This type of muscle-propulsion used to be popular, and carried an aura of sentimentally-oriented prestige. Today, the rower is instantly classed as a sweaty, profane boater—out of gas.

Both the round-bottom and flat-bottom hulls are slow. They push through the water and are efficient up to a certain hull speed. At that point, opening the throttle further is a waste of fuel and actually causes the stern to go down and, like Little Toot's, the bow pops up. If the stern goes down enough, the conclusion is inevitable, and wet.

So the salesman shows you a couple of fishing boats. You look, politely, knowing you want more speed and oomph. Furthermore, you don't like duck. The dealer has you sized-up by now, and he takes you out in a classy, red, slightly-used runabout. Your wife stays behind, reading a brochure on the pink dream-boat.

THE SMARTIE-PIE salesman lets you bring the boat back. It's great! Not too expensive. You nod, this is it.

"Terms or cash?" he asks, back in the office. Before you can open your mouth, a voice chimes in.

"Terms," says your starry-eyed wife.

"But we've saved cash for it—" you remonstrate.

"Not nearly enough for this one, dear—" and she is pointing to the pink speedster. The one with the subtly tucked-in price tag.

QUESTION: I keep my 16-foot fiberglassed boat in salt water. Is it necessary to paint the bottom with a marine growth resistant formula?

J. R., Larkspur

Yes. Sometimes one month can foul your boat's hull enough to throw your speed off by 10 mph. Another month and it might not be able to waddle up on a plane.

QUESTION: I would like to try Tomales Bay for weekend boating. Where can I drop my boat in?

A. C., Mill Valley

There is an excellent County ramp on the east shore of Tomales Bay, next to Nick's Cove. Restroom facilities and picnic tables are provided. For a small fee, there are several excellent winch-type launchings to be found in the Marshall area and on the west shore.

Marinwood To Open League On Saturday

A car caravan through the community tomorrow night and ceremonies plus a double-header Saturday will launch Marinwood's fifth Little League baseball season, announced league publicist Albert Leibovitz yesterday.

Saturday's festivities will commence at 9 a.m. when all 11 teams in the league will be presented in full team uniforms at the Mary E. Silveira School field.

League secretary-treasurer Mrs. Bettie J. Lebovitz will present the league with a new scoreboard; Don Thieler, principal of Silveira School, will be introduced as guest of honor by league president Norman E. Grose; and Thieler will pitch the first ball.

The opening game of the season will match the Braves and Tigers at 10 a.m. and at 2 p.m. the Gnats will battle the Seals.

The newly-formed Marinwood Little League Women's Auxiliary will inaugurate a concession stand at the field which will serve hot and cold drinks and confectioneries.

San Rafael, Novato Tied For 1st In MCAL Track Race

The San Rafael Bulldogs worked for a 60-53 win against Tamalpais Tuesday to lock horns with the Novato Hornets for top spot in the Marin County Athletic League dual track and field race.

The two leaders meet in a sudden death meet for the title May 9.

The Bulldog Bs cinched a loop tie for first by winning Tuesday 69½ to 43½ and the Cs won 41-30.

Coach Bill O'Bayley credited Tuesday's varsity victory with depth running by his athletes, who stacked the extra points by capturing many second and third places.

Jim Palmateer of San Rafael ran a 1:59.7 half-mile to rack up the fastest clocking on the coast north of San Francisco this season, and miler Jay Lathhop went his distance in a sizzling 4:24.3 to place himself among the top five Northern prep runners this week. Mike Shafer continued to better his MCAL record in the 440 with a 49 flat win. Both of his opponents Bill Gillingham of Tam and Don Stevens of San Rafael turned in times under Shafer's 1961 record, and the three fastest in the county this year.

Ellis Williams was a triple winner for Tam capturing the 100 dash in a healthy 10.1 seconds, the broad jump with a commendable 20 feet, 8 inches and the 220 in 23 seconds flat.

Pole vaulter Eugene Kern of San Rafael turned in a 11-6 leap to unofficially break a MCAL record and tie Redwood's Kim Kruzberger this year. The Giant made the mark Monday.

Other varsity winners: 120 high hurdles, Jim Spears (T), 15.8; 180 low hurdles, Spears (T), 20.2; shot, Denis Nickle (SR), 48-1; discus, Nickle, 134-4; high jump, Art Foster, (T), 5-9; relay, Tam, 1:34.

Nicasio Team Wins Softball Opener

Nicasio Bisons opened their 1962 softball season Tuesday night with a 9-4 victory over San Rafael Post Office.

The pitching of Dick Johnson and strong hitting of Frank Ratto, Scott Irving, Bob Thompson and Buzz Keaton led the Bisons. Leading batters for the losers were John Coleman and C. Giambastiani.

Fire Service Day Set Saturday

Marin County, San Rafael, Terra Linda and Ross Fire Departments will observe Fire Service Day with open houses and displays on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

At the Terra Linda and San Rafael No. 2 fire houses, children will be given rides on the engines, it was announced. Terra Linda firemen will also serve refreshments.

Open houses and displays of equipment will be held at all four Marin County Fire Department stations in Marin City, Throckmorton Ridge on Mount Tamalpais, Point Reyes and Woodacre.

The three San Rafael fire houses are at Fifth and C Streets, Third and Union Streets and on Joseph Court. Fire engine rides will be given children, who must be accompanied by parents, at the Montecito Shopping Center opposite Station No. 2.

The famous "Neanderthal slouch," believed to be the posture of the 50,000-year-old forerunner of modern man, might actually have been caused by arthritis, a common condition of the time.

Artist Reproduces Old Chinese Scrolls

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Mill Valley and China would seem to have very little in common. But on one occasion last week they did have for a fleeting moment.

Glancing out of the window of her home by the stream in Cascade Canyon, Angela Minutoli Haines was astonished to see a buck and three does in almost the same composition she was working on in one of her replicas of ancient Chinese scrolls.

Making these replicas to be used in home decor or just for private collections is one of the latest projects of this gifted artist, who is known for her murals and portraits and other form of art.

"MANY OF the hanging scrolls have not been seen in the Occident," she said, "beucause they were part of the collection of the Imperial Palace and the Dowager Empress and are now in the custody of the Nationalist Chinese.

"Fortunately they may now be seen in an exhibit that started at the De Young Museum in San Francisco on Monday.

"The scrolls are believed to have meen produced under the Liao Dynasty of Khiton Tartars who controlled the north of China at that time.

THESE PAINTINGS cannot be found in private collections —only in museums—and this is what prompted me to study and reproduce them for individual ownership when I first saw them in this country through the efforts of Albert Skira.

"An their story is quite interesting," she went on. "Andre Malraux, French art critic, states that our view of the Chinese painting available in the past was through Japanese interpretation, rather than the more highly developed and pertinent ideas of the Chinese.

IN THE ESTHETIC theory of the Chinese, painting serves to express the thought and feeling of the individual man instead of making any descriptive statement on the world about him.

"This view," she explained, "which is so completely relevant to 20th Century art, is what prompted me to delve into the study, since I am essentially a modern abstract painter."

A native San Franciscan, Angela Minutoli was graduated from the University of California with a bachelor of arts degree, and she continued her studies at the California school of fine arts—now the Art Institute of San Francisco.

The famous sculptor Beniamino Buffano was so impressed with her talent that he encouraged her to go on with art professionally. Two of his pieces—a cat and a torso in black granite—occupy honored places in her living room.

SHE HAD her first one-man show at Paul Elder's in San Francisco and for some time did flower paintings for Gump's. Her work is in a number of private collections, including that at Mills College.

As the wife of Capt. Nathan Starr Haines (U.S. N. ret.), whom she married when she was in her junior year at Cal, Angelina Haines has traveled a great deal, exhibiting in many of the places, including the Seattle Art Museum. During one period when they were in Alaska she taught art there.

TODAY she leads a busy life as a professional artist and homemaker and mother of two daughters, Marina Edith, 14, who attends St. Brigid's School, and Jolie Andrea, 7, a pupil at Old Mill School. She maintains a studio on Russian Hill in San Francisco.

Interior decorator Mrs. S. Carlisle Martin, also of Mill Valley, is using some of Mrs. Haines' Chinese scrolls as focal points in decor to set color schemes.

Oven Is The Cook

Homemakers can automatically control when food is done and how it is done with a new over control system. Once the new system is set, it automatically starts cooking, cooks the food to the precise temperature selected, signals with a 30-minute advance countdown as cooking nears completion, and holds the finished food at a keep-warm level as long as necessary. The manufacturer said this gives the homemaker complete freedom to decide the exact serving time.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Lee of San Rafael are entertaining at a dinner party Saturday night to which they've invited 16 guests. The Lees recently returned from 10 days at Sun Valley. They flew there and were joined at Sun Valley Lodge by Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Fournier of San Francisco who drove to Idaho.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK PAGANINI flew back Saturday night from a glorious holiday in Hawaii where they were feted on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary by their longtime friends, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Petri of San Francisco. The two couples with the Paganinis' two children, Paula and David, and Candice Cooper, a Dominican student, whose parents, the Jack Coopers of San Rafael were in the islands for six weeks, flew to Hawaii April 12.

The Paganini family and the Petris stayed in the luxurious Leihiki suite atop the Surfrider in Honolulu. The suite is generally taken by Frank Sinatra when he is in Hawaii but he stayed at the Royal Hawaiian this time.

The anniversary party, attended by 32 guests, took place in the suite. The dinner was catered and the rooms were banked with anthuriums. Among the guests were Paul and Celia Spengler, former residents of Ross, who now have a home in Honolulu. The Spenglers had made arrangements with a photographer to take pictures at the anniversary party and the pictures in an album were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Paganini.

Also at the dinner were the Coopers. The J. William Zimmermans of Kentfield missed the party as they had flown home two days before after a long vacation in Hawaii. The Petris are going back to the islands in June and hope that on their return their out-of-this world penthouse at 1080 Chestnut St. will be completed. The Petris have taken over the entire top floor of the tall community apartment house and the rooms have been built according to their specifications.

Bill and Margaret Zimmerman saw a number of former Marinites who now live in the islands. The Don Flemings own a beautiful home near the Waialae Golf Club in Honolulu. The Flemings had a home in Kent Woodlands. The Zimmermans also visited with the Ed Fordes who lived in San Rafael and now have a home in Kailua. The Arthur Allens, who divide their time between Ross and Hawaii, were in their apartment in Honolulu. The Coopers visited them there.

Mr. and Mrs. MacBoyle Lewis of Belvedere are staying in a house they've rented on Maui for a month. Their daughter, Molly, a senior at Miss Hamlin's, was with them for the Easter vacation then flew back after 10 days at Waikiki.

MEMBERS OF the graduating class at Ross School are giving a series of parties. One group of girls will entertain at a semi-formal dance at the Lagunitas Club May 12. Hostesses will be Nancy Dickson, Debby Foerster, Lee Lonaker, Licia Hayden, Alice Allen, Pam Rowland, Valerie Rayburn, Melanie Blaskower, Joanne Parente and Constance Griffith.

On May 26 another group of girls in the class will give a barn dance at the barn at Marin Art and Garden Center. Entertaining will be Kate Rothrock, Karen Wolfson, Linda Beeson, Kathy Mills, Susan de Fremery, Marta Osterlow, Caroline Cox, Karen Beatie, Liz Margoliash, Sue Vanderoof, Caroline Cox, Lisa Diamond, Ricky Zoellner, Gail Gutman, Judy Owens, Pat Abbott and Leslie Stott.

The boys are not shirking the entertaining detail. A skating party will be given at Raydine's in San Anselmo Saturday night by Charles Scott, Bruce McGee and Tom Sather. A barbecue and dance will be hosted at the Lagunitas Club June 2 by Peter Bricca, Craig Faulkner, William Niccolls, Buzz Beatie, Trevor Benedict, Allan Breslin, Jed Bullard, Peter Doyle, Dane Durham, Drummond Pike, Dirk Van Zabte and Mel Wolf.

Concluding the social events will be the class party, swimming and lunch at the Meadow Club June 14.

IN THE HISTORIC locale of Jackson Square in San Francisco La Puerta de Oro Chapter members will be entertained by Mrs. Albert Campodonico, regent, at a luncheon at Villa Tavera May 8. The restaurant is built on the site of the court yard, which was once the watering place for the Vigilantes horses. Years later it was the outdoor workshop of two famous artists, Ralph Stockpole and Diego Rivera of Mexico. Stackpole, world famous sculptor, frequently visited in Mill Valley with his mother, Mrs. J. P. Luttrell. Stackpole's 80-foot-high Pacifica "reigned" over the huge court at the entrance to the Golden Gate Exposition. He also had statues in federal buildings in Washington, D.C. and in museums throughout the country. Mrs. Harry C. Elliott of Sansalito, a past regent of La Puerta de Oro Chapter, recently was invited to serve as a state DAR chairman.

JOLLY ROGERS WILL SAIL FOR VENICE

"An Evening in Venice" will set a romantic mood for members and guests of the Jolly Rogers Chapter of the Children's Home Society when they sail May 26 for their annual Spring Cruise Ball.

Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael will be the port of embarkation for the gala affair.

Mrs. Richard Colombo, captain of the cruise, has announced her crew members will be Mesdames Clyde Miller, invitations; William Wilson Jr., decorations; James Zierolf, fashion show; Ralph Nattress, reservations, and Richard Miller, special awards.

Cocktails, a fashion show, dinner and dancing will be included in the shipboard activities.

Hat Band Work

Give the bow on your hat band a brushing occasionally. It's hard to get the dirt out of creases if it's allowed to accumulate.

Carolyn Paul To Be Bride In August Rite

At a recent cocktail dinner party at Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Paul of Kentfield announced the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn Ann, to Marino R. Guerra Jr.

The bride-elect was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended the University of California where she was affiliated with Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority. She is now a student in elementary education at San Francisco State College. Ronald Paul of Kentfield is her brother and she is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Siegel of San Francisco.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marino Guerra of Redwood City, was graduated from Serra High School in San Mateo and attended San Mateo College. He is now serving with the U.S. Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base. Carol Ann Guerra of Redwood City is his sister. He is the grandson of Frank De Falco of Redwood City and the late Mrs. De Falco.

The wedding will take place on Aug. 26.

A Dollar Saver

A pocket-size plastic disc looks something like a circular slide rule. But it's for shoppers, not engineers. When yau learn how to use the disc, it tells you which of two products of the same quality is the better buy—regardless of differences in net weight, liquid volume or price. An arrow on the disc points to the percentage of money saved. The disc will compare values of any items weighing between two ounces and eight pounds and costing between a dime and $10.

PLANNING AN AUGUST wedding are Carolyn Ann Paul of Kentfield and Marino R. Guerra Jr., who is stationed with the U.S. Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base.

"We never imagined we could clean so many things, so well. The Betty Brite coin-op is just wonderful."

Yes, this and similar comments are being repeated all over town because garments and household items never had it so good—until Betty Brite.

Betty Brite coin-operated equipment is made by Detrex, the world's largest manufacturer of professional drycleaning equipment and solvent. Professional drycleaners have long recognized Detrex as the leader in the field.

Our exclusive solvent purification systems impart a steady flow of clean, clear solvent at all times to assure you of better, brighter, fresher clothes when you clean them the Betty Brite way.

Save Money... Save Your Clothes

The gentle, but thorough cleaning action of Betty Brite equipment cleans your clothes quickly (about 30 minutes) and really saves you money. Now you can clean more garments and household items than ever before - and do it for less.

Foresters Plan Installation Frolic

The Peacock Room at Peacock Gap Country Club in Marin Bay will be the setting for the Independent Order of Foresters installation of new officers and annual Forest Frolic on May 11 at 8 p.m.

Chairman of the reception committee, Mrs. Farr Dell Danford has planned a semi-formal dance and buffet supper to follow the installation.

Mrs. J. Clyde Strouss is chairman of the decorations committee and Mrs. William Walker, program chairman.

Chairman of the installation, Mrs. William M. Coffman will introduce Dr. George H. Becker, supreme vice chief ranger, who will conduct the installation.

New officers include Mesdames Strouss, chief ranger; Charles Caldwell, vice chief ranger; Ralph Hendricks, past chief ranger; David Lanum, recording secretary; Joseph Terchera, financial secretary; J. M. Van Soest, treasurer; Ray DeLeon, court deputy; Pete Regalia, orator; William Coffman, senior beadle and Jakie Terhall, senior woodward.

Year Around Weave

A new cotton blanket designed for year-round use is constructed of a cellular type of weave. For winter, a light covering is used over the blanket. This encloses the many thousands of tiny air cells and forms an insulation that keeps body heat in. For summer, the covering is removed and air circulates through these cells, making it cool. The manufacturer reports this type of construction is an outgrowth of the thermal underwear developed for Sir Edmund Hiliary's conquest of Mount Everest.

Light Helps

The amount of daylight affects growth of garden flowers the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports. Department scientists said length of the day makes a difference in the appearance of many plants. Petunias, for instance. These become single-stemmed and flower very quickly when exposed to 16 hours of light daily. But, if exposed to only 10 hours, they develop into many branched, rosettee-like plants.

Strontium Check

Laboratory experiments have shown that it is possible to remove strontium 90 by passing milk through pipes containing beads of chemicals know as ion-exchange resins. The research at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Research Center here proved that about 98 percent of the strontium 90 can be removed from milk by this process.

FAMILY FARE

Getting Kids To Bed Harder Than Launching A Rocket

DAYTON (AP) — Ever wished your youngster's bed were like a space capsule?

Think of it. It could have a compartment for the snack he is certain to demand. It could have a little spigot to dispense the classic drink of water. It might even feature a tape recording of his favorite bedtime story—the one that always puts you to sleep with its everlasting" 'Not I,' said the cock. 'Not I,' said the mouse."

GETTING THE KIDS to bed can sometimes be as complex as a rocket launching, according to one mother of four middle-sized youngsters.

Usually everything goes smoothly enough, she says. But there are certain rare occasions when a wave of silliness strikes about 8:30 p.m. The final raid on the rebels may reveal the whole crew burrowed down in the bottom of one bed, hiding from some deliciously frightening monster.

It seems that most youngsters at bedtime fall somewhere between the poles of docility and demon-possession. Almost none is above using delaying tactics.

THE YOUNGSTERS may have shown no signs of thirst all evening, but bed makes him as painfully parched as a ride on a train with its fascinating push-button water cooler. Going to the bathroom is a better gambit because it gets him all the way out of bed.

The tad may have watched half a dozen food commercials on TV without batting an eye, but the minute he lays his head on the pillow, he is seized with hunger pangs like those he gets when passing the caramel corn counter in the dime store.

There is nothing like Mom's final turning out of the light, and her footsteps receding down the hall, to bring out the conversationalist in the most taciturn child. A father of four tells it this way:

"I come home from work and ask my kids, 'What did you do today?' They say, 'Oh, nothing. Please Dad, we're busy watching this show!' After their bedtime, my wife and I settle down with our books in the living room, when all of a sudden, a steady stream of kids starts going by.

"ONE OF THEM will say, 'Hey, Dad, are you going to the Scout banquet with me next week?' The next one says, 'I forgot to tell you to get me up early for French class tomorrow.' Pretty soon comes, 'I need 20 cents for school.' But the payoff is, 'Say, I learned a new piece on my trumpet today. Want me to play it-' "

Besides the obvious bit about setting a standard bedtime and being firm about it, parents can use other subtle tactics to prevent rows.

One mother helps her children simmer down gradually by reading to them before bedtime. Try to puck them up from a hearty wrestling match and tuck them in, and you're licked before you start.

DADS OFTEN get into the act.

"I've told them 'The Three Bears' in six different versions," says one.

Another mother says that ever since her children learned how soldiers in the Army go to bed, evenings have been a breeze at her house. Dad just goes upstairs and whistles taps.

Even when the whispered conversations die away after bedtime, she doesn't take it for granted that the tucking- in is over.

On Solving Family Problems—

Marin Groups To Present Experts In Social Sciences

A multi-faceted view of "The Family Circle in the World of Squares" will be presented by five experts in the social sciences on May 11 at the San Rafael Military Academy at 8 p.m., when the Marin Assn. of Mental Health, The Family Service League and the American Assn. of University Women sponsor a panel discussion designed to highlight the latest approaches to solving the problems faced by today's family.

Authorities in the fields of anthropology, psychiatry, social welfare, education guidance and the ministry will approach the subject from points of view based on their own personal backgrounds and professional experiences.

DR. SCOTT BRIAR, associate professor of social welfare at the University of California, formerly superintendent of social work at the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan., will analyze "The Family as a Social Organization."

Anthropologist Robert F. Murphy, whose research in the field of social structure has taken him among the headhunters of the Amazon and the nomadic Tuareg of Northwest Africa, will direct his comments to "Social Roles in the American Family." Dr. Murphy is associate professor of anthropology at U.C. and author of "Headhunter's Heritage" and "Mundurucu Religion," among other publications in his field.

The new concept in "Day Treatment" in psychiatry will be described by associate director of the San Francisco Day Care Center of the State Department of Mental Hygiene, Dr. David Wardell. In addition to his private practice, Dr. Wardell has been clinical instructor in psychiatry at U.C. Medical School, chief of professional education at Sonoma State College and assistant superintendent at Napa State Hospital.

CONSULTING psychologist for Marin's Dixie School District, Alvin B. Carr, will approach the family circle from the point of view of family factor's affecting children's achievement. His presentation will be titled "Children's Sculpture: Some Reflections on the Art of Kiddies' Carvings in the Living Room Furniture." In addition to school guidance counseling and private practice, Carr spent three and a half years on the staff of the psychiatric department and counseling center at San Quentin.

"The Family as Primary Spiritual Unit" will be Dr. James Lyn Elder's thesis. Dr. Elder is professor of pastoral psychology at Golden Gate Theological Seminary.

Moderator for the meeting is Mrs. Daniel F. Deedy.

The May 11 event will coincide with national programs being planned to develop broadened public interest in family and mental health problems throughout the month of May, which has been designated Mental Health Month.

The Marin Association for Mental Health has joined with the Family Service League and the AAUW to present the program in conjunction with the San Rafael Military Academy, which has donated use of its facilities to indicate its support for the program, which may be the first of a series of county-wide education programs designed to acquaint the people of Marin with developments in the filed of mental health and family counseling as well as specialized problems within the country.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Herbert J. L. Baum of the Mental Health group. Planning committee members representing the Family Service League are Mesdames Enoch Callaway III, George Markoff and Frederic Parke. AAUW members include Mesdames Harry Glaze, Robert H. Herrick and Larry Mishkind.

Mesdames Glaze and Herrick also represent the Mental Health Assn., together with Mesdames James Norton Jr. and Wilson Partridge. The clergy is represented by the Rev. Ernest Wood and the Marin Nurses' Assn. by Mrs. Tryggestadt.

The meeting is open to the public and admission is free.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D
Guidance Counselor

It's Parents' Job To Instill The Proper Moral Standards

"My parents taught me that sex was nasty," a mother writes. "They believed that everything having to do with reproduction was sinful. I was afraid even to look at a boy. Now I am happily married. I realize my parents were wrong. I know now that sex is a normal function of life. I am raising my daughters to believe just that. I don't want them to be as stuffy as I was.

"Recently we discovered that one of our little girls had been experimenting sexually with a little boy. My husband is shocked. He wants me to be sure the activity stops. However I disagree. If sex is normal, isn't it right for children to experiment? Can't we accept this as a natural thing?"

No, you can't. I can understand your feeling. Probably you are reacting to your parents' extreme teaching. But you have gone to the opposite extreme. A middle course is better. All human groups have moral standards, which are passed from generation to generation. Most of them spring from religious beliefs. They're enshrined in law. Individuals who live outside the moral code always suffer. They may be arrested and punished. If you want your girls to live happy lives you must teach them the common ideals of chastity and purity. You must help them to be good girls.

Several months ago I mentioned James Hymes, author of the pamphlet "How to Tell Your Children About Sex." I thought he said it was okay for children to experiment sexually. I expressed my disgust. Since then he has written to say that I misunderstood him. He believes, with me, that morally good behavior is essential. I'm glad.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "Is 6 too early to teach children about reproduction? Our little boy is asking questions." MRS. O.R.

(A) Age 6 is not too early. Usually it is good to impart the information early, while children can learn without smutty overtones.

Gold Space Suit

The working man of the space age soon may wear a 24-carat gold suit. A lightweight fabric—surfaced with plastic film metalized with pure gold—has been developed to protect missilemen and rocket-launching personnel from the fiery and corrosive hazards of working with chemical fuels. Its gold surface can reflect safely flash temperatures as high as 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Bargain Box Drive Depots Are Listed

Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary is conducting its annual clothing drive for the Sunny Hills Bargain Box in San Anselmo on May 16, 17 and 18.

Donations of household goods, bric-a-brac, books, records, furniture and toys will be welcome as well as clothing of all sorts for men, women and children.

Profits from the sale of such donated goods to the Bargain Box help support Sunny Hills home throughout the year. The Bargain Box is located at the Sunny Hills Grounds at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo and is open Monday afternoon 1 to 4 p.m., and Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. every week.

The following depots have been set up throughout Marin County to receive donations for the drive: Belvedere, Mrs. G. M. Howard, 325 San Rafael Avenue; Greenbrae-Kentfield, Mrs. Thomas Carson, 202 McAllister; Ross - San Anselmo, Mrs. Warren R. Perry, 15 Barber Avenue, San Anselmo; Kent Woodlands, Mrs. David Dorwood, 14 Fern Way; San Rafael, Mrs. Donald R. Collins, 39 La Crescenta; Terra Linda, Mrs. Joshua Soske, 788 Beechnut Court; and Mill Valley, Mrs. Kleve C. Johnson, 44 Keats Drive.

It is suggested that donors telephone before delivering donations to insure safety of the goods. Pickup service is provided in cases where delivery to a depot is not possible by calling Mrs. Herbet West, 120 Crescent Rd., San Anselmo.

MARGARET ESTELLA BUTLER

Emotional Ills

The greatest incidence of childhood emotional problems occurs among boys aged nine to 12, who outnumber disturbed girls of the same age by two to one, reports Dr. Stella Chess, child psychiatrist at Flower-Fifth Avenue Hospital. But the proportion is equalized in later years, when more adolescent girls than boys show emotional disturbance, the psychiatrist added.

Dramatic Lighting

Fingertip control of lighting to suit your mood or dramatize your surroundings is possible when you use an electric light dimmer. The dimmer operates both incandescent and fluorescent lights on the same circuit. The control switch fits any standard two-inch switchbox. The dimmer handles up to 600 watts of lighting, tuning from full brightness to total darkness.

Margaret Butler Betrothed To Gordon Sturm Jr.

The engagement of Margaret (Margi) Estella Butler to Gordon C. Sturm Jr., has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Butler of Novato.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Want To Do Game Some Good? Watch A Circus Trapeze Act

If you want to do your bridge game some good, go to the circus and watch the trapeze act. A man throws himself through the air at a terrible risk to life and limb, but he doesn't worry. He knows that his partner will arrive at the right spot at the right time to carry them both to safety.

Opening lead — ♣ 4

When this hand was played in a national tournament in 1945, Howard Schenken doubled three notrump in the confident expectation that his partner would lead a club. It was the only lead that would defeat the contract.

JACK OF HEARTS: Check this by seeing what happens if West opens the jack of hearts. South wins and leads diamonds until East takes the ace. East holds up until the third diamond and then returns a heart.

South takes the heart return, cashes his three top spades, and then gets out with a heart. East can take his two hearts but must then lead clubs, whereupon dummy can run the rest of the diamonds. East gets one diamond, one club and two hearts.

OBVIOUS LEAD: As the diagram shows, Schenken was not disappointed. His partner, Sam Fry, did lead a club and the contract was defeated.

How did Fry know which suit to lead?

"It was obvious," Fry explained to his bruised but admiring opponents. "The double showed a good hand, but the failure to bid over three diamonds showed weakness in the major suits. Clubs was the only strong suit he could have."

It was a well-coordinated trapeze act. Schenken put him-

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, May 3, the 123rd day of the year with 242 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Juputer and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1865, the boy of President Abraham Lincoln arrived back in his home town of Springfield, Ill., after a journey from the nation's capital.

In 1948, the U.S. Supreme Court forbade the states to enforce those agreements that bind owners not to sell property to racial and religious minorities.

A thought for the day: French satirist Rabelais said: "I drink no more than a sponge."

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

New Planning Commission Should Probe Transportation

The County Board of Supervisors has reshuffled the County Planning Commission and given it a new push on the road toward designing better development for Marin.

It is our hope, therefore, that the new seven-member board will give some serious consideration to the problems of transportation facing residents of the county.

There is much to be done in determining what we need in Marin; whether it should be mass transit, more highways or a combination of both; who should have the say as to where the new routings should be built.

But right now, no one is doing that planning. In fact, the minute someone mentions they are interested in doing a part of it, some one else comes up to snipe them down.

As an illustration, last week the Golden Gate Bridge directors proposed to study feasibility of double decking the span. As proposed, four lanes might be built under the present traffic deck and provide four lanes in each direction (with lots of room on top) without the danger of head-on crashes and the like.

Certainly it would not double the capacity of the bridge, or anything near it, but as Director Ben Lerer of San Francisco pointed out, it would help relieve traffic congestion temporarily while additional facilities are being constructed.

But Marin's two legislators, Sen. Jack McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, see this as a scheme of the bridge directors to perpetuate themselves in office. They question the legal right of the directors to make such an alteration in the bridge.

And so it will go, someone proposing, someone else detracting, until we discover some real leadership in transportation planning.

We need it badly and we need it now. The longer we wait the more likely it is that eventually we'll have some agency from the outside come in and tell us what transportation we are going to have, not from our point of view, but for the "overall good of the Bay Area."

Frankly, we hope the county planners will take constructive action in a recommendation to the supervisors on what is the best way for the county to proceed to protect our own transportation interests.

Month Of Many Roses

Climbers glorify our fences with rows of lovely blooms. Beautiful waxen petaled giants grace the bushes. Petite Floribundas appear in handsome masses. And the tree roses send forth their splendid blossoms.

Marin is a rose-loving county and they like our cool, even climate. Marinites grow lovely flowers and their roses are no exception.

This is our time of roses. We hope you are enjoying them as much as we.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Hal Morgan Won't Resign As Demo Chairman, But He Tried

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

Some time ago we reported here that Harold (Hal) Morgan was being so pressed by his business responsibilities that he would resign as chairman of the Marin Democratic County Central Committee. It was immediately and vehemently denied. And the denials were quite correct. But only because a maneuver at last week's central committee meeting didn't come off as prearranged.

Just before the meeting ended, Morgan announced that because of the press of business, he was not having enough time to devote to politics in an election year. And he resigned.

But as he did so, he nominated as his successor Robert L. Harmon of Belvedere, chairman of the Marin County Council of Democratic Clubs. Harmon is a newcomer to the central committee having only been appointed there a month or so ago to replace Nancy Swadesh of Mill Valley when she resigned on taking a major state appointment.

The move brought Tom Boyd to his feet with the objection that Morgan had no right to appoint his successor. He nominated Albert F. Gately of Fairfax.

For a while there was an exchange of bitter words and a few slurring remarks before order was restored by temporary chairman Ellen Strauss.

What's the big rush in a new chairman? Morgan was asked.

He explained that Harmon was up for re-election as chairman of the council of clubs and that if he could be named head of the central committee now, he wouldn't have to decide between the two jobs.

Samuel W. Gardiner, who had been accused by Morgan earlier of attempting to pack the central committee with his friends in the election next month, finally argued a compromise. He said he hated to see "two fine young Democrats" fight it out for the chairmanship of a "dying committee." (Election June 5 will select a new committee.) He had favored Harmon, he said, but "didn't like the kind of a play" made by Morgan.

So Gardiner moved to table the whole thing. His motion passed.

Thus Morgan's resignation was not accepted and he will serve one more month. But he won't run for re-election by the new committee.

And so, you can see, we were wrong. Hal Morgan will not resign his chairmanship because of press of business.

ASSEMBLYMAN William T. Bagley of San Rafael takes off Saturday on a month-long campaign — for somebody else.

Bagley has accepted an invitation to spend the last days of the primary campaign traveling with and supporting Richard M. Nixon for governor.

CONTROLLER Alan Cranston is due here tomorrow. He's to be guest of honor at a "garden gala," whatever that is, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Martin in Ross.

STATE SCHOOLS superintendent candidate Ralph Richardson of Los Angeles sent a telegram to last week's candidates' night meeting in Redwood High School gymnasium. He regretted that "a longer than usual (Los Angeles City) Board of Education meeting (he's's chairman) prevent the necessary airlines connections" to make the meeting.

However, the audience of 300 didn't hear these regrets. Western Union delivered it the following day to the county superintendent of school's office.

Attack Only, No PTT Defense

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

It is truly interesting to note that in this period of global unrest and peril to the American way of life, there is that segment of our population who armed with righteous indignation and a lack of information charge headlong into battle with . . . of all people . . . his fellowman (in this case a woman).

I refer to James Oswalt's lengthy condemnation of Mrs. Burgeon's views on the new dial system. I am representative of that segment which concurs with Mrs. Burgeon. Possibly Mr. Oswalt should, armed with his righteous indignation and lack of information, attack the Dept. of Motor Vehicles for the new license plates. If he cannot remember his license plate number before the new system I would suggest he follow one of these courses:

1. Enroll in one of the many memory courses available.
2. Really get in there and demand that they return to the old system.
3. Divert his energy into more mundane efforts of active participation in the direction of his country.

Apparently Mr. Oswalt believes that the best defense is a good offense. I make that conclusion on noting that he presents no defense for P. T. & T., only a vicious and unwarranted attack on Mrs. Burgeon and, in doing so, a large segment of our population.

True, a rose by any other name smells as sweet, but when that rose is jammed down an unwilling throat the thorns hurt!

College Of Marin Asking For Help

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

For the first time in its 36 years of serving the young people and adults of Marin County, the College of Marin is appealing to the public for help.

A review of its history to acquaint newer citizens with and remind long time residents of its wide service as Marin's community college seems to be in order.

May 7, 1962, is the 36th anniversary of the founding of the Marin Junior College District. Thirty-six years ago the first Board of Trustees was elected on May 7, 1926 and establishment of the college was assured.

The Marin Junior College opened for its first class of 85 students in August of that year. With the opening of the college in the Fall of 1962, over 1400 regular full time day students will be in attendance and by 1972 over 2500 will be enrolled. In addition to the regular day students, several thousand adults attend special classes held during each school year.

Today, over 75 per cent of all students who go on to college complete one or two years in a junior college in their home community. It is economical for them to do so and educationally sound. Students transferring from a junior college to any university are able to compete favorably with other students who have spent their first two years at the university and the financial savings to the student and his parents during the first two years will go far towards meeting the cost of the last two years of his college program.

The College of Marin (formerly called the Marin Junior College) has, from its beginning, maintained a high standard of scholarship. Credits earned there are accepted at face value in all universities and colleges. There is no tuition and at least two years of either academic or vocational training is made available to every high school graduate.

However, with the rapidly increasing numbers of Marin high school graduates, expansion of college facilities to provide space for all is necessary.

This year, for the first time in the entire history of the college, the Board of Trustees is asking the voters of the Marin Junior College District to approve a 35c override tax to provide funds for new building construction. This will make possible a much more economical method of financing the expansion of facilities to meet the needs of an enrollment which will more than double in 10 years than would a bond issue.

I believe Marin voters, if aware of the problem, will want to vote to maintain the high standards of the College of Marin and make such education available to all our young people.

REMEMBER WHEN

10 YEARS AGO

A cotton mill was suggested for San Quentin Prison to replace the famous jute mill which burned down last year.

Carol Patterson of San Anselmo proved herself quite a speller until the word "eucalyptus" floored her in a countywide contest. Kay Yoder of Mill Valley not only got that one but won the championship by spelling "fuchsia."

20 YEARS AGO

In a quick turnaround, Marin County supervisors, who previously voted 3-2 against sale of county property east of Court Street to Jacob Albert for $60,000, allowed chairman T. F. Bagshaw to sign necessary transfer papers.

Surveys were ordered by the San Rafael City Council and Marin County supervisors because of high-tide floods over territory adjoining San Rafael and extending to California Park. Mrs. Catherine Peterson got 130 names on a petition asking for dikes or other improvement.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

Art Buchwald tells a story that underlines the skulduggery of fake art dealers in Paris, with rich but unwary Americans their chief victims. One such American fell for the old gag of the masterpiece so valuable that the government wouldn't allow its shipment out of the country.

"It's a Titian," whispered the dealer, "a Titian every museum director would give his eye-teeth to possess. There is only one way I can sneak it to America for you. Let my assistant Garachi paint over the Titian. Then, when you get home, have the Garachi wiped off, and voila, you have your priceless Titian."

The delighted American wrote out his check for $200,000, went on to the Riviera, and issued the necessary instructions about the painting to his secretary in New York.

Three weeks later he received this cable from New York: "Have received Garachi and cleaned it. Found Titian. Cleaned Titian. Found Garachi. How far should I go?"

Priority Of Property Rights Made Clear To Everyone By Speakers

Maybe some things are hard to learn, but I didn't realize the right to own was a more important element in our democracy than the right to exist . . .

At least not until I attended a special session of our county supervisors last week.

(I realize I've referred to our "democracy" rather than our "republic," but I hope John Birch Society members will overlook this fundamental error.)

THE HIGH priority of "property rights" was made clear to everyone who attended the supervisors' hearing on Marin County's proposed law to discourage discriminatory housing.

It was made clear by just a few people, but they were quick to remind us they represented the majority.

Property rights, they said, automatically mean the right to sell to anyone. That sounds all right, but nothing was said about the right to buy from anybody. Property rights would seem to work both ways.

BUT APPARENTLY it does not. People who own things must be protected at any cost from prospective buyers — if those prospective buyers don't fit certain conventions. This is the way the anti-anti-discrimination law spokesmen think.

We all know, they say, that they welcome persons of all races to their own homes. But they frown on the idea that some law might be passed which might suggest persons of all races could buy their homes.

Defenders of property rights say they are not in favor of any prejudice. They simply warn those of us who are more careless that no man in this country should be told what he must do with his own patch of land. Laws which would give another man the right to buy what he chooses are dangerous, they say.

IT HAD SEEMED to me no argument against a simple, artless ordinance which would give anybody half a chance to live where he likes could possibly be convincing.

But as soon as opponents of such an ordinance start talking about property rights, they begin to convince the unwary.

Anybody who still wonders why our board of supervisors failed to pass a modest law which would make housing discrimination a misdemeanor, doesn't understand boards of supervisors as a political group.

A FIRST RULE in the county supervisors' handbook is "Avoid any legislation which might disturb things as they are." Another rule is "Do not meddle in affairs which may offend any large segment of the population," and one of the most reliable rules is "In matters of controversy, shun action, and appeal to the people."

Considering that supervisors seldom bother themselves with social problems, we ought to be happy that our board spent an afternoon listening to a discussion of an anti-discrimination law before quietly disposing of it.

Judge Gives Private Enterprise Respite From State Bureaucrats

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — action of Superior Judge Albert Mundt in Sacramento superior court to restrain the State Department of Employment from effectuating new rules and regulations concerning operation of the state's disability insurance fund, marks a signal victory for private enterprise.

The case was taken to court by 36 concerns, including insurance companies, whose businesses are jeopardized by the new controls sought to be established by the department. More than 200 concerns joined in the original protest against the rules when the case was heard by the unemployment insurance appeals board.

ALTHOUGH JUDGE Mundt's injunction is only temporary, it at least paves the way for taking the case through the superior court, and on up to higher courts, which is planned by the private companies which have voluntary insurance plans throughout the state.

The petition to Judge Mundt was based on the contention that the Department of Employment, in its adoption of the new rules and regulations, exceeded the authority given to it by the state legislature.

THE REGULATIONS would force the private insurers to take certain percentages of people over 50 years of age, women, and persons earning less than $3,600 annually as risks.

The private insurers also contended that the rule has retroactive features which would prevent certain concerns presently insuring from qualifying as private insurers for voluntary disability plans in the future.

Indicative of the trend in government to operate departments and bureaus without regard for the law and the courts of the land, the state, through Walter Wiesner, deputy attorney general, contended that the court itself had no authority to issue an injunction against a public officer holder when that officer is attempting to do his duty.

In other words, if such a partment could ride even more rough-shod over the people whose servants they are supposed to be than they do at the present time.

AND JUST TO prove that the state's word, through its bureaucratic departments, is law, even though not approved by the state legislature, the Department of Employment came up shortly after the court's announcement of a temporary restraining order with a brand new set of emergency regulations.

The department will hold a hearing on these regulations May 14, it was announced, and the private insurance concerns, along with more than 200 additional concerns interested in the outcome of the case, will have to go through the same set of hearings as previously.

THE NEW regulations are not as tight as the ones in controversy before the court, but employers say they still are not acceptable.

This is the trend of government. If one action is questioned by the public, government comes up with another action, perhaps worded in a different manner, but accomplishing the same thing, to harass private business. In other words, don't let the public rest if it interferes with the might of the bureaucrats!

Government Forming New Attitude Toward Labor?

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The government championing of the public interest in wage and other labor demands is the other side of the coin to its pressuring for a price level it considers beneficial.

And a lot of people have been wondering out loud what trends in the government attitude toward labor might be developing.

The report of a presidential advisory panel urging more power for a president to deal with national emergency strikes may give a clue — more intervention in more disputes.

But the wide split among panel members as to the roles labor and management are now playing shows the issue is far from settled.

The panel members did agree that the White House should be allowed to intervene directly, rather than through the courts as now provided, more quickly to get an 80-day cooling off period.

The crux of a new labor policy, if one is to develop, may lie in what the panel sidetracked, however, rather than what it proposed.

That is the dispute which has been growing hotter of late. Should labor be curbed by law from exercising what management calls the monopoy powers of some unions?

The management argument is that federal laws put tight curbs on corporations' using monopoly powers, but none on labor's, if any such powers exist as charged.

Many think that whatever restraints the White House may be inclined now to seek on wage increases it calls inflationary will be of doubtful strength until the monopoly issue is brought out into the open and settled one way or the other.

They argue that the government doesn't have penalties to invoke against labor as it threatened against the steel companies.

The political chances of the monopoly issue being settled to management's satisfaction seem slight to most observers.

And without the power to impose legal penalties on both labor and management, any pressure may be left largely to what President John F. Kennedy told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce he advocates: asking both sides to use responsibility in the public interest.

One member of the presidential panel — Dr. Arthur F. Burns, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Dwight D. Eisenhower—puts the issue this way:

"If the power of monopolies, whether of business or labor, were sufficiently curbed by law, there would be little or no need for the large intrusion of government into collective bargaining recommended in this report."

Labor unions deny they have monopolistic powers and strongly oppose any suggestion they should be brought under the antitrust laws.

Highway Video Plan Could Save Drivers

DETROIT (UPI)—A unique experiment that could save the lives of thousands of expressway motorists is underway here and safety officials are openly optimistic that the results obtained will launch a new era in traffic control.

"Expressway television" is the term applied to the experiment by federal, state and local officials involved in the test.

It all began more than a year ago when the Federal Bureau of Roads appropriated funds to investigate the possibility of using television cameras to control high speed traffic on limited access highways. Detroit, which has one of the finest expressway systems of any major city in America, was chosen for the test, with the federal government footing 80 per cent of the $400,000 cost.

Crews employed by the public lighting commission worked Sunday mornings to install television cameras and traffic lights along a 3.2-mile section of the Lodge Expressway between the Ford and Davison interchanges on the near northside of Detroit.

The big test is set for late this spring.

When it goes into effect, a traffic expert in the control building will sit at a control panel facing 14 television screens. Each screen shows traffic conditions at a different point along the route.

With buttons within his reach, the man at the controls will be able to direct the flow of traffic to suit conditions. This will be done by means of overhead lights above the traffic lanes. They consist of arrows to be lighted green for "go," Xs to be light red for "stop," and numerals which light up to regulate the speed limit.

The traffic director, by pushing the right button, will be able to alert motorists to conditions ahead. If, for example, he spots an accident, he can stop traffic in the affected lane and reroute it to an open lane. At the same time, he can slow traffic by means of the numerals and can halt motorists in any or all lanes to allow others to move out of the blocked lane.

The signals are at nine strategic locations — at offramps and interchanges. As a further experiment, three of the nine lights are fluorescent. Three are incandescent and three are neon. At the end of the test, the safety experts will determine which of the lights were easiest to read.

Another benefit pointed out by those taking part in the test is the ability of the control man to alert police and ambulances almost instantly in the event of a serious accident.

Lodge Expressway lanes were built to accommodate 1,500 vehicles each hour. Preliminary tests have indicated that the number is reduced on curves and at approaches to bridges where motorists have a tendency to slow down.

At the same time, the capacity picks up to 2,000 an hour where the expressway travels on a downgrade. These figures were compiled by use of the 14 cameras.

Safety officials said results of the test would be used throughout the nation in the design of future expressways and in the control of traffic on existing expressways.

SLOW BODY CHEMISTRY

New Obstacle Found On Rocky Path Toward Finding Vaccine For Cold

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new obstacle has been found in the rocky scientific path toward a preventative vaccine against the common cold, and this one may prove to be insurmountable.

The obstacle is that common cold viruses don't rouse an immediate response from defensive body chemistry. It takes six month to a year for chemistry to produce effective antibodies.

This justifies the people who feel they "catch one cold after another." They may—and from the same common cold virus type. It also complicates the development of a cold remedy which really works.

But at least this discovery of Drs. George Jackson and Harry F. Dowling and their scientific team at University of Illinois explains why it took science generations to prove the common cold invoked a degree of immunity against itself.

That key point was proved only a few years ago. Until then scientists could only assume common cold viruses behaved differently than all other viruses by leaving people defenseless against repeat attacks.

The Illinois scientists worked with nasal secretions from persons with colds. Blood was taken from these persons at various intervals after they had gotten over their colds. The secretions contained the guilty cold viruses and the blood should have contained defensive antibodies against the viruses.

The blood was put into volunteers, and then they were "challenged" with the virus-containing secretions. If the blood was high in antibodies, the volunteers were immunized — they wouldn't come down with colds.

Blood from persons who had just recovered from colds protected the volunteers not at all. Blood taken from persons a few weeks after they recovered protected only a few volunteers. But the blood taken six months after recovery, immunized most of the volunteers.

Antibodies in the blood of the original cold victims still were building at this six-month stage. A year after their recovery their blood protected all volunteers innoculated with the nasal secretions. Thereafter the effectiveness of the blood diminished steadily and at the end of two years was gone entirely.

In reporting to the New England Journal of Medicine the scientists said that if common cold viruses generally behaved like the viruses involved in their studies, "neither infection or live-virus vaccines could be expected to give a lasting immunity."

They also concluded people get over colds not because viruses stimulate antibodies but because infected cells produce substances which prevent viral spread to other cells.

This work should not be confused with a new program of the U.S. Public Health Service to develop vaccines against respiratory infections which in a loose sense are called "colds." Jackson, Dowling and other scientists believe true common cold viruses are distinct entities in themselves.

Novato Begins Eyeing Events For Western Weekend Fete

Shaggy beards, pretty girls, bucking broncos and barbecue are on tap for Novato's Western Weekend on June 15, 16 and 17.

Sponsored by the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce, the annual cow poke carnival will be highlighted by participating merchants who will decorate their shops on a western theme.

Beards are already in evidence as contestants are shaping their shredded wheat for the customary whisker derby.

The town's pretty girls are being eyed even more than usual as Jaycees mentally measure them for the annual queen contest.

The Horseman's Assn. is in charge of the rodeo which they promise to be bigger, better and bucking-er than ever.

The yearly Buckaroo Breakfast and chicken barbecues will keep celebrants nourished throughout the three-day event which will include carnivals, concessions and a parade.

Art Rental Show Opening On Sunday

A spring rental show of the Marin Society of Artists will open at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross, to continue until May 31.

There is no admittance charge. Refreshments will be served. Co-chairmen are Lottie McWatters and Eva Camp.

Music Fete Judge

Milton Salkind, Mill Valley concert pianist and teacher, has been invited to be an adjudicator for the Greater Spokane Music Festival to be held in Spokane, Wash., May 6-12.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Monday, the 28th day of May, 1962, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock A.M. of said day, at the front entrance to PACIFIC COAST TITLE COMPANY OF MARIN, 950 Fifth Avenue, in the City of San Rafael, County of Marin, State of California, PACIFIC COAST TITLE COMPANY OF MARIN, a corporation, as trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, all the following described real property, situated in County of Marin, State of California, and described as follows; to-wit:

LOT 20, located in Block "F", Subdivision No. One, which is shown and designated on that map known as "Sweetser Ranch, Sub. No. One, Novato, California," recorded July 15, 1913 in Book 4 of Maps, at page 49, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Marin, State of California.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in a certain Deed of Trust executed by Marie W. Hewitson, Guardian of the Estate of Ellie Hewitson, a minor, to PACIFIC COAST TITLE COMPANY OF MARIN, a corporation, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of The Homestead Savings and Loan Association, a California corporation dated June 6, 1961, and recorded June 9, 1961, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Marin, State of California, in Liber 1469 of Official Records, at Page 21.

Dated: April 20, 1962.

SO IT IS BRAND NEW? SO WHAT?

Who wants a new house anyhow? Now when termites are so popular and you can fix up any old shack with a couple of improvement loans. How do you cook in one of those jazzed up elect. kitchens? What do you means 3 rooms to sleep in and two for bathing, central heat, fireplace, deck and those conspicuous glass doors? Yea, I saw the carpet and the drapes, too. But who wants to live in such a fine place. It makes you soft.

BUT FOR THE ONES WHO DON'T MIND $2500 DOWN . . . THAT'S ALL . . . AND IT'S YOURS.

MARRIED? NOT MARRIED!

I don't care. I just want you to be the first to live here. I was just very well built, two cute bedrooms, and oddball fireplace, a long deck, good flooring, and a dandy place for the "gastronome de la femme." Come up and see me. 33 Vinyard, San Rafael. You can move in any time . . . for $17,900 on GOOD terms.

Potting Shed $23,750
A garden house, really; it's more than a shed. Large, nicely landscaped corner lot, with paths, lawn, trees, shrubs, flower beds. Immaculate 2-bedroom home, central hall plan, tile kitchen. San Anselmo.

Luxury-built Country Home $24,500

A Garden View, Every Room $25,750
Every window looks out on its own private garden scene. Large paved play area. Royston-landscaped gardens include a little "tea house," deck-patio, pretty entry. All level. Three bedrooms, 2 baths. San Rafael.

Attractive Home, Well Priced $33,000
Large lot, with house set well back, spreading lawn in front. Large brick terrace just off living room, shaded by grown willow. Delightful family kitchen, early American style. Entrance hall. Three bedrooms, 2 baths, quiet country street. San Anselmo.

Beautifully Appointed $37,000
From the Oriental entrance garden to the deluxe master bedroom suite, this home has been designed for charm and convenience. Two splendid fireplaces, large GE-appointed kitchen, family-dining room, with glass doors to oak-shaded view deck. Professionally landscaped for low care. Three bedrooms, 2 luxurious baths. Greenbrae.

Best Value $38,500

An Acre Wonderland $44,500
Prize plants throughout: Azaleas, exotic ferns, even a jade tree—and roses. (A catalog of these prize-winners goes with the house!) Trees, paths, brick patios, trails and a view. Inside, the most immaculate older home you can imagine. Three bedrooms, sunny office-den, dining room, fully-equipped sewing room. 1½ baths.

Esherick-designed $49,500
Well constructed, imaginatively designed; situated on a wooded acre to take full advantage of delightful wooded hill view. Three beautifully terraced and landscaped levels. An azalea bank under shade oak provides beautiful color through living room windows. Swimming pool, large patio adjoining. Three bedrooms, 2 baths, almost finished room below. Redwood paneling throughout. San Anselmo.

Elegance $58,500

Ultra Modern $79,500
Clarence Mayhew designed this "house of tomorrow," making creative use of Roman brick, glass, and a variety of well-chosen woods. Enormous view terrace runs the length of the house, with sliding glass doors from all rooms out onto it. Water, bridges, yachting activity and the East Bay are spread out below. Beautiful swimming pool and terrace, dressing rooms. Bayside Acres.

'Anything Goes' With Ross Players In Finale Slated To Begin On May 11

Group Going All Out With Cole Porter

The most ambitious production ever presented by the Ross Valley Players will have its opening night on May 11 at 8:30 p.m., with the group's finale of the current season, Cole Porter's musical-comedy "Anything Goes."

There will be seven performances at the Barn, of the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

The action is set mostly aboard a great trans-Atlantic steamship. Lionel Stott will have the role of a well-to-do American stock broker who has stowed away on the ship on a sudden impulse when he learns the girl he loves is London-bound to marry a stuffy Englishman (Peter Fitzhugh) to save her family's fortune.

Maudee Wilcutt will have this role of the self-sacrificing young girl, and Florence Lesoine will be seen as a reformed evangelist who is destined for a night club engagement in London.

Some of Cole Porter's most impish and melodious songs are in this show. Among them are the title song, "Anything Goes," and an exuberant Porterish version of an old spiritual, "Blow, Gabriel, Blow." Other all-time song greats in the show are "You're the Top," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "All Through the Night," and "The Gypsy in Me."

Also featured in the large cast are Dr. Alex Beaton, Dr. Ted Schuster, Dora Blunden, Bobbie Dowd, Mervyn Dowd, Don Carlin, George Shistar, Percy McPartland, Bud O'Kane, Mike Lopez, Gaetan Ingrassia, Barbara Williamson, Erminia Sayers, Michael Sayers, Marjorie Ross, Mario Gainetti, Harry Mack, Sydney Dorn, Justin Handlos, Carol Staley, Jim Staley, Claudia Gilboy, Tom Gilboy, Julie White, Barbara Morrissey, and Jim Urquhart.

"Anything Goes" will be presented May 11, 12, 18, 19, 25, and June 1 and 2. Tickets and information are available through Orrick Travel Bureau, San Anselmo.

MARIN BUSINESS And INDUSTRY

By HARRY CRAFT

Visitors Bureau Launches Drive For Tourists' Dollars In Marin

Tourist dollars versus industry dollars. We need one or the other and the drive is on to get more of both into Marin County and relieve the tax burden.

The newly established Marin Visitors Bureau holds that the best bet is in the former, and since attracting any considerable amount of outside industry is likely to be a long drawn out process, perhaps it is right.

At least it is one organization brimming over with enthusiasm at this point willing to exert a concerted effort toward capitalizing on Marin's tourist and recreation potential. It will cost something to put the plan into action and needs support from business firms, organizations and individuals. The rewards may not be immediate, but they are probable.

Neighboring San Francisco is already a tourist and convention center so first benefits may accrue from picking up part of its overflow — something we haven't been able to do with its industry.

We're far short on facilities to house tourists and conventions and night life to entertain them—but there are other natural attractions.

NEW UPHOLSTERY BUSINESS is that of Rich Bottarini and Lou Ratto established at 826 Second Street, San Rafael.

Both have had years of experience in the trade—Rich, 15 years with Sam Busschaert, Lou, seven years with Haney and Whitt. Their wives will act as bookkeeper and secretary.

Firm name: Bottarini and Ratto. All types of auto glass and upholstery, sport tops, seat covers, boat canvas and cushions.

JACK MARSHALL, sales manager of McPhail's in San Rafael, reports that Frigidaire Division of General Motors has produced its 40-millionth product—a 13-cubic foot refrigerator-freezer which recently rolled off the production lines.

BUSINESS BRIEFS. Alves Pools and Pools by Mardy who probably do better than 50 per cent of swimming pool construction in Marin both say business is up more than 30 per cent from last year . . . Stan's Equipment for Sports will start moving stock into its new location at Third and Grand, San Rafael, next week and should be completely installed in 10 days after that . . . Annex Motors, successor to Redwood Motors, San Rafael, has added the Renault-Peugeot lines to its salesrooms.

INCREASED APARTMENTS EXPLAINED. Entrance of more married women into the nation's job market during the past few years is one reason for the greater demand and construction in apartments rather than single dwellings according to a national building supply executive.

Wives, emancipated from housework by automatic appliances and ready prepared foods, have gone back to work, he says. But 9 to 5 employment pressure is such that they prefer apartment conveniences for their after hours.

Workers Named For Lauterwasser

John R. Flor, former Larkspur judge and justice of the peace in Sausalito township, has been named campaign chairman for Russ Lauterwasser, candidate for county treasurer-tax collector. Treasurer is Theodore B. Craig, manager of the Crocker-Anglo Bank's East San Rafael office.

About 1,309 companies manufacture drugs today, with no single company accounting for as much as 10 per cent of total sales, according to the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

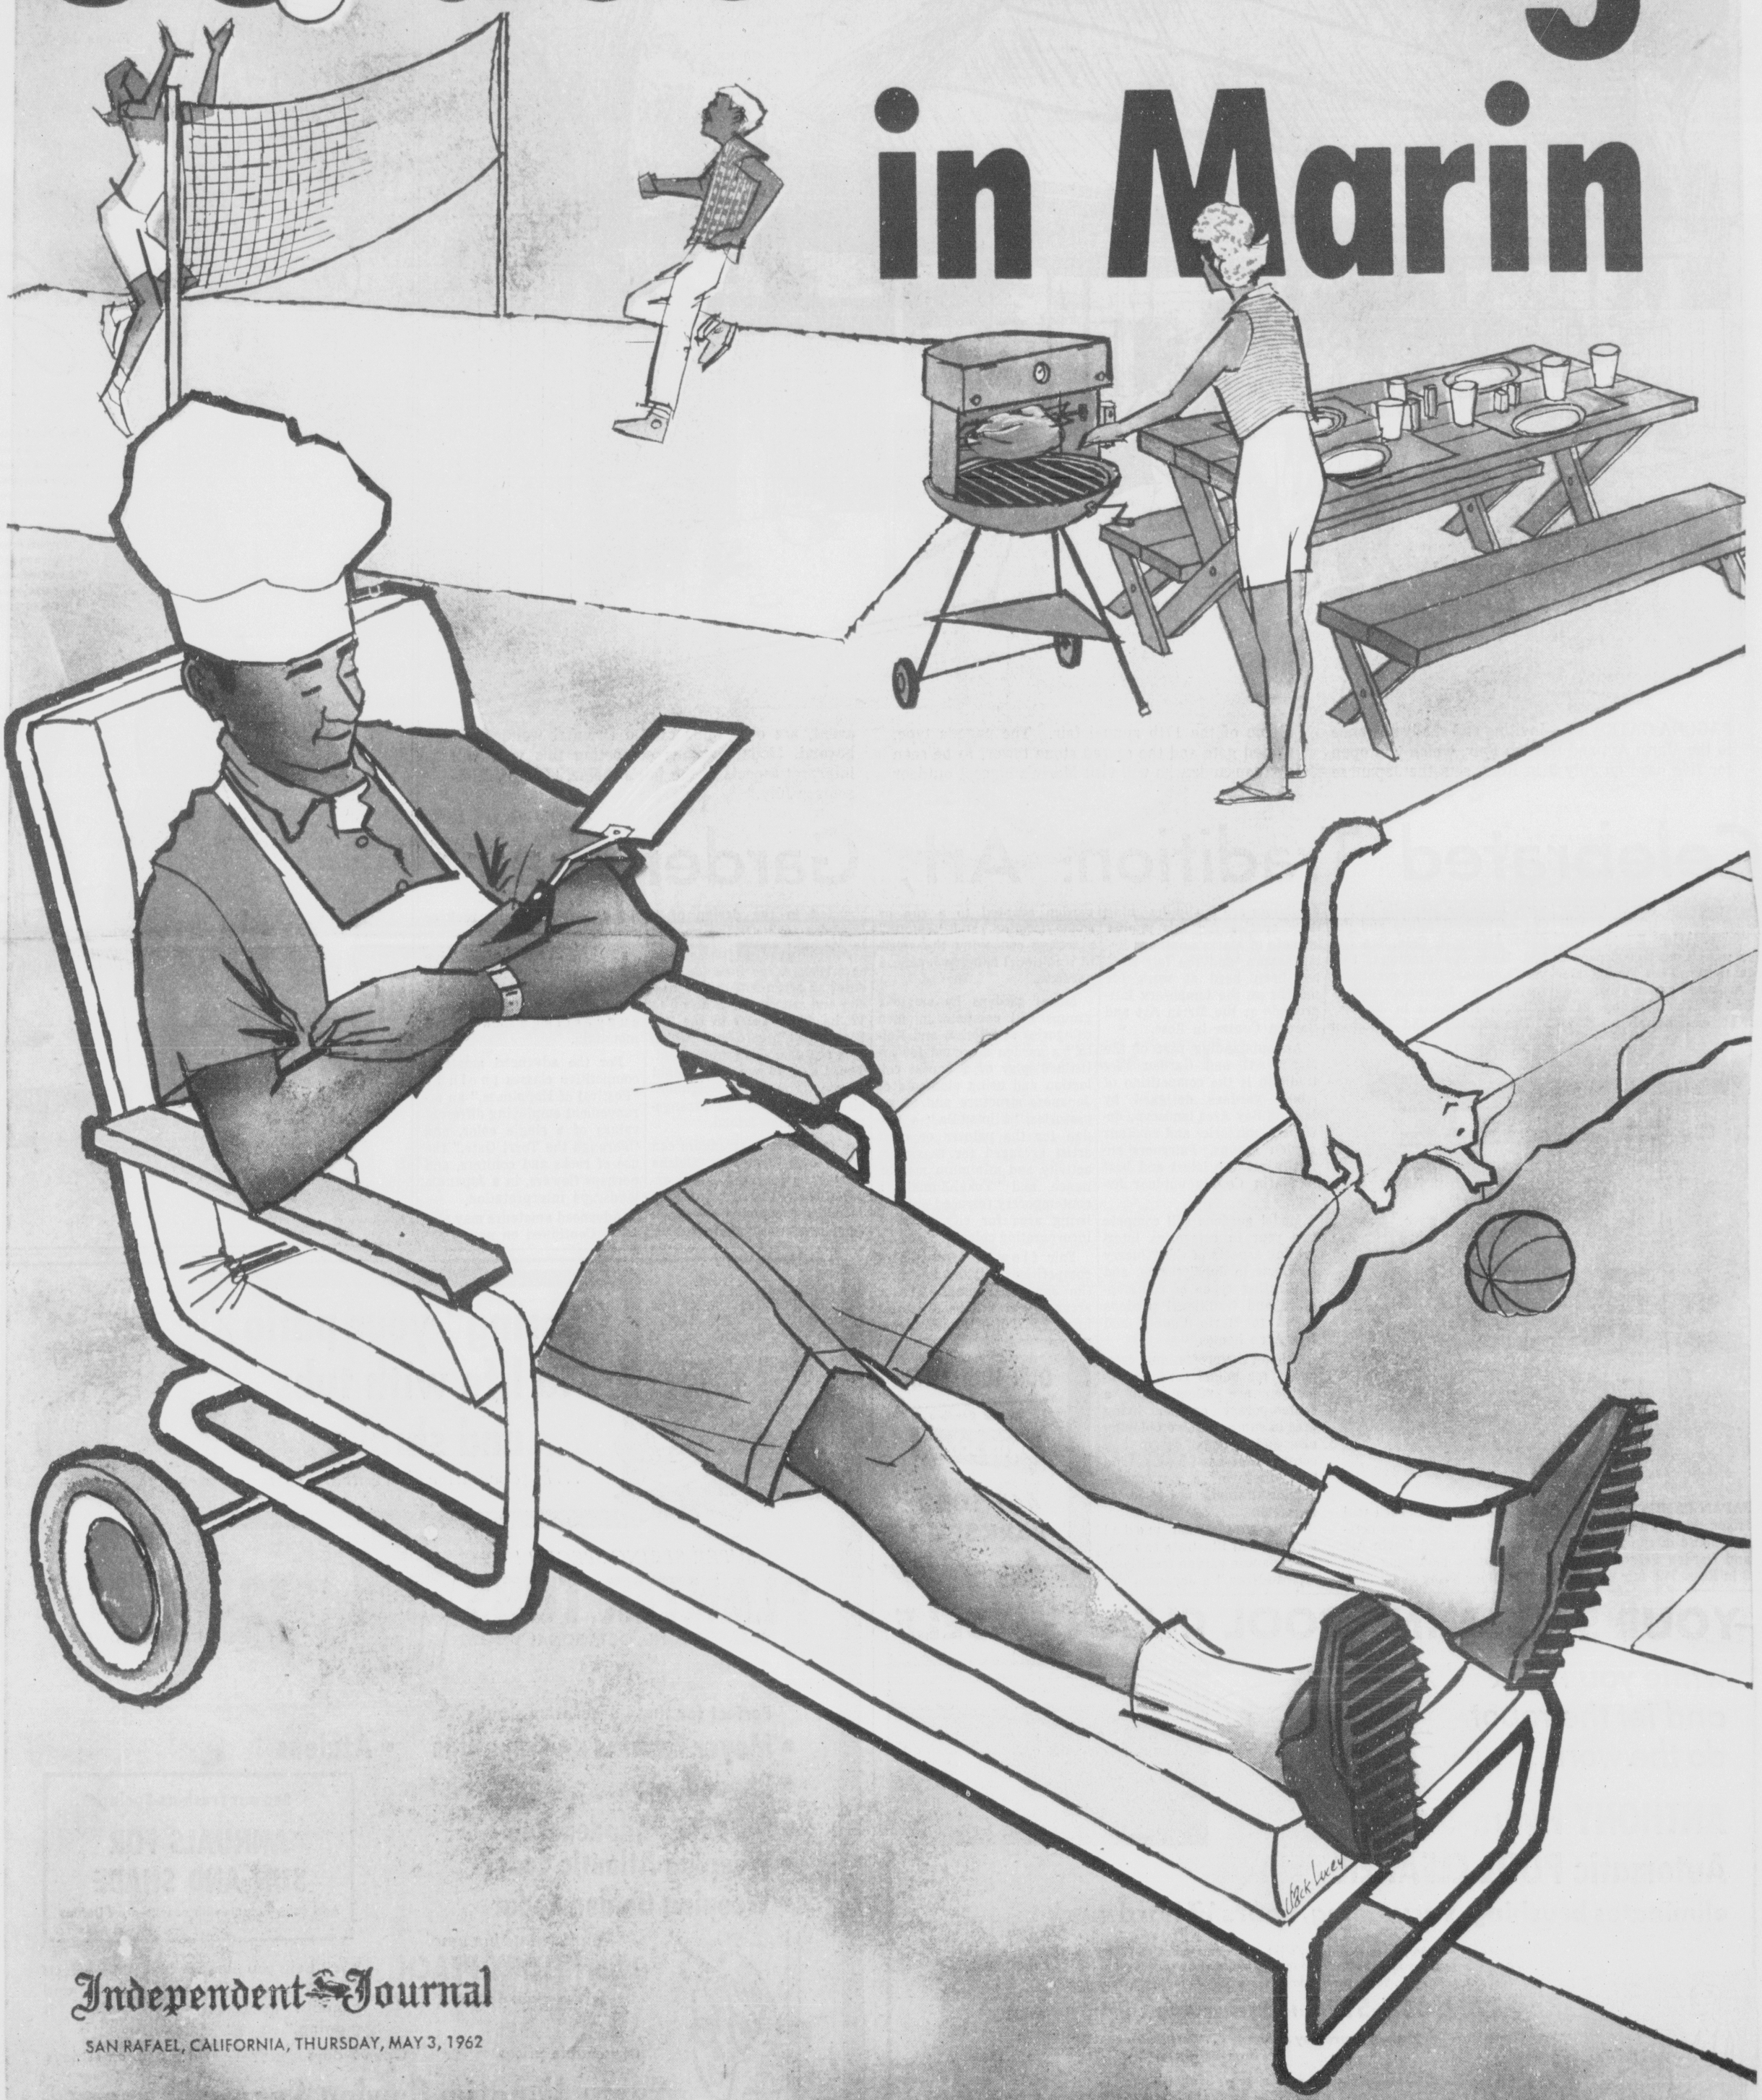
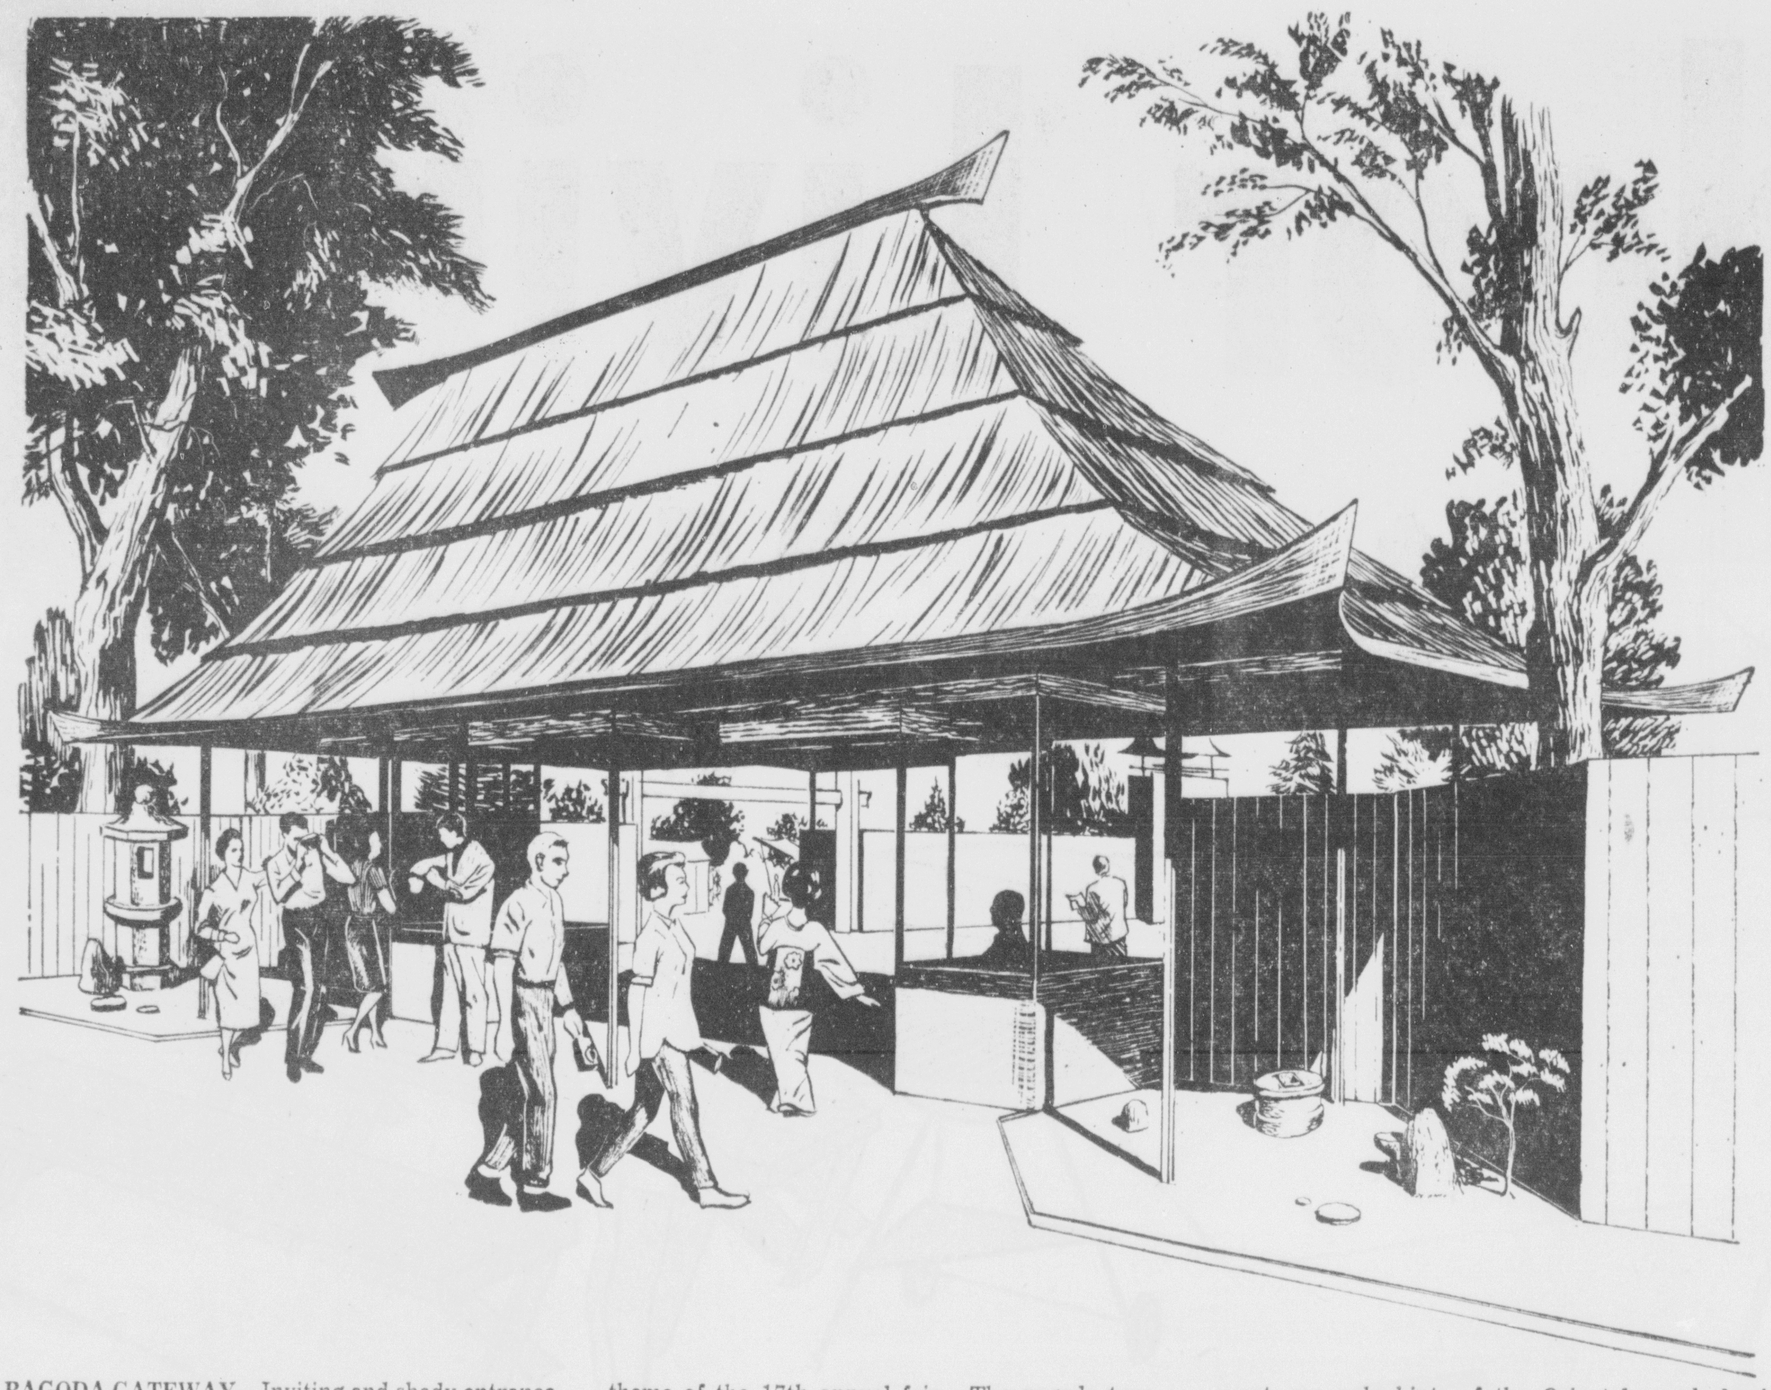
Outdoor Living in Marin



Independent-Journal
SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1962



PAGODA GATEWAY—Inviting and shady entrance to the Marin Art and Garden Fair, which will open for five days on July 3 in Ross, sets the Japanese theme of the 17th annual fair. The pagoda type, gabled gate and the sacred stone tower, to be seen by thousands who will visit Marin's biggest outdoor event, are only hints of the Oriental wonderland beyond. Model gardens competing this year will interpret aspects of the fair's theme, "Cherry Blossoms in July."

Celebrated Tradition: Art, Garden Fair

A celebrated Marin County outdoor living tradition will be renewed July 3-7 in Ross, when more than 30,000 people flock to the 17th annual Marin Art and Garden Fair.

Under the direction of a pair of five-time fair staff winners, manager Marcelle B. McCoy of Sleepy Hollow and designer Henry H. Cole, San Rafael landscape architect, this year's outdoor living event will feature a Japanese theme, "Cherry Blossoms in July."

Professional and amateur exhibitors are busily designing their entries for this annual keynote of Marin's outdoor living season, and the fair staff has been hard at work for months on the temporary fairgrounds at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

An outstanding part of the Marin Art and Garden Fair tradition is the competition of model gardens designed by leading Bay Area landscape designers, nurseries and amateur garden groups. Fairgoers annually see the latest and best in Marin County outdoor living.

Model gardens will compete this year in categories interpreting aspects of the "Cherry Blossoms in July" theme, and illustrating types of contemporary and traditional gardens suited to Marin County and Bay Area homes.

Among the professional categories for model garden competition are "Gendai-Fu," a contemporary outdoor living area in sun or shade employing new and unusual design and construction methods, and "Mizu-no-Riyo," a garden displaying dramatic use of water in motion.

Other professional model gardens will illustrate two major Japanese garden traditions: "Kansu-Niwa," a Japanese dry garden adapted to a sun or shade location, and "Shibui," a setting conveying the spirit of traditional non-dry Japanese gardens.

Model gardens by amateur groups will compete in such categories as "Bonsai and Kotto," a garden designed for artistic display of a bonsai collection and using elements of Japanese structure and/or accessories, "Gijutsu-Ba," a garden for the painter or craft artist arranged for maximum activity and minimum maintenance, and "Tokai-Zumai," a contemporary terraced outdoor living area for city dwellers incorporating colorful planting.

Fair flower arrangement competitions will also interpret the Japanese theme. Flower arrangement will be displayed in a new Hall of Flowers, constructed in the design of a Japanese teahouse.

A 6 to 8 year old junior flower arranger, for instance, can enter an arrangement in a tiny cup and saucer. Or if he's 9 to 12, he might enter in the 'My Rice Bowl," category, which lists neatness as a requirement. The 13 to 16 year old might choose "The Good Neighbor" class, and design an arrangement for a new friend.

For the advanced amateur, competitive classes include "Festival of Happiness," an arrangement employing different values of a single color, and "Through the Torri Gate," the use of rocks and conifers, and perhaps flowers, in a Japanese landscape interpretation.

Advanced amateurs may also

JAPAN COMES TO ROSS—Traditional Japanese Torii will frome the Art and Garden Center's classic American octagon house of the 1880s during the 17th annual Marin Art and Garden Fair scheduled for five days beginning July 3 in Ross. The fair will highlight outdoor living at its best.

Timely Radio For Traveler

Small enough to fit into a handbag or the pocket of a man's shirt, the miniature watch-radio has an alarm clock attachment that turns on the radio at a preset time.

STONE AND WOOD GATEWAY

Roofed gateway to a Japanese garden, constructed by George Murata, Corte Madera landscape designer, combines Western lines with Oriental design. The stone lantern, or "Toro" as it is known in Japan, is a familiar and perfect complement to the entrance. Natural river-washed stone from a Lassen County river bed, placed with skill and care, add to the beauty of the functional doorway. Murata designed and built this example of Japanese garden structure several years ago for the Marin Art and Garden Fair. (Ken Molino photo)

Marin Barbecue's Granddaddy Was A Fiesta

By DOROTHY S. GARDINER

When a Marin resident tosses a steak on the barbecue and settles back to enjoy the night air he is unknowingly following a tradition that was started here 120 years ago.

During the 1830s and 1840s Marin was settled by a small group of men who had been given large land grants by the Mexican government that then owned California.

A fiesta was more than a one night affair. It lasted two to four days on the average and sometimes longer.

Guests arrived on horseback from as far away as San Jose. The Marin host did his best to make the long, dusty trip worthwhile.

Whole steers were roasted on open fires by the Indian servants. The bull's head was packed with clay and cooked over night in a fire pit a few feet under the ground to be served the next day as a delicacy.

After the evening meal the elegantly dressed group waltzed and polkaed to guitar and violin music. The women wore bright silk gowns and the men velvet jackets and breeches. The early Californian reputedly danced all night at fiesta time.

The next day the guests were given a choice of joining the ladies and the more quiet dons at a picnic in the woods or the men at the horse corral.

Guests might also choose an afternoon of bear lassoing. They ride into the hills, tracked a grisley and lassoed it.

The Americans and Europeans who settled in Marin after California's admission to the Union in 1850 quickly adopted the out door way of life started by the dons.

The narrow gauge North Pacific Coast ran picnic specials from Sausalito to San Rafael and Fairfax in the late 1800s and early years of this century.

The narrow gauge's rival, the San Francisco and North Pacific line, also ran picnic specials from Tiburon to San Rafael.

Later many of these weekend passengers became early Marin residents when they built summer homes along the slopes of the Ross Valley.

TEA HOUSE OF THE JULY MOON—A flower pavillion designed on the lines of a Japanese tea house will house flower arrangements, cut flowers and horticulture at the 17th annual Marin Art and Garden Fair opening in Ross on July 3. "Cherry Blossoms in July" is the theme of the fair which will offer Marin visitors a glimpse of the wonders of Oriental decor.

HELP STAMP OUT FLIES

Put Bite On Garden Pests Before They Put It On You

An outdoor garden party can be practically ruined if uninvited pests — mosquitoes, flies and other insects — decide to join your guests in the food fare.

1. Empty containers that might catch rain water. Mosquito larvae develop only in standing, stagnant water. Keep drain pipes unclogged so water doesn't collect. Get rid of potted tree stumps where water accumulates.

2. If you have an ornamental pond, add some surface-feeding minnows. They're great mosquito larvae gobblers.

4. Cut the grass. If it's high, mosquitoes may seek shelter there from sun and wind by day and still be there at night.

5. Set tables away from trees, shrubs and other foliage if possible. They're hiding places for biting foes.

6. Before exposing food, if it isn't a windy day, mist the party area. Use a space insecticide rather than a residual type to spray the air. You'll want the mist to drift into shrubs, hedges and down into the lawn. So be sure any household aerosol insecticide employed is labeled for use on plants, too.

7. To help fight flies, pick up as the party progresses.

9. To discourage the few hungry invaders who may still penetrate your outer defenses, try an application of insect repellent to ankles, arms and other exposed areas. A few sprays from a nongreasy type should do the trick.

Apply Sun Lotion Neat, New Way

Swimming Pool Owners May Not Have To Sweep, Brush Again

If you're one of the 6,000 owners of swimming pools in Marin County there may be a magic invitation in the slogan "Never brush or vacuum your pool again!"

For many a pool owner has found that along with the fun he expected, he took on a lot of hard work.

Howard M. Arneson's No-Vac Pool Equipment Co. of 1218 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, has removed this chore from the lives of some 500 northern California pool owners within the four years of his company's existence through sales of an automatic device invented by a Marinite.

Inventor of what is now known as the Anthony Hydra-Sweep is Andrew Pasani, 180 Los Cerros Drive, Greenbrae. Pasani is also president of the Union Square Garage Corp. in San Francisco.

Once Pasani's cleaner device came to the attention of Anthony Pools, which terms itself the world's largest builder of swimming pools and operates from the Los Angeles area, patent rights were promptly acquired on a basis of royalty for Pasani.

Anthony reputedly turns out about 3,000 swim pools a year, whereas for most builders a yearly total of 300 is considered good. In marketing this number of pools, the Anthony people could see they were well advised to market also the best gadget they'd ever seen for making pool owners happy.

"You relax, your robot works," say the Anthony people who temptingly declare people who temptingly declare that "there is nothing so soothing and relaxing as lolling by the edge of your pool watching this industrious little robot doing your cleaning for you."

Moreover, the job it does is probably better than you could, it's claimed. Long jet-propelled hose-arms swing tirelessly to clean floor, walls and tile. Loosened dust, lint, ashes and sand are washed down the drain.

Everything about the operation is automatic except for setting the gadget to jet-propelling itself around the pool, swishing and swirling and "hydra-sweeping" to complete cleanliness in about two hours at cost of less than one old-nickel.

Composing the "hydra-sweep" is a combination of three elements — a high-pressure water jet directed across bottom and sides of pool, a clock-controlled pump to provide the water under pressure, and an ingenious mechanism to move the jets around the pool bottom and sides.

The cleaner includes two weighted, jet-propelled hoses suspended from a rotating carrier arm to swirl in a pattern. After the cleaner makes two and a half rotations at one end of the pool, automatic reversal of a water jet swings the whole cleaner to the other end for another two and one-half rotations. The whole pool is continuously swept.

Operation for two hours daily is said to keep the average pool in sparkling shape. Algae may be cured by use of a heavy chemical shock treatment plus use of the cleaner for a 24 to 48-hour cycle.

Spotlight On Outdoor Sports

A powerful waterproof searchlight expected to see heavy use in outdoor sports as well as in emergency work and law enforcement is now on the market.

The searchlight provides 80,000 candlepower, but is only 10 inches long and uses only six ordinary batteries. Combining balance and compactness for easy handling, it is sealed and will prove a boon to skin divers this summer.

The polyethylene plastic from which Dynalite is molded will not runs, corrode or rot, and the switch is the new "trouble-free" type.

Ride In Safety When On Vacation

A sudden jolt or swerve could cause an accident. If safety belts are not in use, face forward and keep feet firmly on the floor.

ART, GARDEN FAIR: MARIN TRADITION

Professional garden exhibitors will also enter collections of flowers in fair competition: orchids, begonias, fuchsias, geraniums, hydrangeas, chrysanthemums, and others. Specimen plants, including bamboo, philodendrum and banana palm will be exhibited also.

Professionals and amateurs will compete for an overall $15,465 in cash premiums.

Other "Cherry Blossoms in July" attractions will include fine arts and photography competitions, entertainment and commercial booths. The fair will open July 3 at 6 p.m., after all-day judging of the exhibits. Hours July 4-7 will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Garden Furniture Needs Painting

Nothing loks more depressing than dingy outdoor furniture. On the other hand, dingy outdoor furniture needs nothing more than some colorful quality enamel to look bright and new again.

To determine the success of your job, however, be sure to use only a quality enamel.

Living Out Doesn't Have To Be Work

Homemaker's Ability Comes In Handy

"Most outdoor parties are endurance contests for guests as well as the host and hostess."

That observation comes from Margaret Spader, home service consultant for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assn. She says that one of the best ways to evaluate the "managerial ability" of a homemaker is to watch how she manages the family's transition to outdoor living.

FIRST THING

The first thing to remember when the weather turns warm is to keep trips indoors to a minimum. This means providing storage space outside for items such as furniture, cooking equipment, serving needs, etc.

Many homemakers look forward to outdoor cooking, for it saves traffic and cleaning indoors. One good investment for the outdoor cook is a gas-fired grill, for it provides heat immediately and the flame can be positively controlled.

WITH MASONRY

The grills can be installed in masonry, or you can get them in portable carts that can be moved indoors for use in winter. Accessories such as spits, rotisseries, griddles, automatic ignition and ventilating hoods are available, too.

You can cook in black bottom foil pans that conduct the heat efficiently. These disposable utensils have encouraged many an outdoor cook to increase her selection of foods prepared outdoors. It's a good idea to buy a small package of different types of these and decide which best serves your needs.

A Stack Of Beds

Make a stack of foam rubber bed pads for your summer cottage to accommodate weekend guests. Cover them in harmonizing colors and stack them on top of each other for a divan during the day.

Here's Some Tips On How To Have A Carefree Summer With Clothes

The picnic table and barbecue grill are set up in the back yard; dad's golf clubs are ready for action; the children are ready for anything. The carefree summer season is here again.

Carefree? For whom? What about meals, housework, laundry? It's true there are certain jobs that can't be ignored regardless of the temptation, but there are short cuts that will make the housework less demanding.

Take the laundry. Your most important time-saver is wash-and-wear clothing. Play clothes, slacks, sport shirts, dresses and even home furnishings are available in popular wash-and-wear fabrics. Many can be worn without ironing.

Follow these simple instructions for proper laundering. Wash frequently in short cycles — three to six minutes for light and moderately soiled articles, six to 10 minutes for heavily soiled articles.

Wash synthetic fabrics in cold or warm water; resin-finished cottons in warm or hot water. Always rinse in cold.

(NOTE: The one exception to this rule is a skirt with pleats, which must always be drip-dried for top performance.)

You'll find the new starches packaged in aerosol containers another big help in keeping laundry time down. The spray-on starches require no mixing, no dipping and no waiting for clothes to dry. You spray the starch right on the ironing board.

By following these suggestions from the Maytag Home Service Department, you can reduce laundry time even if the volume is large and give yourself a carefree summer.

Plan Your Daily Driving On Vacation

By proper scheduling of your daily driving, you can make this year's family vacation a pleasant and relaxing experience instead of a fatiguing and dangerous ordeal.

Plan to start your daily driving during the early morning hours when traffic is light. An early before-breakfast start will put lots of relatively easy driving behind you before the highways get crowded.

A light, easily digested breakfast and another two hours of driving will enable you to cover from 150 to 200 miles by mid-morning, when a coffee-break should be taken.

After another 90 minutes on the highway, a light lunch will prepare you for the last driving stretch of the day. A final two hours on the highway will wind up your day's driving, leaving plenty of time to secure good motel or hotel accommodations, enjoy sightseeing and have a good night's sleep.

A schedule of about six hours of driving a day enables you to cover between 300 and 350 miles, the limit recommended by most driving authorities. Drivers who push themselves to make 500 or 600 miles a day turn vacation trips into driving marathons that leave them physically exhausted and prone to make mistakes that could result in accidents.

Proper scheduling that ends the driving day by mid-afternoon enables drivers to avoid nighttime hazards and fatigue caused by overdriving.

Bike Trips Pleasant For Both Young, Old

Bike trips are pleasant adventures for young and old. And increasingly large numbers of vacationers are rediscovering the joys of cycling. A major reason for this trend is the growing interest in riding among adults of college age who use their two-wheelers daily on campus.

Many younger riders depend wholly upon their two-wheelers for all of their vacation transportation, mapping out an itinerary and timetable which will return them home in plenty of time for school or work.

Before embarking upon a bike trip, riders should make certain they are properly conditioned by riding an hour or two each evening for a week or so prior to the trip. In this way, fatigue on the trip can be avoided.

Cycling is an excellent conditioner for the vacationist who has been desk-bound all year, since it can be as gentle or as strenuous as the rider likes. Inexperienced cyclists have found that after two or three days on the road, a 60-mile jaunt can be taken in stride.

Don't Coast On Hills

Tempted to coast downhill when you're mountain driving? It's illegal in some states. Come down in second or low gear instead, and use your brake as a snubber.

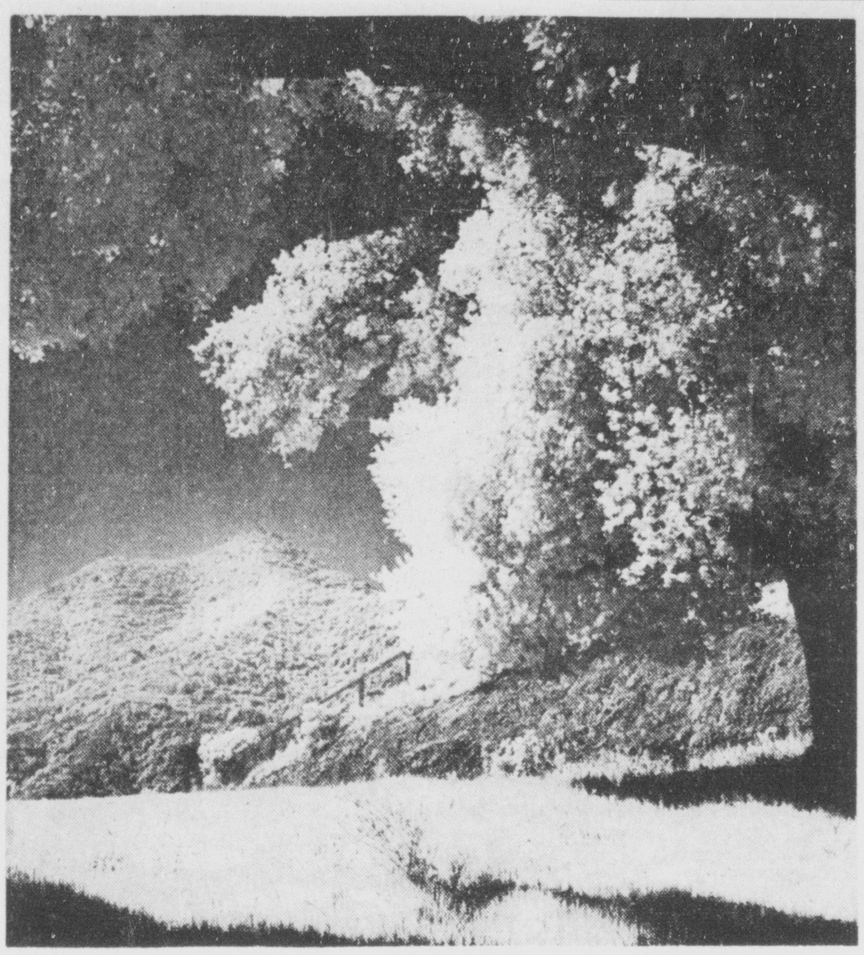
A Japanese house is traditionally reached through a garden, and this design by Corte Madera landscape designer George Murata is no exception. Materials utilized by Murata were pea gravel laid on good lines, special plantings of pines, Bonsai and hardy perennials, plus a few well placed river stones. A redwood gateway, also designed by Murata, joins the ensemble to form a serene approach to the home. (Ken Molino photo)



CLOSEUP OF THE SLEEPING MAIDEN

Keep Outdoor Furniture Looking Good

This is due to a new polyurethane varnish that actually absorbs destructive ultraviolet sun rays and leaves a clear, protective coating that can take rough use, extreme weather, wind, salt water and active children.

The varnish can be brushed, sprayed or rolled on any surface and can be cleaned with soap and water. It also protects the finish of all of your outdoor metal furniture and equipment with a completely transparent film.

If you're planning a patio party and your furniture needs touching up, Martin Senour's Astro-Var dries in less than an hour and the furniture can be freely used by your guests in less than two and a half hours.

Savory Meat Loaf

Meat loaf is a good dish to serve outdoors. To give it a new twist, make a ring mold. Fill the center with rice cooked in tomato juice, mashed potatoes or potato salad.

Hurricane Lamp Is Good For Outdoors

Glue a six-inch styrofoam circle on top of an eight-inch one to make a base. Hollow out center to fit bottom of hurricane lamp.

Around edge of base place six Kurly Kate pot cleaners and fasten them with small colored hat pins. Place ribbon bows between pot cleaners. Bows and flowers can be changed to match color of place mats or tablecloths.

Cool And Tasty

For a summer dessert that's cool looking and easy enough even for the children to make, try enhancing ice cream by topping with various types of candy such as crushed peanut brittle, crushed pastel mint patties or nuts.

WONDERLAND OF NATURE'S HANDIWORK

Clean Garden Tools Add To The View

Next time you survey the view from your terrace or porch remember that landscapes require strategic and faithful care.

The strategy is caring for lawns, hedges and flower beds lies in working with clean tools.

If sap and the good earth remain on cutting edges and other surfaces, they can cause tools to rust or otherwise deteriorate. Clean equipment also enables you to work more quickly, more easily and more effectively.

So every week or so set aside time for cleaning outdoor tools. It's helpful to use a double pail —one half for suds and the other for rinse water. Use a well-lathered sponge or soft cloth to wash hedge shears, small forks, clippers and similar equipment. Rinse and wipe with a sponge or cloth. When the tools are thoroughly dry, shears and clipper joints may be oiled sparingly.

A rubber or plastic garden hose will last longer if kept clean, so remove and wash the hose nozzle and then draw the hose through the fold of a well-lathered mitt — perhaps a sponge rubber car-washing mitt. Rinse well, checking for possible breaks at the same time.

When dry, coil the hose around a hose holder or hang it over two large hooks in the garage or basement.

Good Grooming Is Important For Good Outdoor Living

Who said bathing suits and deodorants don't go together? Summer living out-of-doors has become a way of life. But good grooming shouldn't stop at the front door.

In warmer weather, use a deodorant twice a day, once, immediately after your morning shower and second time around, when you freshen up for the evening.

When packing your beauty bag, include a deodorant which dries instantly, such as a pad deodorant. The pad is disposable and a fresh one used each time.

Check the "pH" or acidity factor of your deodorant, say experts at 5 Day Laboratories. A high or very low "pH" factor means a possible irritation factor.

Last, don't be selfish. Advise the men and teen-agers in your family to use deodorants.

Keep Fan Clean During Summer

Remember to clean your fan with soap or detergent suds two or three times during the summer.

Lilac Furniture

BEACHES POPULAR WITH MARINITES

PRODUCERS OF MARIN'S MILK

These Holsteins, returning the curious stares of passers-by on the Point Reyes-Petaluma Highway, are a few of the producers of Marin's milk supply from the far reaches of the county. Although the county's dairy industry is diminishing, there are still many acres on which stock roam. (Independent-Journal photo)

Motor Storage Tip

It's no longer necessary to drain outboard and marine engine fuel systems before winter storage if you use an additive developed by Du Pont that prevents formation of gum.

Matchless Safety

Keep a flashlight in the bedroom of your summer cottage and use it instead of matches if you must search in the closets for items you've packed away.

Tips On How To Keep Menus Cool For Your Outdoor Meals

One thing on everyone's mind when warm weather strikes is how to keep cool. Menus planned at home should be focused around light, yet filling food, with beverages cold and refreshing, but energy-giving, too.

One such, an all-season, beverage, makes a delightful punch for outdoor parties. It's called "summer bouquet" and is made from the juices of raw fruits. Mix one pint of fresh grape juice, one-quarter cup fresh lemon juice, one-half cup orange juice, one cup fresh pineapple juice, one cup strained honey, the grated rind of one lemon and one orange and a dash of nutmeg. Pour over crushed ice and garnish with mint.

Another drink that can easily become a family favorite is "sparkling float." Use two-thirds of a cup of strained fresh lemon juice, two ripe bananas, mashed, and one cup powdered sugar. Blend and chill in refrigerator for one hour. Then add one cup heavy cream, one pint orange ice, and one cup chilled ginger ale. Serve immediately in tall glasses with orange segments.

"Blackberry delight," made from two quarts of the juice of ripe blackberries, juice of six lemons, six oranges and a quart of ginger ale, should be served over cracked ice.

Tourists Buy More Souvenirs Than In Past

More tourists are buying souvenirs today than ever before. They want to have something as a remembrance of their trip and to show friends where they've been.

Lester B. Dill, of the eMramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo., reports that more people buy souvenirs in the underground shop than actually tour the ancient, five-story cave.

This is the cave where Jesse James and his gang hid out during the 1870s, and the souvenir shop has over 100 different varieties of gifts bearing the Jesse James motif—from playing cards to toy guns.

LAUNCHING FOR A DAY'S OUTING

Children Restless On Trips? Here's How To Keep 'Em Busy

Nobody has completely solved the problem of how to keep children from growing restless on long motoring trips, but a few tried-and-tested tips have been picked up over the years.

When children become restless on trips, it's not because they are "bad." Frequently, it's just that proper thought has not been given to their needs by the parents.

Before setting out, tell the children the area of your travels and let them discuss it with their friends and teachers. Most nation-wide gas and oil companies will be glad to map out a trip route for you. The route is prepared at a central office by experts, and it will indicate sites of historical significance and points of interest to note along the way. Once on the road, a game can be made out of letting the children find the places mapped.

Books, crayons and cards will help to keep young passengers occupied, and there are a number of "car games" that can be played.

Good Advice On Care Of Flowers

"Love your flowers. By some subtle sense the dear things always detect their friends and for them will live longer and bloom more freely than they ever will for strangers."

Written back in 1870, these quaint words of advice still hold good today, and with our present scientific knowledge of flower care, we can keep our flowers blooming and fresh longer.

One of the first musts in cutting flower care is to keep vases spotless to prevent bacterial growth. Wash them daily with a baking soda solution of two tablespoons of soda per quart of water. Let the solution stand for a few minutes, then rinse.

Shellac Screens For Better Looks

Terry Is Versatile

Terrycloth is a welcome guest at banquet and barbecue alike. Whether it's a rustic place mat for the patio or a high-style full cloth for the dining, terrycloth is now appropriate.

Father Comes Into His Own ---Barbecues!

When Americans first adopted the barbecue as a favorite form of summer cookery, equipment resembled that found in the tepees of the original dwellers. Today, however, all is changed, and the real barbecue enthusiast is as particular about the "tools" for his culinary pursuits as the dedicated fisherman or golfer.

FOR FATHER

With the barbecue, dad usually comes into his own as the head of the cooking department and wants equipment worthy of his talents.

To get ready for your summer cookouts, make a list of the equipment you will need. Here is a list of items required for a well-equipped barbecue:

A good-size charcoal grill, a five-piece barbecue tool set, chef's apron, mitts and hat, grill cover, patio lights, a hamburger press, skewers, turners and a set of stackable patio tables.

FIRST GLANCE

At first glance, this may seem to involve a sizable budget. "Actually," says Violet Hackim, home adviser for F. W. Woolworth, "all of this equipment can be had for less than $40."

Since dad has the cooking under control, mother's job might be to lay in a supply of sauces, condiments and throw-away plates to be stored on the pantry shelf.

Take Precautions When You Leave Home On Your Trip

Homeowners planning a vacation absence this year will be able to relax and have more fun if a few simple precautionary measures have been taken to protect their unoccupied dwellings. Here's a check list that should be of help:

1. Cut off al electricity by pulling the master switch or main fuses. This will avoid all doubts about whether or not you turned off all appliances.

2. Shut off water supply to avoid leaks.

3. Remove accumulations of old rags, oil or paint cans, to avoid the possibility of fires from spontaneous combustion.

4. Lock all doors and windows.

5. Stop deliveries of milk or anything else you receive on a regular basis.

6. If you heat by gas, ask the company to turn off the supply to guard against leaks or breaks.

7. Have all roof repairs attended to before you leave and check gutters and downspouts to see that they are not clogged with leaves.

8. Empty refrigerator and freezer — defrost, and leave ajar.

9. Pull curtains and blinds to protect furniture from light and dust.

10. Close damper in fireplace.

11. If desired, give key to responsible person so that he can make an occasional inspection.

12. Notify police in the neighborhood that you will be away.

ONCE-POPULAR SPORT MAKES COMEBACK

Remember First Aid Supplies Needed To Enjoy Outdoors

Whether you're planning a weekend in the country, a cross-country driving trip, an afternoon at the swimming pool, or an after-work game of tennis—it's a fact that you have to feel fit if you want to enjoy the outing to its fullest. A seemingly minor accident or illness, such as a bruised finger or a headache, often can be enough to ruin what would otherwise be a fine time.

A little advance thinking, however, can make a big difference, if you remember to keep a few essential first aid supplies with you at all times.

One good idea is to make several well-equipped, but small, easy-to-carry first aid kits. Use any cardboard or tin box, and make enough kits so you'll have one for the glove compartment of the car, one to stow away with your fishing gear, one for the kitchen and the workshop, and a few extras to toss in with your tennis equipment, beach bag or sailing supplies.

Here's a recommendation list of items to be included in your pocket-sized first aid kit: Aspirin, a small tube of petroleum jelly for treatment of mild burns, cuts or abrasions, six to eight individually wrapped one-inch adhesive gauze pads for bandaging cuts, an ammonia inhalant in case of fainting, a tube of balm to protect lips from extreme wind-burn or sunburn, about six antiseptically treated cotton swab sticks for disinfecting open wounds, and a small vial of antimotion sickness pills.

With these supplies and some knowledge of first aid, you can help reduce the discomforts of minor accidents.

Man Who Owns Boat Most Likely One Who Maintains Appearance

The man who owns a boat is more likely than not the one who maintains its appearance and operating performance. Any items that will keep his boat gleaming and his motor smoothly purring are welcome news to him.

Boating aids, introduced a short time ago, included cellulose sponge products designed for -specific marine cleaning jobs, marine oil additive to improve engine performance, metal polish and cleaner, an aerosol spray which dries wet ignition systems, fuel additive to aid quick starting, canvas water repellant for protection of boat covers and tarpaulins, boat soap effective either in fresh or salt water, and bilge cleaner, which does its work through the rolling action of the boat.

All of these are proving invaluable to owners of every size and type of boat. The fuel additive, especially, plays an important role, for with its use, the boat owner need no longer drain outboard and marine engine fuel systems before winter storage. A few ounces of marine fuel additive will permit full fuel tank winter storage, free of gum, rust, corrosion or water-in-gas troubles at spring launching.

Among them is a boat bottom cleaner which removes scum and algae (not barnacles) from boat bottoms without the need of scraping; fiberglass cleaner, in paste form, which removes dirt and small scratches; and a "giant deckhand," described as the biggest sponge afloat, designed for cleaning large areas. If you spring a leak, you'll find it's a staunch friend for fast bailing.

Predict The Weather During Your Vacation

It isn't hard to predict weather when you're on a driving trip, if you know what signs to look for. Clouds, sky colors and wind directions are your clues. Here's how to interpret them:

1. Morning or evening skies of dull red color mean rain within 24 hours. So does glaring white sunlight behind dark cloud masses.

2. Fair weather follows a dawn when morning frost or ground dew are seen. Fluffy white clouds scattered over a light blue sky foretell no rain for at least a day.

3. If south to southwest winds send fleecy clouds scurrying—rain within one and one-half days. North to northeast winds may make the sky look overcast . . . but you can bet it won't rain for at least two days.

4. Strong winds are on the way if the sky is marked with bright yellow streaks. Pale yellow often predicts rain in less than a day.

5. Rosy skies bring good weather. So wait for them, take off and have a good trip!

OUTDOOR LIVING IS OUR MOST IMPORTANT PRODUCT

MARIN VISITORS BUREAU

Your newly incorporated, county-wide Visitors Bureau has been established to conserve our scenic beauties, spur business growth, and encourage community progress.

We aim to do this by capitalizing on Marin's outstanding attractions, drawing new visitors in ever-increasing numbers.

Our glorious outdoor living is our greatest "product"—but there are others, such as Marin's superb restaurants, stores, facilities and services of all kinds, and our historic points of interest.

To do this job for Marin—to draw new tourist dollars into the County and multiply them, year by year, we need YOUR membership support.

OUTDOOR LIVING IN PARADISE CAY

Waterfront living is exemplified in this model home in the sprawling Paradise Cay development off Paradise Drive. This three bedroom home with huge family room and large patio tie-in the outdoors with casual living. Charles Hendrickson of San Rafael is the builder. Homesites in the area which provide docks for individual owners range from $10,000 to $22,500. Visitors are invited to this and other models in the subdivision, dedicated to yachtsmen.

RESIDENTIAL SALES OFFICE

A sales office often sets the pattern for outdoor living in a residential area, as in the case of the Del Mar sales office off the Tiburon Highway. Work Furlough Is Taken Away

A petite young blonde from Oakland, who is serving a county jail term after testifying for the prosecution in the San Quentin dope smuggling case last January, may be in further trouble.

Work furlough privileges for Anna Marie Kellam, 25, were canceled Monday, just six days before she was to be released from jail. Mrs. Kellam's release date would have been next Sunday. Now, she is scheduled to appear in Marin Superior Court on Monday for possible revocation of probation.

Mrs. Kellam had been serving a 60-day sentence with work furlough and has been a model inmate, according to jail matrons. Monday, however, probation officials learned that she had been leaving jail each morning for "work" when she had no job for the past three weeks.

Camping In Marin Parks Can Be Really Great

Camping is enjoying one of the greatest booms in its history and part of the growing popularity is attributed to the evolution of "campers"—automobiles especially adapted for "living out."

No little part in the growth of camping is played by the great improvement made in recent years in public camping facilities such as Samuel Taylor State Park in Marin County.

It is visited annually during the camping season, especially on weekends, by thousands of families who find roughing it in comfort just their cup of tea.

Of course, the veteran camper will prefer the untarnished wilderness to a developed park with hot showers, concrete pillard tables and benches, food lockers, flushing toilets, and guided tours. But for the lover of comfort in the great out of doors, for the housewife who is "not too sure," or for the family with many small ones, the State Parks cannot be beat.

What a number of Marin families in particular have found about Taylor Park is that they do not have to wait for summer or the "season" to enjoy camping.

A typical midweek camping excursion by the Ken Molino family, of San Rafael, usually starts about mid-afternoon on an impulse brought on by too hot weather or just an urge to get away from routine for a brief period.

The unexpected call home, ". . .want to go camping tonight?" is the signal for some minor preparations. For instance, father picks up some ice for the campers built-in ice box.

Mother gathers the edibles (no need to worry about utensils, bedding, or anything more . . .they're always in the camper, ready to go.)

A quick change of clothes and a half hour later the family is picking out a campsite and purchasing their firewood from the Taylor Park ranger. It is illegal to gather wood in the park since fallen wood is part of the natural terrain and also, as it decomposes, serves to nurture the trees for years to come.

After a delicious dinner (anything from hot dogs to steak is delicious under these conditions,) a quiet hike, and perhaps a bedtime story for son Mario, the Molino family beds down for the night.

No alarm clocks are needed on this sort of outing. The first light of dawn brings sounds of the awakening of Taylor Park's year-around residents. Then there is the smell of campfires being started, bacon frying, and it's time to get up.

Usually while breakfast is being prepared on these overnight jaunts father has time for a hot shower in one of the park's strategically located facilities.

After breakfast it's time to fold camp, and return to the workaday world (it's easy to be on the job by 9 a.m. without noticeably hurrying.)

The therapeutic effect of these quicky-vacations is almost as great as a long weekend excursion, according to the Molinos. There are fewer people using the Park's facilities during mid-week and the value of getting-away-from-it-all right now and not when "we get a chance," is unquestionable.

With wonderful Samuel Taylor State Park in our backyard and the moderate climate of the county there's no reason Marin campers can't enjoy their hobby year around.

$250 Motor Disappears

A 1955 V-8 motor worth $250 disappeared from the property of Avella and Kircher Excavators just north of Commodore Flying Service, the motor owner has complained to the sheriff.

Paul Vincent Potts, 22, of 57 Maple Avenue, Fairfax, told Deputy Sheriff James L. Current he had the motor lifted out of his 1955 car by Avella and Kircher and had left it lying on the ground until he could find a buyer.

Potts said several men must have carted the motor away in a vehicle.

Advance Planning For Pets

Taking your dog along with you on vacation this summer? Good idea—the children will love having their dog with them away from home. In fairness to your pet, though, you ought to do a little advance planning for his comfort.

For one thing, away from home you may not be able to get his favorite dog chow. Make sure to take along a sufficient supply of food for him—especially if you expect to be traveling a good bit of the time.

Then when you arrive at a country inn or isolated motel at night, he will be sure to go to sleep with his stomach full.

If he doesn't get sick, that is. Sad to say, there's nothing worse than to take off gaily on your trip, only to have him whimper from car - sickness after an hour or so on the road. A good idea might be to consult your local veterinarian before you start out. He can supply you with pills to prevent your dog from getting car-sick.

You should be prepared for the news that some motels and other lodging establishments won't admit pets. It may be possible, of course, to sneak him into your room for the night if he remains quiet. One little yelp though, and you're back on the road.

Other motels are more hospitable. They provide special kennels for visiting dogs. If yours doesn't mind sleeping with other canine strangers for the night, you can rest assured he'll get good treatment.

Certain national parks in this country prohibit dogs. It won't be an easy matter hiding Fido from the alert eyes of the park guards. If you plan on visiting any particular national park, it might be worth your while to write a letter in advance to find out what rules apply.

Soon Ancient Treasure Of Egypt To Be So Much Water Under Bridge

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some of the greatest monuments of the past will, in a few years, disappear beneath the waters which will back up behind the Aswan High Dam — and if not seen soon, may never be seen.

That was brought out vividly by Dr. Ahmed Fakhry as he sat talking one recent day about his favorite subject—the treasures of ancient Nubia. Fakhry, professor of the history of ancient Egypt and the Near East at Cairo University, spoke as an Egyptologist, rather than as a travel expert.

But his words should be something of a timely warning to the traveler who likes to wrap a bit of ancient history and age-old sights into a tour.

More than 20 great and minor temples and monuments from the days of the Pharaohs stand in an area to be covered by the great lake which will back up behind the Aswan dam in southern Egypt. Some of the temples are being moved to high and dry locations but others are cut into the rock along the Nile River and cannot be moved, or no money is available to move them.

Those which must be left behind will be covered by up to 200 feet of water. Even one of Egypt's most famous sights, the Abu Simbel Temple, with its four towering statues of Ramses II carved into the sandstone face of a bluff overlooking the Nile, could disappear beneath the water.

Fakhry said "all of us are full of hope" that the money can be raised to salvage the magnificent Abu Simbel, which dates from more than 1,200 year before Christ. But $70 million is needed for a proposal to cut the temple from the rock and hydraulically hoist it to safety.

And, as Fakhry said: "From the aesthetic point of view, they (the temples) should be seen in their natural setting . . . to see them on a stage is not like the original."

This ancient land of Nubia, storehouse of so many of Egypt's archaeological treasures, is for the traveler who likes to go off the usual track to do his sight-seeing. But it is not out of reach.

The city of Aswan, some 600 miles south of Cairo, and the taking-off point to see the temples which should be submerged within four to seven years, is reachable by both plane (2½ hours) or train (16 hours) from the capital, according to Aly Kamel, director of the United Arab Republic Tourist Office here. From Shellal, 7 miles out of Aswan, Nile steamers regularly make the three-day, two-night round-trip to Abu Simbel during the season from November through mid-April for about $60.

The other major ones are:

1. The Island of Philae, a sacred isle of the goddess Isis, with its collection of temples, which at times already go under water backed up behind the present Aswan Dam. A series of coffer dams will be used to save this site from permanent loss.

2. Kalabsha and the Temple of Beit-el-Wali, also built by Ramses II and decorated with battle scenes and triumphal processions glorifying the pharaoh.

None of the temples are younger than 2,000 years old, said Fakhry, adding with a grin: "That's from a very late period of Egyptian history."

And with that remark, Fakhry returned to his trusteeship over 34 priceless objects from the tomb of King Tut (really, Tutankhamun), which he is shepherding on their first nation-wide tour of the United States. The objects, all from the Cairo Museum, will be seen in the next two years in Houston; Omaha, Neb.; Chicago; Seattle; San Francisco; Los Angeles; Cleveland; Boston; St. Louis; Baltimore; Dayton and Toledo, Ohio.

Grandma Enjoys Being Deputy Sheriff

WEST BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI)—Mrs. Fannie Doyle, a 58-year-old grandmother, thinks nothing of an all-day trek through wooded mountains or facing a trapped criminal.

A Windham County deputy sheriff and part-time practical nurse, she raises, trains and tracks with a brood of crack bloodhounds that have gained her fame in police circles in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

"It's both a hobby and a job," she said.

Her current pack of eight bloodhounds includes 12-year-old Henry, who began his career tracking down two escaped criminals from Windsor State Prison when he was just a pup.

Henry also was on the end of a leash when Mrs. Doyle tracked a murder fugitive last year.

"I tracked him through rugged country, mountains and swamp. I was so close I saw him in a pond at one point and he could see me and the dog," she recalled.

The fugitive, an expert woodsman, eluded about 50 police for 18 hours before surrendering.

Mrs. Doyle says she doesn't fear a fugitive whether he is armed or not, although she carries no firearms and her dogs are not trained to protect her.

"I'm always flanked by armed police officers," she said.

Mrs. Doyle is believed to be the only woman in the country who trains bloodhounds for detective work. She also is called in to find lost hunters and children who go astray in the northern New England woods.

"I ruptured a disc four years ago and the doctors told me I couldn't go tracking in the woods anymore," she said, "but I'm still doing it."

She began training dogs for the sheriff of Keene, N. H., and starting breeding them herself 15 years ago.

Eight boilers on the luxury liner France provide as much horsepower as 28 boilers on a similar ship 20 years ago.

CARL MUNZIG
New to Marin

Carl Munzig New Ward Store Manager

Carl Munzig is the new operating manager at Montgomery Ward Corte Madera store. Munzig comes to Corte Madera from Ward's Panorama City store near Los Angeles, where he was part of the company's Manpower Development program.

Before joining Ward, Mr. Munzig was associated with Nash's Department Stores and with the Marston Co. in Southern California.

Munzig is a graduate of San Diego State College, where he majored in personnel management.

He is married and has three children. He is looking forward to settling down in Marin County.

Early Reading Guides Urged

BERKELEY (UPI) — A child can develop good reading habits even before he starts school, according to Dr. David H. Russell, University of California education professor.

Help children imitate sounds. Teach them nursery rhymes and songs. Get them to start their own library. Let them speak on a toy or real telephone. Read to them from simple, well-illustrated children's books.

Russell also recommends taking the youngsters on trips to the country, market, zoo, or the park to familiarize them with things they will later read about.

He says children should learn good book reading habits before reaching the age of 12, or else they will be "lost" as regular book readers for the rest of their lives.

Missing Truck Oversight Or Not

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Police wondered whether it was theft or a broad interpretation of the boss's orders when David Windham of Valles, Mexico, told them an employee he fired had driven off in his pickup truck.

Windham said that before he fired the man he had given him a note authorizing him to drive the vehicle. He forgot to take the note back when he dismissed the worker.

Peace Corps Heading For Philippines

PEACE CORPS TOWN, Philippines (UPI)—A team of young, dedicated Americans is shaping up a new and effective concept in international diplomacy in Philippine rural areas.

In this typical town, which could be anywhere in the Philippines, President John F. Kennedy has launched the Peace Corps program's first experiment in Asia.

The Peace Corps volunteers who will live and work for two years with residents in Philippine barrios (villages) are proving to be enthusiastic diplomats-with-out-portfolios with an eye for better Philippine-American relations.

During their two year tours in the barrios, the volunteers will serve as educational aides in English, science and mathematics in the schools and assist in better community living.

Extensively trained and tutored in different aspects of the Filipino way of life, they are getting accustomed to living in modestly furnished rural Filipino homes, eating rice with their meals and swapping greetings in the local dialect with the residents.

The volunteers, mostly in their 20's and fresh from college, get no actual salary. But they receive monthly allowances of 210 pesos ($105) each which are for board and lodging and other personal expenses.

The work in groups of four in each barrio, where they chip in for the rent of a small house and sometimes the employment of a cook and a laundrywoman.

In the morning, they all go to their assigned schools to teach, and return home late in the afternoon.

The response to the Peace Corps program by the residents has exceeded expectations. Their special "fans" are the children who, everywhere they go, flock to them and excitedly call out "Americana! Americana!" (American women) or "Americano!" for the men volunteers.

Barely a month after their arrival, the volunteers have plunged into their work with enthusiasm. One is helping run a health clinic when not in school, others have helped construct a school fence, while some have received the pledges of Youth Leagues put up by Filipinos themselves to work with the volunteers.

Armed with a desire to make friends and a dedication to work, the volunteers are on their way to writing a new chapter in international diplomacy.

Heated Swim Pool Has Cabin Cruiser

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The heated waters of a motel swimming pool provide a snug winter berth for Norman Sherman's 25-foot cabin cruiser.

The motel borrowed it for use as a Christmas decoration and then decided, along with Sherman, it would be mutally beneficial to leave it there until summer. Sherman won't have to worry about ice damage to the hull. And the motel plans to offer it on a charter basis for cocktail parties.

Fugate Celebrates His First Year In Corte Madera

No newcomer to the petroleum industry, Fugate joined Standard Oil of California in 1957, advancing in the firm to the post of assistant manager before being selected as a Chevron dealer.

The 28-year-old Fugate is a veteran of the Air Force, enlisting in 1952 and seeing service in Texas, Arizona and Labrador. His tour of duty ended at Hamilton Air Force Base.

A native of Kentucky, Fugate spent most of his early life in Dayton, Ohio. Prior to joining Standard Oil, he worked briefly with Transocean Airlines.

His business is lavishing the finest possible service on the cars of his customers. As a hobby, he restores his own vintage models to their original condtion—his current off-duty rejuvenation project being a 1936 Ford.

Now It's Her Turn To Give Lecture

Then Sartain forgot all about it. When he woke up next morning he not only had a dead battery but an empty gas tank.

Science Books For Youngsters

NEW YORK (UPI) — When buying a science book for a child, look for one that presents ideas along with its facts, says science writer John Pfeiffer.

"The main task is delineation of concept — the ideas and hypotheses that stimulate scientists to seek further knowledge," Pfeiffer said. "Books heavy on facts and light on ideas have been all too common. There is no more effective way of stifling children's natural interest in natural phenomena."
